THURSDAY, NOVEMBER, 4, 1866.

The finds legislature adjourned over from Friday until Wednesday, to enable: the members to go home and vote. No important bills have passed both houses

The report of the Superintendent and Director of the State Prison show that in the two years from August 1, 1878, to July 31, 1880, 8 convicts died, 4 were executed, 4 were sent to the Insane Asylum at Brattleboro. Windsor county sent the most convicte, 25, and Grand Isle the smallest number, I. The number of prisoners July Slat was 142. Of these one, Edwin C. Hayden, is to be hanged Jan. 7,

The legislative committee having in charge the tall changing the Grand Jury term of this county from Manchester to Bennington has postponed further seti until next Tuesday evening. It is safe my that no change will be made unless is conclusively shown that such chan would make a material saving of cost the state. The matter will be careful investigated on both sides before a rape is made to the house.

A bill incorporating the Dorset Marl Co, has passed the house and will v doubtedly pass the senate. It will inclu most of the marble interests owned E. J. Hawley, J. B. Hollister, and Holli ter, Tyrel & Co., and is designed to it crease the production of marble in th vicinity, while lessening the cost of pr duction and sale. If it has this effect v can all wish the new company a prospe OHE PRIORI.

Ye Editor made a hasty visit to Mon pelier last week and gives it as his opinio that the present legislature is fully up : the average in ability and working capac ty. There are so many new member however, that it takes a long time to g accustomed to the "harness," and most the labor, at first, devolves on those men bers who have had experience. Speaker Martin knows just how to keep the members in the traces, and with support from such men as Govs. Page and Taft, and many others whom we might mention, has the house already in good working order. and it is doubtful if the work is accomplished before Thanksgiving.

The London Times in a recent editorial shows how great has been the advance in England of religious liberty: "Two centuries ago Noncomformists could not meet for public worship. They could only meet in holes and corners, in back parlors and haylofts, on the sly and as law breakers. Only a century ago, upon the least suspicion of a private 'mass-house'-a pubsufferance, and a Papist not at all, on any

SENATOR EDSUNDS.

Senator Edmunds of Vermont has been re-elected without opposition for another term. This is an event of national interest for Mr. Edmunds' long experience and remarkable ability, and special knowledge, his courage, teadiness and judicial temperament, with his sturdy honesty and simplicity, combine to make him an invaluable Senator. There is something essentially American, and American of the best type in his character and career. He is a very strong party man, without being a party bully. Republicanism represents to him the principles which most certainly promote true national union and greatness but his good sense and his shrewd humor save him from the absurdities of mere particanship. Mr. Edmunds is one of the ablest and most thoroughly equipped of the lawyers in the Senate, and an important speech of his is exhaustive of his subject. His speech upon the Electoral Bill, for instance, was clear, comprehensive, Senate. - Harper's Weekly.
