Just After He Had Lighted and Placed an Infernal Machine

BEFORE THE DOOR OF INTENDED VICTIM

Police Say They Found Other Bombs in the Man's House

New York, Oct. 21.—One of the boldest bomb throwing attempts in the history of Black Hand outrages in New York was frustrated early yesterday morning by a police trap and the alleged bomb man, a young Italian, taken into custody after a chase. This case centered in the Italian section of Williamsburg, where there have been several bomb explosions recently. Besides catching their prisoner, the police have been receiving letters demanding from $100 to $1,000. These he turned over to the police, and five men from the 7th detective division were put on the case. The Italian's refusal to meet the demands for money resulted in his first bomb being set just a week ago yesterday. That blew out the front of his store, but the culprit got away. Sunday Triolo got what purported to be a final warning that unless he paid over the money his shop and home would be blown up without further parley.

After the receipt of this communication the police tightened their watch on Triolo's store. Detectives Behan, Brown, Reif, Fiaschetti and Capone, garbed in shabby clothes, took up their positions near the macaroni shop last night and waited. By midnight the street was quiet and the bomb men had still to make good the threat.

About 12:30 o'clock in the morning the watchers noticed a man at Johnson avenue and Humboldt street, a half block away from Triolo's. He stood there a few moments, looked up and down the street, and then sauntered in the direction of the macaroni store. He was smoking a cigar and as the man came nearer the detectives saw him to be well dressed and light complexioned, an unusual coloring for an Italian. When he was a short distance from Triolo's, the watchers declare, he reached inside his coat and next they saw a sputtering flame as he applied his cigar to what turned out to be a fuse. The detectives said that the fuse must have been about three feet long.

Still concealed, the detectives say they saw the Italian walk hurriedly toward Triolo's place of business and, as he went by, toss the bomb in the doorway. The man then ran on in the direction of Montrose avenue and at the same time the watchers got busy. While Behan, Brown and Reif made after the Italian, Capone and Fiaschetti, at the risk of their lives, turned their attention to the still sputtering fuse. They stamped on it and succeeded in extinguishing the spark when there was less than eight inches of the fuse left.

In the meantime their three colleagues caught the fugitive just as he turned into Montrose avenue. There was a short struggle and the man was overpowered. Bomb and prisoner were taken to the Stagg street police station, where, according to the police, the man said he was John Lannone, a carpenter, 36 years old, of 111 Moore street, Williamsburg.

At Lannone's home, where the Italian lived with his wife and three children, the police declare they found five more bombs and a box of dynamite hidden underneath a couch. A 4-year-old boy was sleeping on this couch when the detectives arrived. Mrs. Lannone denied all knowledge of the presence of the explosive.

The infernal machine intended for Triolo was an oval-shaped contrivance about seven inches long and contained dynamite.

TOOK BAD YEAR FOR EVIDENCE

Railroads Are Charged with Juggling to Gain Sympathy in Rate Increase

NO DENIAL MADE OF THE ASSERTION

War Charged with Part Responsibility for Poor Business

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—Yesterday's hearing before the interstate commerce commission on the application of the eastern railroads for increased freight rates, on their contention that financial exigencies brought on by the European war make these needful, was devoted largely to a cross-examination of President Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio on the relations of that system to the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton.

Louis D. Brandeis, special counsel for the commission, laid stress on his question as to the Baltimore & Ohio investment of more than $20,000,000 in the Ohio line, and its assumption of obligations of a like amount. The witness said the investment represented only an interest charge of $1,000,000 annually, and insisted that it would not have affected the present situation of the line.

"If you did not have the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton would have the money you invested, would you not?" suggested Commissioner Meyers.

"Certainly," answered Mr. Willard. He added that he still maintained the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton deal had no bearing on the present need of railroads for added revenue. He declared the present condition of all railroads was such that they were compelled to allow their rolling stock and roadways to drop below standard.

"How much have you spent on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton in the last 18 months?" asked Mr. Brandeis. He added that the Ohio line had shown an annual deficit of more than $3,000,000 for years before its purchase by the Baltimore & Ohio. Mr. Willard again replied that this road was not urging the status of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton as a reason for granting a rate advance.

Commissioner Meyers also sought to draw from the witness information as to what railroad stockholders demanded in cash as payment on their investments, and with what proportion of new work accomplished along the line they would be satisfied.

Mr. Willard argued that substantial payments on invested capital were necessary to ensure the credit of railroads and enable them to borrow the money needed for important work.

Taking up a statement filed by the carriers to support their plea, Clifford Thorne, appearing for several state railroad commissions and shippers' associations, asked Mr. Willard if it were not true that the years picked by the railroads for comparison, to show failure of new investments to earn any return, were the only years that would show that result. The statement compared figures for 1910 and 1913. Mr. Thorne read figures for 1913 and several other years both before and after 1910, which showed earnings on new capital.

Mr. Willard did not challenge the figures read, and his cross-examination closed.

Charles A. Conant had prepared a lengthy statement purporting to show that not only had the war tended to close European money markets to carriers and threatened the return of $4,000,000,000 in American securities at depreciated rates, but that the purchasing power of carriers' receipts had fallen greatly.

STEAM TRAWLER SINKS FISHING SCHOONER

The Annie Perry and Surf Crash Near Entrance to Main Ship Channel—Crew Saved and Vessel May Be Raised.

Boston, Oct. 21.—While coming into the harbor from the fishing grounds yesterday the Provincetown fishing schooner Annie Perry was sunk by the steam trawler Surf, outward bound. The 26 men of the schooner's crew were saved and brought to the fish pier by the Surf.

The collision occurred about 1 1/2 m. near the entrance to the main ship channel, and about halfway between the Point Alberton and New Boston lights. According to the Surf's crew the weather was clear. The trawler struck the schooner on the port side, near the forward rigging, making a large hole. All of the crew except Captain Manuel Egan and the dockwatch were sleeping, but all managed to escape. Some of the fishermen got away in two junks, but six were obliged to climb into the upperpart of a mast of debris which floated clear as the schooner's deck was submerged. None all were taken aboard the Surf.

At low tide about 20 feet of the Perry's masts, with the sails set, projected above the surface of the water. The main beam, which was broken in two places, was visible and so was the bowprit, which appeared to have parted from the schooner. The schooner lies in only seven fathoms of water, and possibly will be raised. Joseph Cabot and others of Provincetown are the owners of the Perry, which is of 116 tons gross register, 31 feet long and 24 feet beam. She was built at Essex in 1905. She was loaded with 20,000 pounds of fish.

The Surf belongs to the Bay State Fishing company and was in command of Captain James Doyle.

CLERGYMAN DROPPED DEAD ON STREET

Rev. John Hamlin Coleman of Rutland Had Not Been in Good Health Recently—He Was Superintendent of Burlington District of Methodist Churches.

Rutland, Oct. 21.—Rev. John Hamlin Coleman of Lincoln avenue, superintendent of the Burlington district of Methodist churches, dropped dead at about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in front of the John B. Stearns store on Merchants Row. While walking along the sidewalk with his son, he suddenly fell to the pavement. He gasped a few names after falling but death came almost immediately. Dr. L. A. Heide and Dr. S. W. Hammond were called and they worked over the man for a half hour, with the assistance of Policeman Thomas C. Ellworth, in an effort to revive him by means of artificial respiration and other methods but their work was without effect.

The remains of Dr. Coleman were taken into the Stearns undertaking rooms and later moved to his late home. Death was probably due to cerebral hemorrhage. It was stated that the clergyman had never had any attacks of the kind before but he had been in a run down condition of late and was taking a rest. He was on his way to a trolley car to attend a Methodist preachers' institute at Fair Haven when stricken.

The deceased was one of the foremost clergymen of the denomination in New England. He was born at Northampton, N. Y., September 20, 1847. He received his education at Jonesville academy, Montpelier seminary and Fort Edward institute. He received the degree of D. D. from Syracuse university in 1889 and that of LL. D. from Nebraska Wesleyan university in 1911. The same year Williamette university of Salem, Ore., honored him in a similar manner.

Dr. Coleman was ordained as a Methodist minister at Troy, N. Y., in 1873. His first pastorate was at the First Methodist church at Albany, N. Y. He also held pastorates at Gloversville, N. Y., Troy, N. Y., Glens Falls, N. Y., and Saratoga, N. Y. He was president of Williamette university from 1902 to 1907 and was made district superintendent of the Burlington district in 1911.

Dr. Coleman had been delegate of the conference seven times. He was a trustee of Wesleyan university, 1895 to 1900, and of Syracuse university, from 1911 until the time of his death.

The clergyman is survived by his wife, a daughter, Miss C. Ada Coleman, and a son, Henry Hamlin Coleman.

Acute Articular Rheumatism

Relieved by Anti-Kamnia Tablets

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, though it is generally believed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. It may be also said with equal truth that no remedy has been found which is a specific in all cases. In fact the literature of rheumatism shows that there are only a few drugs which have not been given a trial. In the hands of one observer or another certain fact has been used with the utmost satisfaction; others have found the same remedy to be a great disappointment. All physicians however agree that every method of treatment is aided by the administration of some remedy to relieve the pain and quiet the nervous system and Dr. W. S. Schmitt expresses the opinion of thousands of practitioners when he says that Anti-Kamnia Tablets should be given preference over all other remedies for the relief of the pain in all forms of rheumatism. These tablets can be purchased in any quantity. They are also unsurpassed in headaches, neuralgia and all pain. Ask for A-K Tablets.

BABY IN RASH OVER HEAD AND BODY

Took Out All His Hair, Itched and Burned So Could Not Sleep. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Eruption Healed.

Babesman, Maine.—"When my baby boy was about three weeks old he broke out with a rash all over his head and body which took out all his hair and itched and burned so he could not sleep. It came in the form of water blisters and when he would scratch them they would make wet eruptions which continued to grow worse until they were all over his head and body. His clothes would chafe them so that I would have to keep him bandaged.

"I tried many different kinds of soap and remedies but it continued to grow worse until I obtained a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed him with the Cuticura Soap and then I applied the Cuticura Ointment. I could see that it helped him from the very first. The wet places had taken his hair all out but by the time I had used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment three weeks the eruptions were all healed and his skin as clear and smooth as ever. He now has a fine head of hair and there has never been any sign of the trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. John Collins, Feb. 15, 1914.
