SOVIETS GAIN IN ARMENIA

Ousted the Government of Pres. Khatitian in the Capital Erivan

WHEN PRESIDENT REFUSED PASSAGE

To the Russian Bolshevik Forces Wishing to Join Turkish Nationalists

Constantinople, May 11 (By the Associated Press).—Russian bolshevik forces in Azerbaijan recently demanded that Armenia surrender Karabagh and permit them to cross Armenia to Asiatic Turkey, where they intend to cooperate with Mustapha Kemal, leader of the Turkish nationalists movement. This demand was rejected by President Khatitian, but soviet committees in Erivan protested and mustered sufficient power to oust the Khatitian government.

While the Russian bolsheviks in Azerbaijan are comparatively few in numbers, they have formed an organization which seems to be effective. While the republic of Georgia has so far resisted pressure from the soviets, it is expected to surrender in a short time, as it has oil supplies sufficient for only six weeks. Unless the bolsheviks are checked by the reverses suffered on the Polish and Ukrainian fronts, it seems inevitable that Georgia will succumb.

Turkish newspapers published in Anatolia disclose that many agitators from Russia are at work in Mustapha Kemal's forces. Sheriff Maratoff, formerly member of the Islamic commission in Moscow, has recently been speaking at large towns, on "Great Russia."

Turkish nationalist troops have repulsed forces loyal to the sultan near Ismid, and are advancing toward the Dardanelles. They have released all prisoners recently taken at Brussa and Adabazar, who would agree to join Mustapha Kemal's army.

Commanders of the sultan's forces arrived here today from Anatolia and conferred as to their defensive campaign. Desertions to the nationalist army threaten the sultan's forces with collapse.

SOVIET GOVERNMENT Has Been Set Up in Erivan, Capital of Armenia.

Constantinople, May 11.—(By the Associated Press).—A local soviet government has been established in Erivan, capital of Armenia, displacing that of President Khatitian, according to a despatch received by the Armenian patriarchate here.

BROOKFIELD

Union of First and Second Churches Celebrated by Inspiring Services.

Two inspiring services on Sunday auspiciously opened the celebration of the union of the First and Second churches of Brookfield into the First Congregational church. Many people from the surrounding churches were in attendance and the people of the community turned out in goodly numbers.

The preacher of the morning, Rev. Charles C. Merrill, secretary of the state conference of churches, brought a challenging message, summoning the church to produce the type of men and women who should be as hiding places from the storm, who should save our communities, as five righteous men might have saved ancient Sodom.

summons men to the worship of God and only those who worship grow. It stands for the Christ in the world. It goes forth as a missionary church, calling us from our selfishness to minister to all mankind. It was a splendid utterance worthy of the occasion and will not soon be forgotten.

The music provided for these services was furnished by an enlarged choir, including several from the East Brookfield church and drilled by A. G. Bigelow. Mr. Bigelow was instrumental also in securing a male quartet from Barre, consisting of Messrs. E. A. Ingalls, W. A. Coose, A. G. Bigelow and G. F. Mackay. Miss Gladys N. Gale accompanied the quartet. Both the singing of the choir and that of the quartet was beyond criticism and such as can seldom be heard anywhere.

The trimming was done by some of the young ladies, under the direction of Mrs. L. W. Morse, and was very beautiful and effective. A notable feature of the decoration were three streamers, with the dates 1787, that of the founding of the First church; 1848, that of the founding of the Second church, and 1920, the date of their union. Several young men assisted in the ushering.

The celebration was brought to a close by a concert and social on Tuesday evening. Mention will be made of this affair next week. The thanks of the church are due to all who aided in making the occasion so successful.
