

Washington, D. C., May 13, '92.

There has been considerable gossip during the week relative to a very important change in the cabinet.

Mixed Politics

There is getting to be in a great many of the states a very mixed condition of things in politics and one which is liable to knock to pieces the "foregone conclusion" policies.

Senator Edmunds and family are at Atlantic City for his daughter's health. The senator has engaged summer quarters in Dublin, N. H., near Mt. Monadnock.

Twelve men were drowned at Fallman, Ill., Sunday, in Lake Calumet. They went out for a sail in rough water against a strong breeze; the boat capsized and all in it were drowned.

Ex-Gov. C. C. Washburn of Wisconsin is dead. He was several years in congress and was a general in the war. He had great wealth which he used very liberally.

The Mississippi shoe-string district, which Chalmers claimed to represent, extends 280 miles in a straight line along the Mississippi river, or, following the turns and twists, which the water-makers make, is 500 miles long.

The Kliever's ministers issued a call for an assembly of notables, in spite of the Kliever's opposition, but the notables would not come and the army didn't sustain the ministers very much.

At the invitation of Hon. E. S. Dana, chairman of the committee of the old first district, the committee of the old first and third districts, residing in the new west side district, met in Burlington the 11th, to organize as the district committee of the first district.

In Virginia, Malone, who knocked the life out of bourbonism last year, has fallen on evil days, and Massey, one of his lieutenants, has gone over to the democrats.

In Mississippi, Gen. Chalmers who has lately been turned out of congress and his place given to a negro republican, Mr. Lynch, goes into the new campaign in Mississippi with an independent platform and proposes to fight the regular democratic organization.

In Georgia, Congressmen Felps and Speers have kept their seats as Independents and seem now to be actively engaged in a movement that relies against the present democratic management in that state.

They are getting up petitions in Maine to have Mr. Blaine head the republican ticket for congress. But it would be dreadful had Mr. Blaine to run on a general ticket and have the rest of the republican candidates elected and himself defeated.

The minor editor of the Free Press has tackled State (later Dwinell's) appraisal of railroad roadbeds. That is we suppose it to be a junior editor for he, as often beforetime, wrestles with his subject so to get half thrown by it in his own columns.

The educational experts are in high glories. Massachusetts has just abolished the school districts in her towns that retained them. It is a fact that nearly every student of school matters favors the town system.

The assassinations of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke are yet undiscovered, and Patrick Egan, treasurer of the land league, refuses to offer a reward for them, and proceeds to muller after informers.

The Hatton-garden jewelry robbery proceeds to remain a mystery no longer, if the Berlin police are correct in their supposition. Three persons were captured at the Eastern railway station, Berlin, just as they were stepping into the train for St. Petersburg last Monday.

Wednesday being the anniversary of the death of Lord Beaconsfield, the queen sent two wreaths, one of immortelles and one of primroses, to be placed on the tomb of the late statesman at Highcliff.

The latest fancy in aristocratic New York is said to be for "croup-bubble parties," and one is described where each member was provided with a clay pipe, and dipped in a big bowl of soap suds.

The Darwin's Diseases.—For many years the late Mr. Darwin suffered with catarrh of the stomach, and later with various irregular manifestations of a gouty constitution.

ATTENTIONS TO POLITICS.—Deputy-Sheriff Nicholson arrested on Thursday, the 11th, Mr. Ann Clark, colored, with an attempt to poison Mr. Clark.

THE MOUTPELLIER DISTRICT MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION will hold its first meeting for the conference year at Barre, Vt., on May 31st and June 1st and 2nd, 1892.

HOW A FLAMMABLE MAN EMBROIDERED THE LYONDA UNION taking the following year concerning a former citizen of that place.—Gov. Mattcock: The governor found himself late on Saturday night in Guilford, Vt., making his way down a back street.

Some private letters written in the beginning of this century by Irish resident landlords to their kinsfolk in their country are remarkable from the fact that if the dates and names were altered they might serve as a section from the diary of a year of a man who had been brought up in the lower class and to precisely the condition in which it is at present.

SANDWICHES

A total eclipse of the sun occurs on Wednesday, visible in Europe, Asia and Northern and Central Africa.

THE STETSON MENAGERIE.—William Richards, the Englishman arrested at Waterbury, Conn., two weeks ago, for the murder of Joseph Jackson, a brother-in-law of Abneron, Quebec, last July, has confessed.

AN INVENTIVE CHAIN.—Simon Phillips, a resident of Cleveland, Ohio, was a school boy a Biddford, Me., 30 years ago. He claims to have invented some of the most useful and novel machines the world has ever seen.

SAD DROWNING AFFAIR AT BURLINGTON.—Burlington was the scene of another drowning accident on Sunday afternoon, which resulted in the death of Eugene Lalime, proprietor of the skating rink, and a narrow escape for George Walker, it seems, according to the Free Press, that Lalime and Walker went out on the lake in a row boat fitted with a sail.

A REMINDER OF OTHER DAYS.—On the deck of Recorder of Deeds Frederick Nichols, late of Burlington, Vt., was a very strange shaped hard wood mallet, bound with bright steel bands, a sort of chisel and a mass of oakum.
