BOSTON'S GREAT PREACHER.

The Rev. J. B. Brady, D.D., Advises His Many Parishioners To Take Paine's Celery Compound.

The Rev James Boyd Brady, pastor of the People's Temple, in Boston, presides over the destinies of the largest Methodist church in the country.

Big, candied, Scotch-Irishman that he is, Dr Brady has built up the Trmple financially and numerically, and to-day he is the pastor of a flock of 1700.

Dr. Brady devotes himself with unflagging courage to anything he undertakes. The chief characteristic of his ministry has been progress, in number, financial condition and moral and spiritual growth. He is a man of plain, but vigorous words So much has been said and written about Dr. Brady—his work, his progressive methods, his eloquence and his power as a minister, that the following letter from him will be convincing and helpful to many persons besides the large number who are every Sunday influenced for good by his powerful preaching. He writes:

Boston, Sept 27, 1897.

Paine's celery compound, if widely and wisely used, would relieve nervousness, soothe restlessness, reduce sickness strengthen the body, invigorate the mind and add years of happiness to his life

JAMES BOYD BRADY,
Pastor People's Temple.

The man or woman who does not take time to get well will sooner or later have to take time to be ill.

Many live under the needless infliction of indigestion, nervousness, constipation, and general weakness and endure the consequent loss of health without considering how easily the cause of all this illness might be remedied.

Needful nerve and tissue nourishment is at the bottom of all permanent building up of the health.

Paine's celery compound looks out for the insidious weakening of the nervous system through malnutrition. It gives a healthy tone to the stomach, increases the blood supply, quiets and equalizes the irritated nerve action and promptly feeds the tissues when the bodily vigor is at its lowest ebb, and should not be further taxed.

The only cure, therefore, for rheumatism, neuralgia or general debility that is lasting in its good effects must rest on a radical cleansing of the blood and building up of the nervous tissues. All this is best done by Paine's celery compound. because this remarkable remedy begins at the beginning, where there is disease and establishes the health firmly and beyond any fear of falling back.

The worn out person who cannot sleep should take Paine's celery compound. It is folly to imagine that every hour taken from sleep is an hour gained. Nothing undermines the health and energy like loss of sleep The nervous system suffers as much from lack of sleep as from lack of nourishment Both may be supplied and a healthy condition insured by using Paine's celery compound.

The stay and staff of sound health is well nourished and well regulated nerves. Sufferers from sleeplessness nervous dyspepsia or headache may be sure that every reservoir of nerve force has been tapped and exhausted by work, worry, too little sleep, or faulty nourishment, because of poor digestion and assimilation. As soon as such signs of nervous exhaustson are noticed, shaky hands, broken sleep, poor appetite, wasting diseases, neuralgia or dyspepsia, take advantage of the remarkable restorative and regulating action of Paine's celery compound

Nervous disorders increase in a sort of compound ratio. It is a thousand times easier to put a stop to a nervous debility in its earlier stages than later on to correct and nerve and brain exhaustion that may be complicated by heart, kidney or some other organic trouble.

Paine's celery compound must not be confounded with any of the plausible sounding, but really temporary makeshifts, whose cures are never permanent and thorough-going, and only bring deferred hopes that make the heart sick. Paine's celery compound is the greatest nerve, brain invigorator and most reliable blood purifier the world has ever been blessed with.

Little, agent, as plaintiff, and Mrs. Lund, as defendant, in the matter of rent on the place occupied by Mrs. Lund, a part of the old Arial Hall farm. Last Thursday morning our community was somewhat startled by the announcement of a sort of a strike of the granite workmen here. At the time of the lockout, several years ago, some of the boys saw fit to break from the Cutters' Union and go back to work. Later they returned to the Union, and were subjected to fines to be paid in the future, a few, however, having failed to pay up wholly. At a meeting of the Cutters' Union, Wednesday evening, it was voted to stay away from work till these fines were paid. Thursday, however, sufficed to settle matters, and peace reigns, much to the satisfaction of all.

In the lamentable amount of divorce business, in even our beloved state of Vermont, doubtless an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure, and to this ounce it delights us to contribute the experience of two of our citizens in an earlier day, whose married life, lived elsewhere, was one of the happiest we have ever known. Of this family of husband, wife and two children, only the wife is now living. Recently speaking of her happy life to a friend, she said, "my husband was as much my lover the day he died as the day he married me. I do not recall that even a cross word was spoken by either of us to the other. If I was ever tempted to be fretful the thought at once came to me, that the indulgence of such fretfulness would wean him from his love for me, and it was always successful in restraining such words."

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

Vermont News.

AARON CURRIER, a prominent citizen, and a leading member of the Baptist church in Panton died last week.

THE bodies of Fred Bodelt and Thomas Barneau of Norton's Mills, P. Q., were found last Friday on the bank of a brook in Derby where they had evidently fallen from the highway. When found, although their bodies lay on the bank, their heads were under water and death had been caused by drowning. It is thought that the men were intoxicated.

FRANK H. BACON of Waltham died last Sunday aged sixty years. Mr. Bacon was one of the largest farmers in the town of Waltham. He was at one time one of the largest dealers of Merino sheep in Addison county and had a reputation throughout the United States on account of his connection with Merino sheep raising. He made at one time a sale of sheep in Australia, and on this deal it is said he cleared $10,000 He was injured about a year ago by his famous Kentucky stallion, and has been in poor health since. He leaves no family.

AN important move in the fight for the contest of the Central Vermont railway was made in Burlington last Friday when the New London and Northern Railroad company, through its attorneys, filed with the clerk of the United States District court in that city a petition for the right of intervention in the case of the American Loan and Trust company of Boston against the Central Vermont Railroad company of Vermont. The declaration is signed by President Robert Colt and Attorney's Agustus Brandiger and Walter C. Noyes for the New London Railroad company. It is addressed to the judges of the Circuit court of the United States in the district of Vermont.

THE Louisville Courier-Journal of a recent issue pays the following handsome compliment to Hon. George F. Edmunds: "Even the telegraphed synopsis of the address made by former Senator Edmunds before the House committee on banking and currency shows with what remarkable clearness and strength he put the report of the monetary commission and deepens the regret that so able and eminent a statesman should have felt it incumbent upon him to retire from the public service in the plenitude of his powers. His speech was the eloquence of argument. In that respect, if not in oratorical warmth and splendor, it is a repetition of Lowell's picture of Wendell Puillips:

'So that he seems but speaking clearer
The tip top thought of every hearer.'"

A NEW development in the affairs of the Bradford Savings Bank and Trust Company was brought to light on Monday, when a minority of the stockholders appeared in the person of their attorneys, at a meeting of the board of trustees and demanded information as to the condition of the bank. President Hale stated that the books of the bank, its securities and all its affairs were open to inspection. W. M. Stockbridge of Boston, who appeared as the representative of Robert F. Straine, insisted upon the right to be informed upon behalf of Mr. Straine as a stockholder. Mr. Straine's stock having been sold and transferred upon the books of the bank Mr. Stockbridge was refused. George A. Dickey represented Mr. Arnold of New Bedford, Mass., a large stockholder. The meeting was harmonious and at the request of the trustees a committee of three was chosen to co-operate with others and make a thorough investigation. The trustees and depositors and a majority of the stockholders have confidence in the institution and look forward to a report of the committee in reliance that it will vindicate the bank.

Foreign.

THE annual report of the Leeds, Eng., chamber of commerce deplores the state of the British textile industries. It says, "all the improvement of spring having been fatally checked by the Dingley tariff law, followed by the engineering strike, which must necessarily result in some permanent loss to trade in addition to the loss already experienced."

JAPAN is prepared for war. She has stopped telegraph communication, something that is never done except when the army or navy are being mobilized. It is almost certain that the destination of the fleet is Wei-Hei-Wei, and there is no doubt the movement means that the status quo in China, so far as Manchuria and Corea are concerned, shall not be altered by Russia or any combination of Russia's allies in defiance of Great Britain and Japan. So long as the defenders' policy is equality of opportunity in China, they are in a position to enforce their claims.

THE eclipse of the sun in India last Saturday was accompanied by a rapid fall of temperature. An earthy smell pervaded the air, and the scene resembled a landscape under a wintry English sun. There was a marvelous corona of pale silver and blue around the sun. The conditions were favorable at both Sir Norman Lockyer's camp near Viziadroog, on the Malabar coast, and at Professor Campbell's camp near Jeur. The native astrologers predicted terrible calamities. The natives swarmed to religious exercises, and there was general fasting, but no great alarm. The nizam of Hyderbad liberated fifty prisoners, giving each a gift of money and clothes.

What makes you think your father never went to college? asked the fond mother. He doesn't know a half back from a center rush, returned the boy scornfully.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS.

From Dr. Hunter's Lectures on the Progress of Medical Science in Lung Diseases.

Chronic inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the air tubes and cells of the lungs is a very common and very serious disease. It generally results from neglected colds, but is sometimes caused by breathing dust in workshops and vapors in factories

Particles of dust being inhaled irritate the mucous lining of the lungs and make them sore, just as dust and small particles getting into the eyes make them red, angry and sore.

Bronchitis is always a lung disease, because the bronchial tubes are the chief part of the lung and ducts through which we breathe. To say that a person has bronchitis and yet that his lungs are sound is absurd and untrue, since these tubes are the seat of every known lung disease. All that can truthfully be said is that bronchitis is not consumption, although it is very liable to end in that disease.

The most constant symptoms of chronic bronchitis are cough, shortness of breath and mucous expectoration. Its slight or serious character is shown by the kind of matter raised and the presence or absence of loss of flesh, hectic fever and night sweats. These latter symptoms when present, show the deep hold it has on the lungs and how greatly it has already weakened and underminded the general health.

A great many bronchial cases are met with in people advanced in life. It begins with a cold in the fall, which lasts all winter. They cough and expectorate quantities of gray and jelly like mucus, but on the approach of warm weather the cough grows better, and the expectoration almost ceases, only to return with increased severity on the advent of cold again. Unless arrested, this form of senile bronchitis cuts short the thread of life. Most old people die of it years before there is any necessity of dying, for want of proper treatment.

In many cases chronic bronchitis is as dangerous as consumption itself, and even more so than some forms of that disease. So long as no organic change has taken place in the air tubes and air cells, bronchitis is always perfectly curable by local treatment of the diseased tubes But I cannot conceive of the possibility of any form of bronchial disease bein cured by stomach medication or the treatment commonly employed No local inflammatory disease of any other organ has ever been cured without local treatment, and without local treatment I consider bronchitis as fatal as consumption. The bronchial membrane in time becomes altered in structure and pours forth a matter which has all the qualities of pus; hectic fever and night sweats supervene, and the case tends slowly but surely to death.

There is a form of bronchitis especially remarkable on account of the great abundance of the bronchial secretion. The patient expectorates a pint or more of frothy fluid a day, resembling gum water. They are pale, like persons blanched by hemorrhage; generally free from fever—neither quickness of pulse nor heat of skin existing, but the wasting away of the body and general weakness is extreme. Examined after death no ulcerations or tubercles are found, nor anything resembling consumption in the state of the lungs They die of exhaustion through the excessive drain made upon the fluids of the body. Such cases are always curable if timely treated by astringents and antiseptics applied by inhalation directly to the relaxed and weakened membrane with the lungs
