REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

FOR PRESIDENT, JOHN C. FREMONT, OF CALIFORNIA. FOR VICE PRESIDENT, WILLIAM L. DAYTON, OF NEW JERSEY.

Republican Convention and Nominations.

To say that the proceedings of the Convention and the nominations perfectly please us, would be to speak falsely. The reception of the North American Convention was not as conciliatory as it should have been. It cannot be denied that the coming struggle will be one of the most exciting that has ever occurred in the history of this government.

There was a monster sky at Hardwick, Vt., a few days since, extended wings measured six feet tip to tip. There was one killed at that place some time since. They were both white, and did not refer until several rifle balls had fired into them.

Mr. Giddings seemed to hold out the idea that it was better to conciliate the Germans than the Americans; whereas in the one case it would have insured success, in the other it will be fallacious. We should have been glad to see the Vice President taken from the American party, for then we believe victory would follow.

Then again the nominees are not our first choice. We should have preferred a known and tried statesman, Seward, or McClellan, to Fremont. They have been long before the country, and are safe, not only on the Kansas question, but on all others of public policy.

Not Declined.—Last week we stated on the authority of nearly every paper in the State, that Ryland Fletcher had declined the nomination for governor. It is a mistake. He has not declined as yet.

The June term of the Orleans County Court commenced its session in this place on Tuesday last, Hon. Abel Underwood presiding. There are one hundred and ninety one cases on the docket, and two in jail.

of the Rocky mountains, inhaling the pure air and looking over the broad domain of our beloved country, has had the effect of driving from his mind and his heart any taint that might have remained favorable to negro slavery.

A member of the California convention when she framed her constitution, he was instrumental in making that constitution free. Elected by the golden state to the Senate, he served for the short time he was there creditably to himself and his young state, thus proving that he is not inferior as a statesman, and his recent avowals show him to be opposed to the whole Kansas-Nebraska policy.

In his explorations his examinations have been useful, and his writings clear and forcible. He has done a good work for his country in pointing out the south pass, and he has done well for geography, botany, and kindred sciences, in his writings. We repeat therefore that he is not by any means unknown, and further that all that is known of him is favorable.

Nominations of the North Americans.

The seceders' convention, lately assembled at New York, have nominated Col. Fremont, the nominee of the Republicans for President, and Gov. Johnston of Pennsylvania for Vice President. In this nomination the convention have shown that good sense, and also that desire for the triumph of free principles, which speak well for their patriotism.

A PROFITABLE COW.—Mr. David Heath of North Troy, week before last, made from the milk of one cow, fifteen pounds of butter. This we deem extra for a cow that has had nothing but common pasturage.

A MYSTERY.—Luther N. Collier of Derby, in company with some four or five other young gentlemen, went last fall to the west. He staid a short time in Iowa, and then went to Minnesota.

It must be conceded that, to an extraordinary extent, the saving qualities of concession, conciliation and compromise among the mixed and multitudinous commission at Philadelphia were indispensable to a harmonious nomination.

The Press on the Nominations.

The New Bedford Mercury (heretofore strident Whig) puts the ticket at the head of its columns, and says: "The question of free territory is, as being the nearest, of the first importance; but it is impossible to shut our eyes to the fact, that democratic rule is every day hazarding the peaceful relations of this country with foreign powers."

The Worcester Spy, a Free Soil paper, adopts the ticket, and endorses the nomination for Vice President as follows: "Of Mr. Dayton, the candidate for Vice President, it need only be said that he is in every way worthy to stand upon the ticket with the Pathfinder of the Rocky Mountains."
