Let in the Sunlight.

We are all too apt to shut out the light in our modern houses, because we do not realize the wonderful vital power of light and sunshine, but frequently mope in negative semi-darkness. There is a closer connection between the vibrating power of light and the life-force than we may perchance know. Let us try the experiment, and see the effect of light and cheer in dull interiors, and upon our depressed feelings. There need not be a glare; the light can be regulated to suit changing conditions of the day or season. It is one of the interesting problems in the adjustment of window draperies—Ada Bailey in The Countrywide Magazine for October.
