RANDOLPH.

Miss Maud Inez Putnam Bride of John W. Lamson.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Putnam on the Highlands was the scene of a very pretty wedding Sunday afternoon, when Miss Maud Inez, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Putnam, was united in marriage to John Waite Lamson, youngest son of Mrs. J. H. Lamson, by Rev. Fraser Metzger, who used the Episcopal form of ceremony, with the single ring service. The ceremony was witnessed by the immediate families only. The corners of the parlor had been decorated in an artistic manner by H. M. Totman, and it was in this arch, with its decorations of pink and white, that the couple took their place as the solemn vows were taken. The bride was becomingly gowned in white chiffon over white messaline and carried a bouquet of bride's roses, wearing a pearl and a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom. Following the ceremony, a wedding luncheon was served, and the couple left by automobile for the north, taking the north bound train at Montpelier for a short wedding trip. On their return they will make their home in the house of Mrs. H. W. Tewksbury.

The bride's going-away suit was of Copenhagen blue, with white felt hat and plume. Numerous and beautiful were the gifts, consisting of decorated china, cut glass, silver and much embroidered linen. The bride is a popular young lady, who was graduated from the high school here and since that time has been an efficient teacher in this vicinity and at Keene, N. H. She has also been a faithful member of the Bethany church choir of which church she is also a communicant. Mr. Lamson was also a high school student, and since the completion of his education has been associated in business with his father, the late J. H. Lamson, who before his death took both sons in partnership, and the firm became J. H. Lamson & Sons. Both have a large circle of friends, who will extend earnest wishes for their future happiness in the new relation.

IS YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE COATED?

If Cross, Feverish, Bittious, Stomach Sour, Give "Syrup of Figs" to Clean Its Little Clogged-Up Bowels.

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See if it is white, yellow and coated! If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everything, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat; or is full of colic, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little waste-clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drug-giving your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste. Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package. Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

WASHINGTON'S HUMOR.

A Dinner Invitation That Showed the General's Genial Side.

In spite of the general opinion to the contrary, Washington was not an especially grave and austere man. He had a sense of humor and could make or enjoy a joke as well as any one. From Professor C. P. Holliday's "Wit and Humor of Colonial Days" is taken this letter, written to invite a friend, with the Indies of his family, to dine with the general. There is no date, but there is some reason to think that the note may have been written from Valley Forge. It shows the grave and burdened soldier in a pleasantly genial light:

"Since our arrival at this happy spot we have had a ham, sometimes a shoulder of bacon, to grace the head of the table, a piece of roast beef adorns the foot, and a dish of beans or greens, almost imperceptible, decorates the center."

"When the cook has a mind to cut a figure, which I presume will be the case tomorrow, we have two beefsteak pies or dishes of crabs in addition, one on each side of the center dish, dividing the space and reducing the distance between dish and dish to about six feet, which without them would be near twelve feet apart. Of late he has had the surprising sagacity to discover that apples will make pies, and it is a question if in the violence of his efforts we do not get one of apples instead of having both of beefsteaks."

"If the ladies can put up with such entertainment and will submit to partake of it on plates once tin, but now iron (not become so by the labor of scouring), I shall be happy to see them."

PHEASANT NURSERIES.

Those in French Forest Equal Institutions For Human Beings.

To Louis XIV. France is said to be indebted for the importation of its pheasants, writes Lillie Hamilton French in the Century. On that side of the forest Compiègne nearest to Compiègne itself is a faisanderie covering many hundreds of acres in which the breeding of these birds, begun under his protection and further encouraged by Charles X. and Louis Philippe, is now carried on by a private person, who rents his right to do so from the state.

I have never seen a place so shut in and protected by wire fences and locked gates, stone walls and more gates, special guards in special houses, police dogs, guns and traps. There is even a thick kind of double mattress made to cover the guards, who in winter must sleep out of doors in watching for poachers. I have never seen institutions for human beings better planned in the way of nurseries and attendants, hygienic laws and systems of feeding.

The pheasants when finally shot must have a wonderful favor, and in a single day as many as a thousand are often shot within those walls, each one of the thousand having cost its owner the sum of 40 francs to raise.

The Parson Glad. Parson—I'm glad to see you on your way to Sunday school. Agerton What do you expect to learn today? Agerton—Well, I expect to learn the date of the picnic, for one thing.—Judge.

Premature Joy. "Well, well, well! I'm certainly glad I met you!" "I'm sorry, old man, but I gave my last dollar to my wife just before I left home."—Houston Post.

GARRICK'S MOBILE FACE.

It Drove Sir Joshua Reynolds Into a Fit of Temper.

This story of an artist's despair while working on Garrick's portrait is often printed, but it is reproduced in "David Garrick and His French Friends," with a footnote saying that the experience was made the material for a French vaudeville sketch:

It was no easy task to transfer to the canvas a model so changeable. Garrick, as a model, threw painters into despair. Let us listen a moment to Northcote relating Sir Joshua Reynolds' experiences:

"When the artist had worked on the face till he had drawn it very correctly, as he saw it at the time, Garrick caught an opportunity, while the painter was gazing at him, totally to change his countenance and expression, when the poor painter patiently worked on to alter the picture and make it like what he then saw, and when Garrick perceived that it was thus altered he seized another opportunity and changed his countenance to a third character, which, when the poor tantalized artist perceived, he, in a great rage, threw down his palette and pencils on the floor, saying he believed he was painting from the devil and would do no more to the picture."

The "Mikado." Most people outside Japan are wont to speak of the "mikado," but really that title is obsolete. The Japanese never use that appellation themselves, and they do not like others to do so. Educated Japanese speak of their sovereign as "shmojo sam," and the ordinary folk term him "fenshi sama." "Tanno" is the title used in all official documents, and for the foreigner the most correct form is "kotei"—that is, emperor.—Westminster Gazette.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

To-night at Barre Opera House Comes "Bunty Pulls the Strings."

"Bunty Pulls the Strings" will be the attraction at the opera house to-night. And since it was produced in London two years ago—and its success in the English metropolis duplicated in New York, Chicago and throughout Canada—it has been a subject of comment as to the causes of the wonderful interest shown in "Bunty."

The best that can be said is: "Why do we love our grandmothers, and why do we like the old candelabra, with its glittering pendants flashing back upon us all the many colors of the rainbow, and the tall old "corner-boy" slowly ticking our lives away from the cradle to the grave, that adorn the old parlor, better than the modern electric light?—They bring us back to the old days, and that is the secret of "Bunty's" success. Nothing seems planned. The characters seem to just live before us, and there is no suggestion of a plot or climax to offend the sensitive ear, and while you have not made the voyage, it is just like transporting a bit of quaint old Scotland to you as you sit in a comfortable orchestra chair and enjoy the charm of the visit.
