Milton J. Warner Secures Lincoln Coupe at Highwater

McGourty will be brought back to Fitchburg when St. Johnsbury authorities are finished with him.

Caledonia county officials today accompanied Milton J. Warner of New Haven, Ct., to Highwater, P. Q. where he was to recover his Lincoln coupe, stolen from him when a trio of bandits held him up at West Danville last Friday.

The Lincoln coupe has not been harmed in the least by Mills and Barreibeau, the two bandits who have been driving it since they stole it from Mr. Warner.

When Mills was being taken to St. Johnsbury from Highwater by the officials Tuesday afternoon, he said that the Lincoln coupe was in poor shape when he took it. It needed oiling and much tinkering here and there, he declared.

The Cadillac car which Mills and McGourty stole at Fitchburg, Mass., was referred to by the former as the "Cadie". Mills said, "that 'Cadie' could walk away from most anything I ever saw."

Mills and McGourty are still in Caledonia county jail awaiting disposal of their cases by the officials.
