If you found your wife under a bear-rug in another man's apartment and she poked her head out and said "Wuff! Wuff!"—what would you think? That's one of the situations which caused such unusual complications in Avery Hopwood's funniest farce, "Fair and Warmer", with May Allison the star. A comedy with a cocktail, complications and a kick. A hilarious farce of matrimony and misunderstandings. It's playing at the Globe Theatre today and tomorrow.

Maj. Robert Warwick is presented at the Please U in that wonderful story "Told in the Hills". It is the greatest western out-door picture ever screened. It was filmed in the Rocky Mountains and the canyons of Idaho, and a whole tribe of full blooded Indians take part. All these stupendous scenes of nature are in keeping with the powerful story that is revealed. It is one of those great wholesome, heart warming things that you enjoy most. It is the highest type of entertainment, and the magnificent scale upon which it is produced life it far above the run of features. Maj. Warwick is supported by three stars. Ann Little, Wanda Hawley and Eileen Percy, some trio for a single picture. This great combination of talent has made a great photoplay. At the Please U Christmas day only.
