COTTON. Cotton in the first year of the war, when the foreign market was cut off, went begging at 10 cents a pound. On the crest of the war boom it rose to 40 cents, and higher. Then, with a bumper crop and hard times, it dropped almost to 10 cents again, with no proportionate drop in production and living costs.

THE OVER-AGE PUPIL. Special classes for over-age children are to be opened in each school district in one of the larger cities. This is an advance in educational understanding worthy of attention.

New Hampshire Roads. The Manchester N. H., Union tells its readers that all the money the state has expended in constructing highways to and through the White Mountain region will have been lost unless steps are immediately taken to put them back in condition. It decries that the mountain trip now is devoid of all pleasure because of the bad roads of the region.

Under such a plan as this, a class of children who too frequently profit but little from the agonized efforts to give them the conventional education should make fair progress along all essential lines. Instead of being turned adrift finally, a menace to themselves and others, they should emerge fairly competent and reliable citizens with enough practical education to answer any requirements which life is apt to make of them.

The revival of the old game of horse-shoes is certainly a good-luck sign for clean sport.

The gravel road of Vermont, kept in condition, is to be preferred to the hard surfaced road that is not kept in absolute repair. Give the motorist a good gravel road with a dust laying preparation applied and he will, in a majority of cases, like it better than even the hard road. It rides easier. All of which is said by way of pointing out that Vermont is in better condition than the Granite state on the score of roads at this time.

I Was Bald Found True Hair Grower. A well known business man, John H. Brittain who in earlier years was in the old Indian Territory has certified to the following, notariary: 'I was bald at a time when I had some discouraged at trying various fair lotions, tonics, specialist's treatment, etc. I came across in my travels a Cherokee Indian medicine man who had an ointment that he had advertised could grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave a trial. To my surprise, a light fuzz soon appeared. It grew thicker and thicker day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days.'
