

tion is concerned. "You mean to say you're not?" "If it's known that I ran away for a night, of course—"

"Take it up and down and all around, what do you think of all this?" I asked. Larry was silent for a moment; he was not given to careless speech in personal matters.

seemed to transfigure this hiring,—this fellow whom I had charged with infamous conduct, this servant who had cared for my needs in so humble a spirit of subjection.

Christie's. The Aristocrat Among the Great Sales-rooms of London. Christie's is the aristocrat among sales-rooms. James Christie 2d was a scholar and an exquisite, and when he died it was said of him that he had raised the business he followed to a profession.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 16.—In this sermon the preacher shows the evil of official corruption and wickedness in high places, a lesson which has a peculiar application to governors and judges in our own day.

But Felix had more than the sin of libelism laid at his door. He was, like Pilate, officially corrupt. He was ready to sell his soul, his honor, his orthodoxy of office.

Modern Instances. Felix trembled for his political prospects. We all despise the hedger, the trimmer, the man who is not willing bravely to defy the powers that be and denounce and rectify a wrong no matter where he may find it.

"By God, I Will Stand by You, John Glenarm!"

fight for his memory and to protect his property from the scoundrels who have plotted against me. I hope you follow me.

"I did not wait for an answer. I was not in a mood for reflection or nice distinctions. The man came in just then with a fresh plate of toast."

"I haven't seen him for forty years. We used to call him 'Sandhill Crane,' he was so tall and skinny as a kid. You say he's round somewhere?"

One of the big jewelry firms on Fifth avenue is making a gold ring for J. G. Phelps Stokes which, when it is finished, will be a unique souvenir of his marriage to Rose Pastor.
