Trams Went Over Bank on Worcester Road—Wagons Demolished.

Last evening, while men were drawing out to this city, the breaking of the harness on the rear team caused two of the rigs to be completely demolished and a third one was badly damaged. The teams had been to Worcester and on the return trip, the four being together. Jacob Nathan was ahead, Jacob Udelesky next, Morris Rockovitz third and Harry Diamond fourth. When the harness on Mr. Diamond's horse broke, the animal ran into Rockovitz's rig and his horse joined in the runaway. When Udelesky's team was reached, the runaways struck his wagon a glancing blow, became tangled up and went off the bank, with the drivers underneath. Mr. Udelesky went to their rescue and when they were taken out they were found to be not much injured, but the wagons were a complete wreck.

Mrs. C. E. Clafin Seems to Be Recovering From Injuries in Auto Accident.

While Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Clafin were coming from Randolph in an automobile on Saturday night and when near the top of the hill, a short distance from the old church, by the house of John Gilman, the car took a sudden leap down the bank, throwing them both several feet. One of the wheels of the machine went down as far as the river, where it finally rested. Mrs. Clafin was taken by her husband to a nearby house and Dr. Greene was telephoned for. He came and took her home, but she did not regain consciousness till Monday. It was at first thought to be serious, but she was so much more comfortable at the last accounts that her recovery is expected. Mr. Clafin did not receive serious injuries.

Mrs. Clayton Saunders was taken to Burlington last week for an operation for appendicitis, at the Mary Fletcher hospital.

Rowe and to them was born one daughter, Grace Rowe, who with the husband, survives her. The funeral services were held Saturday at 1 o'clock, Rev. J. Wesley Miller officiating. PLAINFIELD.

An Interesting Incident from War-time History Recalled.

Hiram Russell of Cabot recently related a strange coincidence to F. H. Bruffee, the local undertaker. On Dec. 14, the body of "Aunt" Harriet Scott, wife of Lieut. Scott, and who died in this town Dec. 11, was taken to Cabot for burial. At the close of the burial service Mr. Russell told Mr. Bruffee that he had twice assisted at the burial of Lieut. Scott and now was assisting in the final duties of Mrs. Scott's burial. Lieut. Scott was an officer in the Civil war. Mr. Russell was also a soldier in that war and in Lieut. Scott's company as was Willard Perry of this town. One day, while in a skirmish, Lieut. Scott was mortally wounded. The comrades did all they could for him, but he died in a short time. Fearing the enemy would take the body, Mr. Russell made a rifle coffin of boards taken from a nearby fence, in which they buried their lieutenant. Thinking that the home friends might some time wish to have the body removed, Mr. Russell wrote the name of Lieut. Scott on a slip of paper and put it in a bottle, then placed it on the grave. Later Lieut. Russell returned to his home in Cabot. The local order of Masons, of which Lieut. Scott was a member, wished the body of their brother brought home, and by the description given by Mr. Russell the grave was found by the Masons and the remains were taken to Cabot, where Mr. Russell again assisted in the burial.

Maple Leaf Camp, Modern Woodmen, Transact New Business.

At a well-attended meeting of Maple Leaf camp, No. 8395, M. W. of A., Thursday, Dec. 28, considerable business was transacted and the officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Consul, A. B. Jenkins; adviser, J. G. Pirie; clerk, J. J. Sullivan; banker, Walter W. Belleville; escort, A. J. Letourneau; watchman, Malcolm McLeod; physicians, E. H. Bailey, N. E. Avery; three-year trustee, A. J. Palmer; two-year trustee, M. N. Smith; one-year trustee, William W. Belleville; chief forester, M. P. Sullivan; special auditor, P. E. Pirie. After the meeting, the members adjourned to the banquet hall and enjoyed an excellent supper. The whole was under the excellent catering of Alex. McLeod, assisted by A. C. Rousseau. As toastmaster of the evening, A. B. Jenkins held sway. Many songs, several well-rendered recitations and many reminiscences of the past, which were royally received by the members, made an excellent good time.

The annual business meeting of the ladies' aid society of the Presbyterian church will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Westerville, on next Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. All those wishing to go will please meet at Johnson's livery about 6:30.

I am the black sheep of the family. I never liked to study when I was at school, and after quitting school I didn't like to work. I remember that as a boy during the marble season I took no interest in the game except "for keeps" and usually won all the other boys' marbles. When I came in from playing the game with my pockets loaded down with alleys and aces and bullseyes my father would look at them wonderingly.

When I was eighteen I was put to work. My employer owned a large number of dwelling houses, and they were mostly vacant. The reason for this was that he would do nothing for his tenants. They were all mortgaged to the same man, who couldn't get the interest on the mortgages. The mortgagee came into the office one day tearing mad and told my employer that he didn't know how to manage such property and the houses must be put into the hands of some one else. Hartwell, the owner, offered to put the management in my hands, to which Johnson, the mortgagee, assented. I suppose Hartwell thought he could make me do what he liked. But in that he was mistaken. I offered a big commission to agents to recommend the houses and gave the tenants everything they asked. The result was that within a year I had the houses all occupied, all in prime order and paying a good interest on the investment.

When I got things running I had nothing more to do, so I lit out into the world for a bit of excitement. I strolled down the street, with my hands in my pockets and saw a red flag out at the door of a handsome dwelling. I got some idea of the value of such property and thought I'd go in and attend the sale. Perhaps I would buy the property. I hadn't any money even to pay the percentage of the amount of purchase demanded when the property is knocked down to the highest bidder, but that didn't trouble me a bit. I had the assurance of Satan himself. So I went in and found a lot of bidders, each one acting as if he was afraid he would have the house on his hands. I estimated that the property was worth a lot more than any of the bids. I don't know why I did so. I only know that I felt certain of it. So I raised the last bid by $1,000. That scared everybody else off, for I put on a look as much as to say, "I'm bound to own this property if I have to pay double its value for it." The consequence was that it was knocked down to me for $21,000. The auctioneer called on me for the usual percentage of purchase, which was $2,100. As I had nothing but my wits to satisfy him, I proceeded to exercise them. I asked him if he would take my check, and he replied, "Not without it being certified." Then I asked him if he would wait till I sent a check to the bank for certification, and he said he would. Since I hadn't any check or check book—or bank for that matter—to draw on I was wondering what move I should make next, when the owner of the property rushed in and asked if the sale had taken place. When told that it had he sank in a chair and moaned.

"I've got the money," he said, "with which to pay off the mortgage."

"I thought the case must be one of foreclosure," I remarked. "I've bought the property dirt cheap. I'm ready to sell it back to you for 75 per cent of what it's worth. I consider it worth $40,000. I'll sell it to you for $30,000." The man fretted and fumed and dickered, but at last he accepted my terms.

"Just you give me $9,000 for my bargain," I said, "and I'll sign any paper you like."

He agreed to do so, and I made a quick profit. Then I told him that what I had said was true, and I thought I could sell the property for $40,000. He declined to bother with me, but within a year sold it for $65,000. It was all luck. A railroad terminal station was put up near the property.

I slapped that $9,000 around in all sorts of investments and every time I put it in I pulled it out with a lot of other dollars sticking to it. Sometimes I doubled it, twice I trebled it, and on one day I increased it tenfold.

When I had got a few hundred thousand together, I went home and asked father how he was getting on. He said he was very hard up. Our interview ended in my drawing him a check for double what he needed, then I sallied out to look around for more chances.

Not long after that a friend told me that he had asked my father to explain my success. My father told him that I was no good on the principles that govern ordinary mortals; that I had no sense, no management in the usual acceptance of that word—in short, that I was born for a ne'er-do-well, but there was something in my head somewhere to see things invisible to other people.

My friend asked father if he thought I had anything to do with the matter. Father said that while luck had a lot to do with every man's success, it had no more to do with mine than with that of others.

"What is this faculty of seeing things invisible to other persons?" I asked of my friend.

"Genius," was his reply.

I was no wiser than before.

CLAIMS BACON DESIGNED THE FIRST AIRSHIP

Dr. Owen, Cipher Expert, Lays New Honor at the Feet of His Idol.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 2.—Following closely on the announcement of Dr. Orville W. Owen that his researches in England for proof that Francis Bacon wrote the plays of William Shakespeare are fast nearing completion, comes the allegation of the doctor that Sir Francis is the inventor, or at least the designer, of an airship.

"We haven't discovered the airship," said the doctor Monday, "but we have found the descriptions of one in our excavations in the river Wye, which are undoubtedly the work of the man whom we are certain is the author of the plays attributed to Shakespeare. And he, of course, is Sir Francis Bacon."

"When do you intend to make these plans or descriptions public?" the doctor was asked.

"Only when we find them in their entirety. Our real mission is to find the plays and the conclusive evidence of their authorship. When we have done that we may turn to the other matter. But at present it is only secondary to us, no matter what its significance to the world of science may be."

The annual meeting of the Williams-town Cemetery association was called January 1 at the town hall at 2 p. m. Only a few members were present and the meeting was adjourned one week. It may not be generally understood that everyone who owns a lot in the village cemetery is a member of the association and can have a voice in the meetings. Heretofore too little interest has been shown, especially at the association meetings. It is, however, an important matter to all concerned. The village cemetery is a sacred spot, dear to the hearts of many of our townspeople. Their interest therein should be manifested next Monday afternoon by a large attendance at the meeting, when new officers will be elected and important matters of business considered.

Stops a Deep-Seated Cough in a Hurry

A Family Supply of Unequaled Cough Remedy for 50¢—Money Refunded if it Fails.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large proportion of plain syrup—a good ingredient, but one that anyone can make. A pint of granulated sugar, with 1 pint of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes, gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

A 50-cent bottle of Pinex, mixed in a pint bottle with home-made sugar syrup, gives you a full pint of refined better cough syrup than you could buy ready-mixed for $2.50. There's a clear saving of $2.00. Full directions in package.

And money couldn't buy a quicker, better remedy. Takes hold at once, gives almost instant relief, and usually stops the most obstinate, deep-seated cough in 24 hours. It stimulates the appetite, is slightly laxative and has a pleasant taste—children take it willingly. Splendid for hoarseness, asthma, chest pains and other throat troubles, and unequalled for prompt results in whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of imported Norway White Pine extract, and is rich in guaranine and other natural healing pine elements. Simply mix it as directed with sugar syrup or strained honey, and it is ready for use.

Used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WILL REMOVE ALL WOODWORK FROM WARSHIPS

Battle Practice Is Closely Approximate Actual War Conditions.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Every year the battle practice in the American navy more closely approximates the conditions of actual warfare. In the spring practice of the Atlantic fleet this year, the idea of ridding a ship as far as possible of combustible materials and woodwork that might cause splinters in action is to be carried out so far that the officers and men of some of the vessels may not even sleep "on the starboard side of a plank."

The plans contemplate the removal of all wooden boats, the bunks and the wooden furniture. Not even the mess tables will be left and the bluejackets will have to eat their meals squatting on the deck.

More damage and loss of life has resulted on shipboard in time of war from suffocating fires and flying splinters than from shot and shell wound, therefore it has been decided to determine just how much woodwork can be dispensed with when a craft clears for action.

The spring practice of the fleet in the West Indian waters, with Quetzanango as the base, will occupy ten days more after two months, beginning Jan. 10. After that is completed the big ships will come north to the southern drill grounds off the Chesapeake capes for the regular battle practice.
