LYDIA A. STEVENSON FREE

JUDGMENT OF COUNTY COURT REVERSED BY SUPREME COURT.

Indictment Considered Insufficient and Quashed and Respondent Discharged —Was Rearrested on Another Indictment.

Montpelier, May 28.—The finishing of the argument in the chancery case of Hooker & Son vs. McLeod et al from Caledonia county which were commenced yesterday occupied a large part of this forenoon's session of the Supreme Court.

In the case of State vs. Lydia A. Stevenson, who was convicted of an abortion upon Miss Estella Houghton in January, 1895, in Franklin County Court, the judgment of the County Court was reversed this forenoon. Verdict set aside. Demurrer sustained. Indictment adjudged insufficient and quashed and the respondent discharged. She was soon after rearrested by Deputy Sheriff John L. Tuttle of Montpelier to answer to another indictment pending against her in Franklin County Court.

Mary and Uriah Elliott vs. E. R. Jenkins from Caledonia county. Orarris and orator are husband and wife and claim the right to use and occupy subject to the public right the northerly half of Russell street in St. Johnsbury Village subject to a right of way owned by defendant. In 1891 defendant claiming a right to the land as an abutting owner and by an adverse possession of more than 15 years subject to the public right to use as a public highway cut the grass on the land in dispute and in 1892 obliterated the old driveway and made two new ones, which he graded and filled in with soil. Orarris claimed the title to the land by virtue of a deed. This deed defendant claims to be void as it was given during his claimed adverse possession.

The chancellor granted a perpetual injunction restraining the defendant from doing any act inconsistent with his right therein, as one of the public for the purposes of a highway from which decree defendant appealed. Dunnett and Slack for orarris and orator, Bates and May for defendant.

John K. Darling, administrator of Meriah Ricker vs. Joseph and Helen L. Ricker, is a bill in chancery from Caledonia county. In 1885 the aforesaid Meriah conveyed his homestead farm in Groton, worth $900, and personal property worth $200, to defendants. She was then owing defendants $650. She was then owing A. H. Ricker, administrator, $1075 on a note of $700 dated Sept. 25, 1871, which was witnessed by defendant, Helen L., which note was given for balance of purchase money above the purchase money. Orator claims that the conveyance should be set aside as a fraud against the rights of creditors. George W. Wing and J. P. Lamson for orator, R. M. Harvey and Dunnett & Slack for defendant.

James M. Boutwell et al. vs. William Marr et al., an action on the case from Washington was continued.

State vs. Lee Dodge, apt., who was convicted of a breach of the peace in Washington county, was also continued.

A. S. Martin vs. Francis Curtis is an action in dissesin from Orange county and two pieces of real estate in the town of Orange said to be worth about $50, are involved. Defendant recovered his case in County court. Plaintiff made a motion for a jury trial, but failed to get one, and the case was tried by the court. He contends against one of the assistant judges acting as a member of the court at trial as he had previously acted in a prior trespass suit. He has an exception to the exclusion of a deed on account of its latent ambiguity. J. W. Gordon for plaintiff; R. M. Harvey for defendant.

THE SUPREME COURT

Takes up Chittenden County Cases—A Recess Taken Until July 9.

Montpelier, Vt., May 29.—Re Francis McKeough's estate, John McKeough, appellant. This case is an appeal from probate and is from Chittenden county. The contention is over the construction of testator's will which was executed May 5, 1875. Testator died in the spring of 1881. The clause in the will reads: "After the decease of my said wife I give to my son, John McKeough, the use during his natural life my homeplace, where I now live on the west side of Champlain street in said Burlington. The appellant contends that extrinsic evidence should be admissible to show what was meant by testator claiming that the will covers in addition to the homestead some tenement houses and about one-fourth acre of land. The case was foreigned on motion of appellant. H. S. Peck appeared for the estate, W. D. Bliss and R. E. Brown for appellant.

Hiram E. Gregory vs. Harley E. Tomlinson, apt. Defendant leased his farm in Bolton to plaintiff for one year beginning Feb. 1, 1895, on equal shares agreeing to furnish 20 cows. One of the cows died in March, two in April and another in August. The death of the four cows was not caused in any way by plaintiff and he says that they were probably diseased at the time of the execution of the lease and claims that they should have been replaced by defendant in a reasonable time. He recovered $65.50 and costs in Chittenden County Court. V. A. Bullard and L. F. Wilbur for plaintiff, R. E. Brown and C. F. Clouch for defendant.

Re Oliver Wells estate, Lucia R. Ward, apt., is an appeal from probate from Chittenden county. Testator late of Underhill on the death of his wife, Rebekah Wells, to whom he gave the use of his estate by will during her natural life and on her death which has happened to appellant, who is his daughter, and her heirs, and in case of her death without such heirs the estate is to go to the Congregational church at Underhill. Said Lucia R. is living in Des Moines, Iowa, and has no children and it is claimed in her behalf that as the will is indefinite, contingent too remote and void that the church has no interest in the estate and that she should be decreed a conditional estate in fee. This is resisted by the church. The estate is said to consist of real and personal property in Underhill of about $750 in value. J. J. Monahan and S. C. Shurtleff for appellant, L. F. Wilbur and C. T. Barney for church.

Judges Taft and Tyler dissented from the decision quashing the indictment in the case of State vs. Lydia A. Stevenson announced yesterday.

All the cases from Washington county standing for hearing were continued at the close of the arguments to-day.

A recess of the Supreme Court was taken at 4.55 o'clock this afternoon until July 9, when the court will reconvene on the coming in of the morning trains for the purpose of rendering the decisions in the cases already heard.

RUTLAND COUNTY POLITICS.

Exciting Contests For Senator, State's Attorney and Delegates to State Convention.

Rutland, Vt., May 29.—Political matters are at a fever heat not only in this city, but in the county. There is a contest between A. G. Stone of Wallingford and P. H. Farrington of Brandon for the senatorship. Wallingford comes forward with the claim that it has been 19 years since it was recognized at the county convention, and A. G. Stone will be presented as its man for senator. Besides this Mr. Stone's supporters claim for their candidate the honor which representation at the last Legislature of making a change in some features of the prohibitory law, which, they claim, were obnoxious to the people. The features referred to were the moiety clause in the old law. The penalty for drunkenness was changed by his efforts from a sentence to the house of correction to that of the county jail. His supporters further claim that Mr. Stone was the first representative who was able to make an inroad on the prohibitory law.

On the other hand, Mr. Farrington's friends come forward with the claim that their candidate has a clean personal record, is an active business man and has taken a great interest in public affairs. Mr. Farrington has been one of the leading spirits in the Vermont Breeders' association, and is well known in all parts of the county. The contest between the two men is very sharp. Both parties have made a thorough canvass of each town, and each, as usually is the case, claim the nomination at the county convention. There is no denying but that both men have a strong following.

This is not the only contest carried on in the county. W. H. Rowland of Poultney and W. H. Preston of Fair Haven are running for State's attorney. Mr. Preston has successfully filled the office for one term, and is in every way a strong man, but Mr. Rowland, on the other hand, has a just claim, if there is any honor in political promises, to the office. He withdrew from the contest year ago for Mr. Preston and again, in the two following elections for J. C. Jones, the present incumbent. It is claimed by Mr. Rowland's friends that Mr. Preston has broken faith with their candidate by entering the field at this time. J. C. Jones is making no protest now to Mr. Rowland by making a thorough canvass of the county for him.

This is not all. The contest between Mr. Grout and Mr. Stickney for governor is growing warm in the county. Mr. Stickney quietly, but in a most thorough manner, has put in work for his candidacy in the various towns, but it is not at all certain that he will carry the county delegates, although he is confident that his canvass will prove successful. There is no denying it but that Mr. Grout has a strong following among the county farmers, and as far that matter, in the city of Rutland.

The Chaffee and Thomson fight for the senatorship from this city has taken a curious turn. Now that Mr. Chaffee has won in the caucus, the friends of the former lost no time in put a petition in circulation among republicans in favor of Dr. J. E. Thomson for city representative. Over 100 republican voters have signed the petition. One of the promoters of the petition said yesterday if Dr. Thomson agrees to run they intend to show the Rutland Herald that the people will pick up a good man, who has failed so far to get office on account of its support of him and elect his representative.

Concerning Mr. Chaffee's candidacy for senator in the county, it is reported that he will meet with some opposition from the principal leaders of the last cause of Dr. Thomson, but Mr. Chaffee has no alarm regarding the result in the county.

THE SEASON'S SHIRT WAISTS.

(From Harper's Bazar.)

The materials used for the most expensive shirt-waists are entirely different from the materials that are bought by the yard in the shops. They are imported expressly for the purpose, and consequently are quite distinctive. Madras of different qualities, but all cool and sheer, fancy muslins—the latter not so smart as the Madras muslins—and a thin weight of fancy white duck are used. The solid colors with a hair stripe of white, while not the newest, still rank among the most desirable patterns. The old-fashioned fluted ruffles that are associated in our minds with curtain hangings have been reproduced in the Madras shirtings. A pale pink and white square pattern will have sprays of tiny pink roses, a purple and white will have also pink, all in the dull colors used in old English goods. The reversed pattern for these shirts has a yoke at the back, with a little fullness directly in the centre, which is held in at the belt by a stitched band that only extends to the side seams; from there a tape ties down the fullness in front. There is no yoke in the front of the shirt, but four narrow side-plaits. The favorite pattern for the sleeve is the bishop sleeve; but again in the Madras shirt this is very much modified, and shapes in at the hand into a turned-over stiffened cuff of the material. The collars are made separate from the shirt, and are white, turned over, very much on the same cut as last year's; but the neck of the shirt is so finished that a stock can be worn just as well as a collar. Stocks of this season are quite odd, and a novelty which will not be very popular. A straight band of satin or silk is fastened in the back, having very much the effect of a clergyman's collar, and a black satin tie in a stiff bow in front finishes it off. Shirts made to order cost anything the makers choose to ask, but for stout people are desirable in so far that the careful fitting over the shoulders, and the equally careful arrangement of the fulness, produce much better results and longer lines.

THE INDUSTRIAL SITUATION

Not Much Improved With the Exception of the Boot and Shoe Trade.

New York, May 29.—Bradstreets to-morrow will say:
