Wouldn't a better name be the tangible dance?

Congratulations to Captain Inch of the ill-fated Volturino; he earned another ship.

The first straw hat of the season was seen in Mobile, Ala., yesterday, but we are still immobile.

Too bad to spoil outlast Beardley's flourishing industry in the shape of post card and picture sale; he was getting a splendid royalty.

Mayor-elect Curley, who committed the egregious sin of writing the phrase "between you and I" (to Boston's way of thinking), may still have another eye for running the municipality notwithstanding. Who knows?

The total circulation of books from the Aldrich public library during the past year indicates that the institution is increasing in its influence in Barre and vicinity, and the efforts made to accommodate the public show that the library continues to merit the support of the community. The library is a busy place at all hours when opened to the public.

War has been declared right down in Claremont, N. H.—war against the proposed organization of labor. In these days of comparative freedom to organize along such lines, it is odd enough to note the fiery antagonism which has developed in Claremont against one particular organizer who was virtually ordered out of town and never to return. Doubtless the merchants of Claremont would feel within their rights if they should form an organization for mutual betterment.

The name of Ginn has been so long associated with textbooks that to speak of it conjures up in the minds of the youth of the country some great obstacle to perfect happiness. Edwin Ginn has been known far and wide as one of the great publishers of textbooks, perhaps the greatest for a considerable part of the time in which Ginn & Co. has been engaged in the business, and he founded a concern which is so well established that it is likely to continue an important career along its line, still using the name of the man who started it and who has just passed away at Winchester, Mass.

The success which met the efforts of the state of New York to sell $51,000,000 bonds yesterday indicates that the market for that particular kind of security is coming back rather strongly. The bids from the great banking and brokerage concerns of the eastern section of the country ranged much above par and the highest bid will give the state something like $3,000,000 premium on the entire award. However, there is not so much encouragement to prospective floaters of municipal bonds, as the market for them is not nearly as strong; and municipalities would do well to delay such issues for a little longer period if such delay is at all possible. State bonds, especially of such a state as New York, are a different proposition even in the face of a slack market in general.

FOR HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY. The suggestion was made recently by State Commissioner of Weights and Measures Hugh Henry of Chester that correct housekeeping demands that tested scales and measures be as much a part of the household as any other utensil of accepted use. Such a suggestion seems to be very reasonable, too, because in the first instance it will enable the housekeeper to determine whether she is receiving accurate weights and measures from the storekeepers and, in the second place, it will enable her to fix accurately just the amounts required in cooking, for instance, thus perhaps saving some of the ingredients which are now being wasted by the guesswork method of cooking. Of the two, the former is of far greater consequence, as it is known that storekeepers' scales are apt to vary, in some cases by design, in others by accident. On taking packages home the housekeeper can readily determine by tested scales whether or not she has received full measure for money expended, and if discrepancy against her is found she can readily find redress by calling the matter to the attention of the storekeeper, who, no doubt, will be willing to make up the difference. By the same token, if she should learn that the merchant was cheating himself she might find it in her heart to go to him and tell him of the unfortunate condition. But however that be, it would certainly be a protection to the housekeeper to have a set of tested scales, as well as tested measures, in her house.

CANADA'S DEPRESSION. Our Canadian neighbors are passing through the reaction from rush times of some months ago, and the reaction is so serious as to be very depressing to those who are students of the situation there. There is a great deal of enforced idleness in various parts of the Dominion, while the cost of living has risen in something like the same degree as in the United States. In the course of a speech in Parliament at Ottawa the other day, Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that for the first time in about a quarter of a century there is such a thing as non-Mackinaws and sweaters for girls as well as for men and boys. Some new ones just received. The smartest things of the season for young women, $10 and $12.50 for mackinaws, $4 up to $9 for sweaters. Real balmacaans, too, for the real sports.

employment in Canada and that there are as many as 100,000 people who are forced to be idle at a time when employment is perhaps the most needed. Of course, Sir Wilfrid's pessimism must be ascribed in part to political maneuvering against the party in power; but it is nevertheless true that Canada is undergoing a period of depression the like of which has not been seen in a long time. However, there is no need for serious alarm in the neighboring country, for Canada is young and is blessed with considerable vitality and at the same time has abundant natural resources, combined with advantageous location. Moreover, it is so closely allied (though rarely is it admitted) with the United States and the progress of this country that it is bound to reflect conditions to be found south of the boundary line. And the prospects of the United States are not looked upon with anything but confidence. Canada, therefore, is likely soon to feel the rebound from its present poor condition.

FOOD SEIZURES MADE. Government to Test Them Under Properly Labeled Goods.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—On recommendations of the department of agriculture, a number of seizures of food products as indicated below were made. None of the following cases has as yet been tried but all will shortly be brought before the courts, when it will be determined whether the government's charges are justified. One cask of lemon flavor, alleged to have been shipped by N. Loewenstein & company, Chicago, Ill., was seized at Indianapolis, Ind., December 26th, on the ground that it was adulterated and misbranded in that a dilute terpenes lemon flavor had been added to the product. Two cans of oil of wintergreen leaf, alleged to have been shipped by F. P. Dove, Spring Glen, N. Y., were seized at Boston, Mass., December 16th, on the ground that the product was misbranded in being labeled "oil wintergreen leaf." examination showed it to be a mixture of wintergreen and methyl salicylate. Two hundred eighty-eight cases of tomato conserve, alleged to have been shipped by C. D. Stone & Co., New York were seized at Chicago, Ill., on December 10th, on the ground that the product consisted in whole or in part of a filthy, decomposed, or putrid animal or vegetable substance. Four bags of dried apples, alleged to have been shipped by A. J. Turner, Philpott, Va., were seized at Baltimore, Md., December 16th, on the ground that they were adulterated in that the product consisted in whole or in part of a filthy, decomposed, or putrid animal or vegetable substance.

The auto fire truck was called by telephone to the house at 360 North Main street owned by Mrs. Mary J. Durkee, at 1:15 this afternoon. An explanation of the call was found in a warm chimney which remained warm even when occupants of the house ascended to the upper stories and tried to subdue the fire. No damage was done, although the regulars remained at the house until the blaze had died down.

Bitter fate is pursuing Battiste Somaeni, a Barre granite cutter who recently went to his former home in Italy for an indefinite visit. The latest misfortune to befall Mr. Somaeni is of serious proportions, although not of the character of his former troubles. Somaeni, while engaged at his trade in this city, was left practically without vision as the result of two accidents in granite plants. The accidents happened within the space of a year and his trip to his native land was for the purpose of restoration of sight through the medium of rest. He arrived in his native land with a capital of some $400. This principal, according to information received by friends at Montpelier, was deposited in a bank of his native town. According to the correspondence received, the day following the bank failed and Somaeni was the loser of $400.

WATERBURY.

The financial boards of the Methodist Episcopal and Congregational churches met and made plans for the "Everybody at Church" Sunday Feb. 1. Next Sunday evening a union service will be held at the Congregational church in charge of C. C. Graves. It is expected that Sheriff Tracy of Montpelier will speak. The Needlecraft club met for a quilting bee with Mrs. W. B. Clark Tuesday afternoon. The guests were received by Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Knowles. The dishes used for supper were old and the menu, as prepared by Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Knowles, was of old-fashioned dishes. A jolly time was passed and quilts tied for the hostesses. The regular meeting of the club will be Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Walter Carr. J. W. Moody, who has been quite ill, is much improved. The patients' dances at the hospital have begun. Raymond Buzzell, violinist, and John Miller, pianist, both employees of the institution, furnishing the music. Special praise was given the vocalists with the company. F. E. Atkins has gone to Montpelier to assist in the offices of the American Fidelity company. Mr. Germino has also always been ready to help in concert and church work.
