SAFETY FIRST

The versatility of the travelling man is proverbial and now it seems that a juror in the Long trial had his life saved at the Montpelier House Friday morning when he thought he was choking to death while eating an egg at his breakfast. The commercial traveller shouted "Hold him boys" and then grabbed the frightened man by the throat. His mouth opened automatically to get some air and the stranger thrust his hand into the juror's mouth as far as his wrist. The egg, etcetera, followed the line of least resistance down the man's esophagus. In the meantime a doctor had arrived, but his services were not needed. Whether the juror had a storage egg or a chicken will never be known, but he recovered sufficiently from his gentle treatment to resume his seat on the jury panel Friday morning.

"HIS MAJESTY, THE AMERICAN"
NEWEST FAIRBANKS' FILM

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in "His Majesty, the American"

The first motion picture to be made by Douglas Fairbanks, as a member of the "Big Four"—United Artists Corporation to use its full name—has been delivered to New England theatres.

The United Artists Corporation is made up of Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith.

The first picture to be put out by this new giant organization is "His Majesty, the American." The plans of the company are so full of promise of better things all around in the motion picture business, that theatres the country over have been most anxious to secure the first production to be made under these ideal conditions.

Marjory Daw plays the leading female role in the picture and Frank Campeau, Sam Sothern, brother of E. H. Sothern, Lillian Langdon, Albert McQuarrie and other notables are included in the cast.

In addition to a company of high-salaried actors that in themselves guarantee splendid support for the agile "Doug," "His Majesty, the American" is said to have cost a fortune in point of actual production.

Mr. Fairbanks has set a mark which it will be hard to approach in settings for his new picture. Money has been spent lavishly in providing the atmosphere necessary for the successful portrayal of the story but the results have completely justified the tremendous outlay.

Edgar Healy, special advance representative for the F. Ray Comstock and William Elliot Theatrical Enterprises is in town arranging for the presentation of "Oh, Lady, Lady" at the Colonial Saturday, Oct. 25.

This is the splendid musical production which leaped into instant popularity at the Princess Theater, New York, where it is played for over a year and it is promised that it will be produced here just as played during the record engagements in New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

Came to St. Johnsbury Ten Years Ago—Has Had Trouble Ever Since

John Campbell, of 59 Railroad St., St. Johnsbury, Vt., who has lived in this place ten years and who is a well known shophand, says: "I suffered with kidney trouble for thirteen years. I came to St. Johnsbury ten years ago but my trouble didn't let up. I had terrible headaches, was dizzy and was short of breath. I had severe pains in my back and hips and my kidneys bothered me so I would have to get up six times during the night. I was nervous and trembled and I realized I would have to get some relief somehow. I began taking Goldine and it certainly took hold of my case in the right way. I had taken less than one bottle when I got relief from my kidney trouble. I only have to get up once every night now, and I feel much better and stronger since taking Goldine.

Ask Mrs. J. M. Clark about GOLDINE for liver trouble.

Goldine is sold by the following dealers: Brigham's Drug Store, Welcome B. Eastman, Frank G. Landry C. A. Searles & Co., Simpson's Pharmacy. Also throughout the county in Passumpsic, Barnet, West Barnet, Peacham, East Peacham, Ryegate, East Ryegate, Groton, Danville, West Danville, Walden, South Walden, North Danville, Hardwick, East Hardwick, Greensboro Bend, Sheffield, Wheelock, Lyndon Center, Lyndon, Lyndonville, Burke, West Burke, East Burke, Sutton, Concord and North Concord. In case your dealer does not stock Goldine, ask him to secure it for you through the Burlington Drug Co. of Burlington, Vt., or Gibson-Snow Co., of Albany, N. Y.
