F. L. Davis, State cattle commissioner, was at the Van Ness House Tuesday and reported that the work of inspecting cattle had been begun again and that already about 50 applications had been received. A force of 18 or 20 take care of the work in the different sections of the State, and from now on, while the $40,000 appropriated for this purpose by the State lasts, the work of killing off tubercular cattle will be active. When asked Tuesday if he was in favor of the inspection of pork as well as beef, the cattle commissioner announced in no uncertain words that he was, and said that if anyone would read the government report dealing with that subject a belief in such inspection would surely follow. The inspection of pork is every bit as important to a city the size of Burlington as is the inspection of cattle, since hogs are even more susceptible to disease. Some trouble is still being experienced with farmers who introduce cattle into their herds from herds which have not been tested, but on the whole conditions in the State, according to the reports received by the commissioner, are encouraging.

CLERGYMEN ON REMARRIAGE

Burlington Ministers Explain Their Positions.

Methodist Pastor Declares That Vast Number of Applications from Divorced Persons Shows Deplorable Condition of Affairs.

"I have had more applications for re-marriage by divorced persons during the two years that I have been in Vermont than during the 30 years I was in New York State. There certainly is a deplorable condition of affairs in Vermont."

This statement was made last night by the Rev. C. V. Grismer, pastor of the Methodist Church, when asked to state his attitude on the question of the re-marriage of divorced persons. Dr. Grismer was interviewed in connection with the signed statement appearing in yesterday morning's Free Press in which rules were adopted by Burlington clergymen, designed to make it more difficult for divorced persons to re-marry.

Dr. Grismer said that his church went further than the rules set forth in the agreement, and instructed its pastors to refuse to remarry anyone except perhaps the innocent party to a divorce obtained on statutory grounds. He said that he had had many requests from divorced parties for a marriage ceremony, and cited one instance where a divorce had been granted the latter part of one week and the parties applied to him to be married the Monday following. Mr. Grismer said that the provision in the agreement just signed by the Burlington pastors making it impossible for divorced persons to be re-married by them until at least a year had elapsed since the divorce, was a very good feature.

The agreement signed by the pastors is in the nature of a minimum arrangement, considered to be the least that each may demand in considering the question of re-marrying divorced persons. Nearly all of the pastors go much further even in their demands for satisfactory evidence of good faith on the part of persons who wish to be re-married, but the agreement is considered adequate for what might be termed a fair working basis so that the pastors may present a solid front to a certain degree against the tendency of hasty re-marriages among divorced persons.

The agreement signed by the pastors is a modification of a set of rules prepared by the Rev Rufus C. Flagg, pastor of the Congregational Church of Winooski, and presented to the ministers at a recent meeting. The provisions contained in the agreement that was signed are:

1. Satisfactory documentary evidence regarding the divorce shall be furnished.

2. In cases in which the minister has no personal knowledge of the applicants further investigation shall be deemed necessary.

3. There shall be no re-marriage of divorced persons until at least one year has elapsed since the divorce.

In the original agreement drawn up by Dr. Flagg the provisions were as follows:

1.—No marriage of divorced persons except upon presentation of full documentary information regarding the divorce.

2.—No marriage of persons who come from a distance for such a purpose, as such a step is open to suspicion.

3.—One year must elapse from the time of the divorce.

4.—No marriage of the guilty party in case of a divorce granted for adultery, intolerable severity or desertion.

5.—No marriage of anyone who has been divorced more than once.

Dr. Flagg said last evening that his position in the matter was somewhat in advance of the provision set down in the signed agreement. He said he should not want to marry persons who had been divorced on the grounds of adultery, intolerable severity or desertion as he did not consider such persons fit to live in the state of matrimony. Neither would he marry, he said, persons who came to him from a distance for the express purpose of being re-married.

The Rev. I. C. Smart, pastor of the College Street Church, stated that his position also went far beyond the provisions contained in the agreement and that he always refused to remarry anyone except the innocent party to a divorce obtained on statutory grounds. The effective thing about the agreement, according to Dr. Smart, is the provision prohibiting remarriage for a year. Dr. Smart stated that he had quite a number of applications from persons who wished to re-marry, but that so far as his attitude was concerned the persons might fulfill all the requirements of the signed agreement and still he would refuse to re-marry them.

The Rev. Ernest G. Guthrie said that the purpose of the agreement was to stiffen up the method of re-marrying and to establish the fact that Burlington was not a center where one can easily get married if one is divorced. There have been difficulties in the past, he said, which have all been leading up to the agreement on the part of the pastors. Persons are coming all the time, said Mr. Guthrie, to be re-married, and it has been difficult to tell whether they are seeking to avoid publicity by being re-married away from their friends. Heretofore, the pastors have had nothing but the marriage license issued at the city clerk's office to guide them. Now the parties wishing to re-marry must produce an official document showing the decree of the courts, and even when this is produced, said Mr. Guthrie, the pastors may refuse to perform the ceremony. Mr. Guthrie said that one result of the agreement would be to curtail long stories on the part of persons wishing to re-marry, as the absence of documentary evidence would at once preclude any marriage ceremony.

The Rev. James S. Braker, pastor of the First Baptist Church, stated that his denomination gave its clergymen considerable liberty in judging whom they should re-marry and that there was need for great care on the part of marrying clergymen. He said that in cases where persons came to be re-married and gave some minor grounds as cause for divorce, the clergyman would, on investigating the case and finding the divorce had been granted on statutory grounds, consent to perform the ceremony.

The Rev. C. J. Staples, pastor of the Unitarian Church, said the agreement was a minimum ground on which all the clergymen, who signed it could agree, and that it would work no hardship on divorced people to be obliged to wait a year before contracting another marriage. The agreement would also have a tendency to prevent a couple from going from one minister to another until they found some one who would perform the desired ceremony.

The agreement was not signed by any clergyman of the Episcopal Church and this was explained last evening by Rev. Arthur C. Clarke, of St. Paul's Church, who stated that inasmuch as his church did not sanction the re-marriage of any persons except the innocent party to a divorce granted on statutory grounds, it seemed like a weakening of the church's position to sign an agreement of a minimum nature.

GRAND ISLE COUNTY COURT

Railroad Case Continued Pending Decision under Employers' Act.

The January term of Grand Isle county court opened Tuesday morning at ten o'clock, Judge Zed S. Stanton presiding. The jury calendar was called and contained nine entries, all of them being disposed of for the term, but one, that of George Mitchell vs. the Rutland Railroad company—which was entered "with the court." It is an action by an employe and counsel intimated to the court that an important decision was expected soon from the United States Supreme Court involving a consideration of the employers' liability act. When the opinion is handed down it is expected to furnish a guide for the trial or disposition of the case pending here.

The court calendar was made up mostly of divorce cases, of which there are four. Two were entered "continued" and that of Thomas Maskell vs. Phila H. Maskell was tried and a bill granted for desertion. The fourth, William M. Fleury vs. Henrietta McD. Fleury, was heard on a plea to the jurisdiction. M. G. Leary appeared specially for the wife and stated that the wife had a case pending in Chittenden county in which the court had taken some action, therefore it was contended the court here ought not to take jurisdiction, but leave the case to be heard in March on the petition of the wife. The petition of the husband was only filed in this county on January 6, three days before this court opened. R. E. Brown appeared for petitioner and claimed the matter pending in Chittenden county was not a prayer for divorce, and hence this court had jurisdiction. The court entered the case "continued" so that it could be heard in Burlington in March.

Nelson Terry of Grand Isle pleaded guilty of an attempt of criminal assault on his niece and was sentenced to State prison for two years.

Other State cases were: State vs. Peter Fortune and Lester Lewis, intoxication and breaking the public peace; State vs. Ernest Hill, intoxication; State vs. Henry Parker, intoxication and breaking the public peace; State vs. Hobart Wedgeworth, violation of fish and game laws in hunting without a license; State vs. Hobart Wedgeworth and B. H. Bohannon, duck hunting with motor boat. Warren R. Austin of St. Albans appeared in the last two cases for the State by special gubernatorial appointment, in the absence of Attorney-General Sargent. V. A. Bullard appeared for the two respondents. The cases were continued.

THE SPIRIT OF WINTER.

The spirit of Winter is with us, making presence known in many different ways—sometimes by cheery sunshine and glistening snows, and sometimes by driving winds and blinding storms. To many people it seems to take a delight in making bad things worse, for rheumatism twists harder, twinges sharper, catarrh becomes more annoying, and the many symptoms of scrofula are developed and aggravated. There is not much poetry in this, but there is truth, and it is a wonder that more people don't get rid of these ailments. The medicine that cures them—Hood's Sarsaparilla—is easily obtained and there is abundant proof that its cures are radical and permanent.
