ST. ALBANS, VT.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1869.

St. Albans Town Meeting.

The following memorial of the Town of St. Albans to the President of the United States we presume will be read by all virtuous, true Republicans, with equal interest and sensibility.

TO THOMAS JEFFERSON, ESQ., President of the United States: A MEMORIAL Of the Inhabitants of the Town of St. Albans.

To investigate in a becoming manner, the measures of Government, and with Republican frankness to ask redress of grievances, are privileges guaranteed by our happy Constitution, and of which we, as freemen, cannot be deprived.

That after the Act of Congress of the 22d of December last, laying a general embargo on the commerce and shipping of the United States, the inhabitants of this District, no longer finding in the maritime States a profitable market for their articles of exportation, turned their attention to Canada, as a commercial intercourse with that place afforded them the only prospect of exchanging their surplus productions for many of the conveniences and even necessities of life.

Resolved, That the foregoing memorial be signed by the Selectmen in behalf of the Town, and published in the St. Albans Advertiser, and that a printed copy thereof be transmitted as soon as may be, to the Executive of the United States.

such law, can in any possible degree tend to the welfare of the Union.

That however unequal and oppressive the operation of this last act may have been on your memorialists and the inhabitants of this District generally, yet still they retain a becoming confidence in the measures of administration; neither harboring nor exciting a spirit of improper disquietude.

And your memorialists feel it a duty which they owe to themselves and to the good people of this District to declare on this occasion that in no part of the Union do the citizens entertain more just and noble sentiments of civil liberty; a more ardent and undeviating attachment of the true principles of Republican Government, or a greater veneration for the majesty of the laws; that therefore, however grievous may be the burdens under which they labor, still they are mindful of their duty as citizens. That with whatever solicitude they may regard their property, the hard earnings of their industry and labor, and with whatever sensibility they may feel its depreciation or its destruction, yet to them the merited appeal of TRUE AND FAITHFUL CITIZENS is far more valuable, more dear and sacred.

Your memorialists further state that, to a people who stand as a FRONT GUARD between their country and a foreign kingdom, between the heritage of freedom and the territory of a monarch, the unmerited imputation of insurrection and rebellion is of all things the most degrading, the most insupportable, especially when it is considered that during the revolutionary struggles with Great Britain, and on all occasions since, when called on by the Government, the Green Mountain Boys have manifested an alacrity of spirit, and a promptitude of exertion that justly and incontestably characterize them as the true supporters of Government and law.

In fine, since Congress have confided to the wisdom and prudence of the Executive of the United States a discretionary power to remove the restrictions of which your memorialists complain, they present to him their ardent request, that the aforementioned law of March 42 may be immediately discontinued, pursuant to the power in him reposed. And your memorialists, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Resolved, That the foregoing memorial be signed by the Selectmen in behalf of the Town, and published in the St. Albans Advertiser, and that a printed copy thereof be transmitted as soon as may be, to the Executive of the United States.

ASA FULLER, JOHN GATES, AZARIAH BROOKS, Selectmen. Attest, Seth Wetmore, Clerk.

GOLD IN THE TREASURY.—A Washington dispatch says it is expected that on the first of May the Treasury will hold about $100,000,000, in specie. There are over eighty-two million dollars now on hand, and the customs receipts for the month are estimated at nearly eighteen million dollars.

THE LATE MAYOR HARPER.—The Presbyterian Observer relates some curious facts concerning the late James Harper. Just before the accident which terminated his life he had renewed the policy ($10,000) of insurance on his life against death by accident.

J. J. Davis in England.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, in the course of a description of a visit to the gallery of the House of Commons, gives this glimpse of a man once distinguished:

"While I am standing in this group, eagerly watching the police sergeant, who will presently call the names of the privileged few, I hear:—

"I turn round, and right behind me stands Jefferson Davis. But wouidst thou at a change in mortal man? I would scarcely have known him if my attention had not been called to him. And can it be possible, I mused, that this shriveled face, thin voiced, shrunken limbed, slouchy little old man is the eloquent and commanding senator from Mississippi, the prompt, resolute and courtly Secretary of War that was really President when Franklin Pierce was ousted? I tell you the truth. I was touched, and there is no knowing what my impulse of tender magnanimity to my fallen foe would have driven me to do and say if it had not met in the impulse of the man who put the question I have quoted that obsequious 'rebellion' toward the 'slaveholders' 'rebellion' which for these ten years past has been the pre-eminent characteristic of anti-slavery England. Mr. Davis quietly replied, 'That is my name?'

"What, Jefferson Davis?" "Yes, sir. May I ask your name, sir?" "Harris; but I am nobody. I am simply an Englishman who deeply sympathizes with you; I have often wanted to see you; I have your picture hanging up in my house, and prize it very highly."

This was said in an agitated fervent way, while hands were shaken, and then Mr. Harris, who was a gray-haired, well-to-do-looking gentleman, put his mouth close to Mr. Davis's ear and whispered what I did not hear, but I could not but imagine that it was, 'England was with you, and if you could have held out another year we would have joined France in recognizing your Government.'

Mr. Davis smiled feebly, and I thought, sadly. His name was called, and in he went. I followed immediately, and saw him met by one of the House attendants, the gentleman in black sword breeches and shad-belly coat, with a silk sun-flower on his back, who absolutely bent double (I am not exaggerating) at the approach of Mr. D., and went dancing and flushing and smiling before him whispering to everybody, 'This is Mr. Jefferson Davis,' and galloped him to a sort of pew there is for specially favored visitors on the floor of the House, deep in a recess, and where Mr. Davis sat down with Archbishop Manning and Dean Stanley.

Items from Washington.

The Washington Star says it is understood that Senator Sprague has it on his mind to elaborate and sustain his charges of cowardice against Gen. Burnside, which were so sharply criticised by his colleague, Mr. Anthony, the other day, in a carefully prepared speech, which he intends to deliver from the stump in Rhode Island. If this be true, there is a prospect for pretty lively times in the Providence Plantations this summer.

Commissioner Delano is reconstructing the Internal Revenue Bureau, on the ground that its internal organization has not been equal to the duties imposed upon it. Whether he betters it remains to be seen. He has ordered that all commissions of Internal Revenue Detectives appointed prior to March 10th, 1869, which do not by their terms expire previous to the 30th day of April, 1869, shall terminate on the said 30th day of April.

A snow-storm prevailed at Washington a greater portion of the day on Sunday.

The committee on foreign affairs, having been authorized to sit during the recess, has appointed a sub-committee to investigate Paraguay affairs. The sub-committee expect that this will occupy their attention 2 or 3 months, as a thorough investigation of the whole subject is contemplated. The committee will alternate its meetings between New York and Washington. Mr. Willard, of Vermont, is one of this committee.

The opinions on Senator Sprague's recent speeches and career in the Senate are numerous and conflicting. He was the only Republican who voted against the bill which was passed in accordance with the message of the President providing for an election in Mississippi, Virginia and Texas. Some infer from this and other tendencies in the same direction, that he is going over to the Democratic Party.

The Supreme Court of the United States on the 12th, disposed of Wm. H. McArdle of Mississippi, editor, who, it will be recollected, was arrested, tried and sentenced to imprisonment by the military authorities several years ago on a charge of writing seditious articles in his newspaper. He had appealed from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Mississippi, which had denied a writ of habeas corpus. Chief Justice Chase delivered the opinion of the Court, dismissing the appeal for want of jurisdiction.

SPRING FASHIONS.—The fashion correspondent of the New York Times writes as follows.

This season sees a general revival of braids for ladies' bonnets—straw braids of new and old designs. The new are interwrought with jet and pearl beads—which is by no means an improvement. Straw may be braided ever so elaborately, but it should not be worked up with materials for which it has no sympathy, of which it has no suggestion. Its freshness and brightness—souvenir of the fields wherein it grew—should be allowed to exert itself instead of being smothered by the vulgar fripperies of the workshop.

Se ator Sprague.

To General Sprague, Senator Sprague and the millionaire Sprague as he sits in Congress would probably be a disappointment to you. We build out of our notions of warrior, rich man and politician the figure of a large, broad-shouldered, full-stomached man, with gold seals, a lack of command and a commercial manner of expelling business. Mr. Sprague is altogether different. You see a little narrow shouldered, smooth-faced boy, not over five feet five inches high, with an eye glass, a bashful manner, quite alone and reserved, sitting in a desponding way low in his chair, tearing up bits of paper, and having the appearance of a young divinity student. No enthusiasm ever responding to his boyishness is revealed in his face. He and Senator Ross, who sits beside him, are the least frequent speakers in the Senate.

We have got over the notion of expecting much from him, and we say "Little Rhody" and "Little Sprague" like correlative terms. It was, therefore, with surprise that, last Friday, we saw this quite little man come out in the aisle and tackle the great legal question of the tenure of office, with an original and vehement aggressiveness which was as strange in manner as it was inexplicable in motive. There he had been sitting silent during seven years. Now he rose and delivered an attack upon the law, the constitution, the war, the Senate and human society. There has been nothing like it exemplified in history or in fiction, except, perhaps, the celebrated revolt of the Twists against Noah Chynpole and Beadle Bumble. So incongruous, so queer and yet so suggestive a speech I have never heard delivered in the Senate. The manner of Senator Sprague in making this speech was aggressive and spirited, like one resting under the chafing of invisible woes. He walked into the aisle, looked squarely into the faces of those whom he supposed his various periods fitted and made such astonishment as he progressed that blank faces greeted his peroration.—Chicago Tribune.

FURNITURE WIVES.—Men marry for fortune, and sometimes to please their fancy; but, much oftener than is suspected, they consider what the world will say of it,—how such a woman in their friends' eyes will look at the head of a table. Hence we see so many insipid beauties made wives of, that could not have struck the particular fancy of any man that had any fancy at all. These I call furniture wives, as men buy furniture pictures because they suit this or that niche in their dining-parlors.

Many Suffer rather than take nauseous medicines. All who suffer from coughs, colds, irritation of the bronchial tubes or tendency to consumption, will find in Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry a remedy as agreeable to the palate as effective in removing disease. The Balsam is a pleasant remedy; it is a safe remedy; it is a powerful remedy; it is a speedy remedy; it is a remedy that cures.

The courtiers at the Court of Queen Elizabeth were wont to gain royal favor by praising the beauty of the Queen's hair. Many modern ladies, by the use of "Barrett's Vegetable Hair Restorative," not only receive praise from their acquaintances, but gain as well the homage of all who behold their magnificent tresses.—Cleveland Herald.

The language of nature and experience demonstrates that whoever would enjoy the pleasures of food, the beauties of landscape, the joys of companionship, the riches of literature, or the honors of station and renown, must preserve their health. The effect of foul, injurious food, entering the stomach, is to derange the digestive organs and produce headache, loss of appetite, unrefreshing sleep, low spirits, feverish burnings, etc., which are the symptoms of that horrid disease, Dyspepsia, which assume a thousand shapes, and points toward a miserable life and premature decay. Plantain Bitters will prevent, overcome and contract all of these effects. They act with unerring power, and are taken with the pleasure of a beverage.

MAGNOLIA WATER.—Superior to the best imported German Cologne, and sold at half the price.

MANHOOD.

IN the young and rising generation, the vegetative powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show its baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the sufferer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst of misadventures. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body too much enfeebled to give rest to mental and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inward upon themselves.

If the patient be a female, the prostrating of the menses is looked for with anxiety, as the last symptom in which Nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the clock with the room of health. As the increase of appetite now gives way, the energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for with anxiety; the pearly heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu, for Weakness arising from excesses or early indiscretion, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to exertion, loss of power, loss of memory, difficulty of breathing, general weakness, horror of disease, weak nerves, trembling, dreadful horror of death, night sweats, cold feet, wakefulness, dimness of vision, languor, universal lassitude of the muscular system, a tenacious appetite with dyspeptic symptoms, hot hands, flushing of the body, dryness of the skin, pallid countenance and eruptions on the face, pain in the back, heaviness of the eyelids, frequently black spots lying before the eyes, with temporary suspension and loss of sight, want of attention, great mobility, restlessness, with horror of society. Nothing is more desirable to such patients than solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of manner, no conversation, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on—which this medicine invariably removes—soon follow loss of power, fatuity, and epileptic fits, in one of which the patient may expire. During the superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients; reason had for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases of insanity and consumption? The records of the insane asylums, and the melancholy deaths in consumption, in the middle of the century, are full of these assertions. In lunatic asylums the most melancholy exhibition appears. The countenance is factually sudden and quite destitute—neither mirth nor grief ever visit it. Should a sound of the voice occur, it is rarely articulate.

With woeful measures woe despair, Low-sullen sounds their grief beguiled. Whilst we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences. Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Fluid Extract of Buchu. There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.
