

Prices— Up or Down?

High prices for livestock increase the producer's income. Low prices decrease it and even result in losses. Similarly, high prices for meat increase consumer's expenses.

But Swift & Company as a middleman does not benefit by high or low prices. Our income depends not on a high level of prices or a low level, but rather on the margin between the livestock price and the meat and by-products price.

The company's only concern, in whether prices should be high or low, is that they should be high enough to satisfy producers and low enough to please consumers; but over the movement of these prices Swift & Company has no control.

Swift & Company is compelled by competition to pay high enough prices for livestock to secure an adequate supply. We must sell meat at a price low enough to make it move. We endeavor also, between the two prices, to secure a margin large enough to pay all expenses and yield a fair profit.

Our profit for 1919 averaged less than two cents on each dollar of sales, or 6 1/2 per cent on money invested.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

JAMES O'NEIL, ACTOR, IS DEAD

Well-Known Stage Man Passed Away at New London, Conn.

ILL TWO MONTHS AND IN HOSPITAL

His Wife and Sons Were at Bedside at Time of Death

New London, Conn., Aug. 10.—James O'Neil, the actor, died at the Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital early to-day. He had been ill for two months at the hospital suffering from an internal disorder. His wife and sons were at the bedside. He was 70 years of age.

Mr. O'Neil had been in a state of coma for a month. He was left in a weak condition nearly two years ago, after he was struck by an automobile in New York. When his health began to fail last spring he was sent to St. Vincent's hospital, New York. After leaving that institution he suffered a relapse and was brought here.

For more than fifteen years and in more than 6,000 performances, James O'Neil played the part of Edmund Dantes in "The Count of Monte Christo" until his name became so associated with that play that in the minds of drama lovers that to mention one was to suggest the other. It was his great part, the character in which he achieved his greatest success and, despite his efforts to discard it for others, he was often compelled to return to it in gratification of public demand or at the request of theatrical managers.

Mr. O'Neil made his first appearance in that play at Booth's theatre in New York, in 1883, under the management of John Stetson. When Charles P. Thorne, who played the part of Dantes, died, Mr. O'Neil took the part and thereafter played it continuously for years.

An unusual incident in Mr. O'Neil's career was his attempt to impersonate Christ in a Passion Play produced in 1887 at San Francisco, where O'Neil was then a popular player. The effort was frowned upon by the authorities despite the fervor and reverence with which Mr. O'Neil essayed the part and, after running for a few weeks, it had to be withdrawn. Later an attempt was made by Henry E. Abbey to produce the Passion play in New York with Mr. O'Neil in the leading role but it was prevented by the authorities.

Mr. O'Neil was brought to this country when a small child from the home of his parents in Kilkenny, Ireland. His first appearance on the stage was in the National theatre at Cincinnati in 1858. Subsequently he appeared at the St. Louis Varieties, played for a season in Cincinnati, was leading juvenile in a Baltimore company, played in a Chicago stock company for two years, and appeared with Adelaide Neilson and Edwin Booth in classic plays.

He went to New York in 1875 and played "Pierre" in "The Two Orphans," the prince in "The Dime-theatre," and as Joan Henshaw in "A Celebrated Case." Beginning in 1888 he achieved an enviable reputation as Artagnan in "The Musketeers." He attempted many years ago to retire from the stage but often was recalled to appear in romantic dramas in which he was at his best.

VILLA GAVE HIMSELF UP

Amid Much Cheering and Self-Laudation By the Bandit

ASSUMES STAND OF PATRIOTISM

Says He Surrendered to Preserve Mexican Integrity

San Pedro, Coahuila, Mexico, via Laredo Junction, Aug. 10 (By the Associated Press).—Francisco Villa marched into San Pedro Monday night between the lines of a cheering population which greeted him with cheers of "Viva Villa." Behind him came his band of faithful followers, which with their leader surrendered to the de la Huerta government under the terms agreed upon recently at Sabinas. As he drew up before the main Plaza of the Mexican town, a cheering throng of three thousand gathered around him, the chieftain indicating that he was about to speak to them.

"I surrendered," he said because further fighting in Mexico means intervention by the United States. "They call me a bandit. They call me the worst man in Mexico, but I would preserve our nationality by avoiding intervention."

There were 900 men in the band, which Villa led into San Pedro, all of whom later pitched camp close by this little town, after a 24-hour march across desert country without water for man or beast.

Villa's entrance into San Pedro marked the first time in 10 years of revolution that the bandit leader had entered a city without planning to conquer it or being a hunted fugitive.

He was greeted and embraced by generals, who, two weeks ago, were leading thousands of soldiers in an attempt to capture him.

In turn the bandit leader embraced former enemies, and later in conversation with the Associated Press correspondent, declared he was "in a mood where I would like to embrace my worst enemy."

"It is time for peace," he continued to the correspondent. "It is time for peace in Mexico. I have lost many brothers; thousands of friends and relatives. I know many others who likewise have suffered such a loss. Many others have had many enemies, but now I want everybody to forget their enmity and be friends."

Villa said he wanted to show his "men could work if they wanted to work."

His surrender, he declared, was due to his desire to see the country return to peace. One of Villa's soldiers told the correspondent that the campaign in the last few weeks and months had been harder than work, so the men decided they wanted to return to work. Villa, it is understood, will rest here for a couple of days and then proceed to Gomez Palacio to collect the year's pay for his men promised by the de la Huerta government, later to take up farming in Durango.

WANDERER RETURNS HOME.

Arthur B. Pease of Brattleboro lived on Berries Nearly a Week.

Brattleboro, Aug. 10.—After going without food for nearly a week, except what berries he found, and having no shelter except the woods, Arthur B. Pease, an employee of the composing room of the Reformer, who disappeared last week Tuesday morning, returned to town about 1 o'clock yesterday morning and made himself known to Policeman Ellis G. Worden, who took charge of him until his brother, Royston Pease of Chicago, who had been here looking for him several days, came and took him to the home of Frank B. Tenney of 192 Main street, where he has roomed.

He is in fairly good condition, and he can account for a large part of the time since he left home, but portions of the time are a blank to him. He lost his hat and glasses and his clothes were soggy from being out through the hard thunder storm Sunday, but apparently he did not take cold, and he is rational. His brother will take him to Hyde Park, where his parents and a married sister live. Dr. Thomas Rice, who attended him, thinks that after being on a farm for a time he will be all right again.

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Now I Can Walk," Says Mrs. South-scott of Medina.

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all drug stores, for 25 cents a large box."

Read this letter, written February 14, 1912, by Mrs. Albert Southcott, of Medina, N. Y. It seems like a miracle, but it is true, every word of it.

"I know it because I feel similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for all sores, eczema and piles."

"Dear Sir:—I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcers. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just one dollar's worth of the same I am cured. The ulcer was nine inches by five inches, it all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's Ointment."

"You may see this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it. Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.—Ad."
