Gilbert B. Newton, Government Inspector, Washington, D. C., was in town on business connected with the electric plant on Saturday.

Mrs. Flora Balch has been appointed chairman of the Child Welfare work for Essex county and is placing the work in the hands of town chairmen as fast as possible. Mrs. W. W. Bronson has accepted the office for the town of Lunenburg, Mrs. Lynn Noyes for Guildhall and Mrs. S. S. Benton, Maidstone.

Mrs. W. C. McGraw and daughter, Beatrice and Master Lawrence, are visiting friends in Lewiston, Me. Mr. and Mrs. Henry King and daughters from Randolph, Mass., were over Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. James King and other relatives in town.

Miss Helen Pond returned on Saturday from Ocean Park, Me., where she has been assisting Mrs. W. A. Morgan for the past month.

Mrs. Stephen Kelley of Littleton was the over Sunday guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Balch of South Lunenburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Thompson have returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Murray Dodge at West Troy.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Turner and sons spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turner of Canaan.

The fair and sale under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid societies on Friday evening was a success both socially and financially, about $85 being added to the treasury. In the evening Miss Blakesley of New York city danced, Rev. Glenn Douglass gave several readings, G. C. Pigeon sang and Mrs. E. C. Jewell and Miss Anna Cole played a piano duet. The hall was well filled and the evening much enjoyed.

Rides Well at Ninety-five. Jockeys, no matter what their age, are generally referred to by those not closely in touch with racing as "the boy on So-and-So," but a stable "lad" still going well at ninety-five is certainly hard to beat. There is one, as shown by the following clipping from the London Sportsman of recent date: "One of the brightest and most alert of the 'lads' riding horses around the paddock at Windsor prior to their races was old Faulkner, the grandfather of the steepchase jockey of that name. He is ninety-five years old. His memory is of the best and so is his hearing. He has been connected with horses all his life and many a tale of the turf he can tell."

Lessons Learned Through Errors. Instruction does not prevent waste of time or mistakes, and mistakes themselves are often the best teachers of all.—J. A. Froude.

CITY OF NEWPORT

Charles Miles of Barton purchased a Buick six of the Orleans Motor Co. Monday night and started on an extended trip to Massachusetts early Tuesday morning.

The young people who are rehearsing for the home talent minstrel show announce that the same will be staged in Lane's Opera House, Tuesday, Sept. 17, one night only.

The W. W. Blodgett house on Third street is being reshingled.

The adjourned meeting of the board of civil authority will be held at the City Hall Saturday, Sept. 7, from 2 until 12 in the afternoon, for the purpose of revising the check list.

Old and True Expression. The origin of the expression, "In union there is strength," is not known, but the sentiment in various forms has been current a very long time. A Latin author of ancient time said: "By union the smallest states thrive by discord the greatest are destroyed." The American author of "The Flag of Our Union," said: "United we stand; divided we fall."

Iron Rust. Few stains are so obstinate as iron rust is. They may, however, be removed from delicate fabrics by covering the spot thickly with cream tartar, then twisting the cloth to keep the tartar on the spot itself. Put that part into a pan of cold water, bring gradually to boiling point, and afterwards rinse in the usual way.—Exchange.

Daily Thought. Light is the task when many share the toll.—Homer.

REALLY NO SECRET

Power to Charm Lies in Forgetfulness of Self.

Women Who Fascinate Have Simply Developed the Art or Power of Putting Others "On Good Terms With Themselves."

A vivacious woman writer seeking the secret of feminine fascination, finds it in the art or power some women have of charming others by putting them, as a bluff Britisher phrased it, "on ripping good terms with themselves." Is not this a characteristic of almost all those persons, men and women, whom we like the best and enjoy the most? Do they not, either by artifice or by instinct, endeavor to make the people they meet feel that they amount to something, know something, have some excellence, attractiveness or interesting qualities, and thus put them on pleasant terms with themselves. The persons who are least adept at this or least inclined to try it are the self-centered, self-important people completely absorbed in their own affairs and not wise or well-bred in little worlds of which they are the centers, and may be said in a certain sense to revolve about themselves.

This is a characteristic brought up from lower forms of life from which we are ancestrally derived and only in part outgrown. For most animals the only concern of the least importance are those which directly affect themselves. They are egocentric. The things that touch them make up their world and they have no interests outside of that. More than any other animal the dog can sink his personality so to speak, subordinate himself and make his master's interests his own. Only infrequent individuals of other species can or will do this. Hence dogs as a rule are more companionable for man than any other living creatures below him in the evolutionary scale.

But to return to human beings. Josephine was the most beloved and charming woman in France because she took a genuine and kindly interest in the affairs of all with whom she came in touch. She was outgoing, inclusive in her sympathies and thus counteracted antagonism created by Napoleon, who was self-centered to an extraordinary degree. Not to multiply examples, does not experience teach all observant people that in selfishness lies the secret of charm? Are not the lovable people those whose love goes out spontaneously, or appears to? Is not egocentricity, entire absorption in themselves, a characteristic held in common by most of the people who get on one's nerves? Kind hearts are more than coronets, said Tennyson.

More attractive, therefore, than beauty or the brilliancy and glitter of intellectuality is the drawing power of kindly consideration for others. Fascination is born of the heart, not of the mind; and whether instinctive or acquired, would seem to be the art of entering into the lives of others and putting them, as the Englishman said, on good terms with themselves.—Rochester Post-Express.

She Knew Better Anyhow.

A certain small town, seven miles from somewhere else, as the crow flies, boasted only two physicians, Doctor Smith and Doctor Brown. There was considerable rivalry between the two knights of the pill and powder and when Doctor Smith received a very urgent call from a young farmer about four miles in the country, he left an office full of patients, cranked up what has to be cranked up and was off.

When he arrived at the farmer's house he found that a three-year-old "farmer" had cut his finger. The doctor was chagrined when he saw the "serious" nature of the accident. He thought of the office full of patients he had left and had visions of them walking in single file to the office of Doctor Brown.

"It was very, very silly of you to call me on this case," he said, somewhat testily, to the farmer's wife.

"I know it was, but Doctor Brown was out."

Strained His Telescope.

The oldest inhabitant of Little Cockleton possesses a telescope which he never uses.

"Why don't you make use of it sometimes, James?" a neighbor asked.

"It used to be a good 'n," James said sorrowfully, "but it's broke now."

"Broke?" the neighbor asked.

"How's that?"

"Well," James replied, "it was such a good 'n that I could see the old church steeple five miles away quite plain, but Joseph, the scoundrel, got the lens of it and tried to make out of the steeple of the Methodist chapel mornin' ten miles away. He tried and tried and couldn't, so that he strained my glass and it's never been right since. Brat Joseph."

Commander a "Good Fellow."

One of the home-guard boys had on a uniform that was too large for him. While waiting on the station platform for the train to come the commander noticed this boy and coming up to him turned him around and around, looking him over on every side. Finally he said: "Young man, that suit does not fit you."

The boy, not realizing to whom he was talking, promptly retorted: "Well, that is no reason why I should be made a windmill of, is it?"

Luck favored him and the commander laughed.

COKE FOR FUEL

Will Be Used More than Ever to Help Fuel Shortage

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 4.—Seventy per cent more coke than ever before will be available this year to help solve the fuel shortage. This supply will be further increased by the development of tar, coke oven gas and other by-products newly dignified in war time as available fuels. These were some new facts presented to the American Institute of Mining Engineers in session here in their effort to fill some of the country's needs.

The pulverizing of coal to attain the greatest efficiency was advocated before the mining engineers. Some of the advantages of pulverized coal were stated as follows: The utilization of every heat unit in the coal, the reduction of labor for handling coal, the maintenance of a constant temperature in the furnace.
