MONTPELIER

Work is nearing completion in the new room in which the adjutant general will have his private office in the State House. The room which adjoins the main office formerly was occupied by the safe. The safe was enclosed in a brick covering which measured 16 inches through the sides and was 2 1/2 feet thick overhead. All this brick has been removed and the walls painted and whitewashed. A radiator has been installed and new floor covering will soon be laid. An opening has been cut in the floor of the main office and cement steps constructed leading to the basement of the State House where the vault is now located. The adjutant general expects to move his new office some time during the coming week.

Franklin S. Billings, lieutenant-governor-elect, was in the city Friday.
