BEAUTIFUL AND IMPRESSIVE

WERE THE SERVICES OVER THE REMAINS OF MISS MORGAN AT FARMINGTON YESTERDAY.

Monday afternoon at the Methodist Episcopal church in Farmington, impressive funeral services were held over the remains of Miss Ola Alma Morgan, whose death occurred on Saturday of last week. The church was thronged with friends and relatives of the popular young woman and on every hand were heard expressions of sincere grief at her untimely death, and of the love and esteem with which she was regarded by a host of friends and acquaintances. Miss Morgan was a faithful member of the M. E. Sunday School, being a teacher in the school, and loving friends had draped the Sunday school room in white in deference to her loving service as a teacher in the school. The remains rested in a beautiful white casket which was completely surrounded by a profusion of beautiful floral tributes which bore a silent and eloquent testimony to the popularity of the deceased.

Rev. Shorlen conducted the services and in his remarks paid a high tribute to the memory of Miss Morgan.

The entire town of Farmington is mourning the loss of one of the most popular and most beloved residents of the place. Following the services of the church the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery. The floral emblems were carried to the grave by Miss Morgan's Sunday school pupils, all gowned in white. They were, Edna Reamer, Ethel Toothman, Lucy and Mabel Toothman, Catharyn Shoreham, Olive Wallace, Nema Dudley, Daisy Fetty, Ada Toothman and Jessie Floyd. The pall bearers were John Toothman, Charley Dunham, Arles Robey, Howard Dawson, Fred Burnett and Pearl Robey.

A Slow Run

WILL BE MADE WHEN THE PRESIDENT GOES TO CANTON NEXT MONDAY.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 24.—The plans for the McKinley memorial dedication in Canton next Monday are complete. A committee of the Pennsylvania railroad passenger officials went over the details of the transportation of President Roosevelt's special train. The president will reach Pittsburgh at 7:12 a. m. and will remain only a few minutes.

It has been the request of the President to make a slow run to Canton. Knights Templar Commanderies Nos. 1 and 68 will be the only organizations to leave this city in a body. Inquiries so far regarding transportation have not justified any special trains on the Pennsylvania from here. Specials from many points in Ohio will be put on, carrying a large number of delegations.

Mr. Robinson Hare Dies at Morgantown

ONE OF COUNTY'S BEST KNOWN MEN

FATHER OF MISS MARIA HARE, OF THIS CITY DIED ON SUNDAY NIGHT.

The Morgantown Post contains the following account of the death of Mr. Robinson Hare which occurred on Sunday night at his home at Morgantown. Mr. Hare is the father of Miss Maria Hare, of this city, who has been at Jslip, Long Island, for the summer, with the family of Mr. J. E. Watson. Miss Hare was at his bedside when the end came. The Post says: Robinson Hare, one of the best known men in this county, died in his 72d year, at his home near the red bridge on the West Side about midnight Sunday night. He had been suffering with rheumatism for several years and was confined to his bed for the past 15 months. During the last two months he had been sinking gradually and his death was expected.

He is survived by his wife, whose name was Nancy Fleming before her marriage, and five children, Professor A. J. Hare, of this city, and William S. Hare, of Long Beach, Cal., John R. Hare, of this city, and Misses Maria and Eva Hare, who live at the home on the West Side. He is also survived by one brother, Captain Silas W. Hare, of this city, by two sisters, Mrs. Louisa Finnell, of Long Beach, Cal., and Mrs. Mary Leighty, of Connellsville.

He was the son of the late John Hare and was born in Fayette county, Pa. While he was still a youth the family moved to Monongalia county, where they have resided since. For nearly three score years he had lived on the West Side. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, and was a devout Christian. He was loved by all who knew him and had a host of friends.

THE BEST SKIN LUBRICANT.

Is Olive Oil and it Works Wonders To-Day as it Did for the Beauty Loving Greeks.

Most everything needs to be oiled. Machinery does and so does leather as all know. Even our furniture and shoes do. The natural oil in them gradually dries out and must be replaced.

It is the same with the skin. If our skin is kept well oiled it will not blister, chap, burn, crack or wrinkle easily. Soap is our chief lubricant, but there is a better, as the ancient beauty loving Greeks knew. It is pure olive oil.

Just rub it in—that's all. It's no bother. There are no complicated directions. Watch how quickly the skin drinks it up! Poor skin, it was dry and thirsty. But give the skin pure olive oil just as you would only drink pure water. The best is Berl Olive Oil and it is to be had in 1/4 pint bottles at 35c; pints at 65c and one gallon at $3.50 at Crane's drug store.

FOUGHT AND LIED ABOUT IT

MAYOR SOAKED AN OFFENDER FOURTEEN DOLLARS ON DOUBLE CHARGE.

Two prisoners were before Mayor Arnett this morning on a charge of fighting. The fight occurred last night on Madison street.

Nick Colet was the name of one of the offenders. His story was such that the mayor soaked him for both fighting and lying. He was fined fourteen dollars.

Carman Vincent was the other man who was up. He was fined six dollars and fifty cents.

Chief Shumaker received a message from Gray's Flats last night that a man by the name of Hickman entered Smith and Lee's store, taking a pair of tan shoes and a blue suit. Hickman is described as being a man of nineteen years of age, with a scar on the chin. The police force have not yet been able to locate the culprit.

A gray horse was placed in McCray's livery barn last night, where the owner may find him.

vice, not for admiration. The front room, once occupied by the father of the present owner, has been changed considerably, but in the change it has lost little of its former individuality. Back of this room and to the right is a room known as the den. On entering this room one's first impression is that it is a depository for the silver cups and other trophies captured by Mr. Watson at the famous horse shows where his valuable string of fine horses have been exhibited. We saw thirty-three silver cups of various sizes and designs. The dining room, breakfast room, library, and other apartments are furnished in keeping with the home.

The grandeur of the home does not exceed the beauty of its surroundings, which are being perfected by Mr. MacElwee, who is refencing all that, is good and correcting that which is not.

The old road that passed in front of the house has been obliterated and in its place is an eight foot gravel walk. The trees that stood by the road will shade the walk and they will be supplemented by the planting of rhododendron, making a beautiful rhododendron walk.

In front of the house and to the north of the rhododendron walk is to be the flower garden, treated upon the plan of an English bowling green with a fountain at the lower end of the garden. The garden will be enclosed by a hedge. Inside the enclosure and extending around the garden is a five foot gravel walk. The fountain or pool at the lower end of the garden will be enclosed by a balustrade, the columns of which will be constructed of cement. It will be planted with choicest flowers artistically arranged. The edge of the pool is six feet lower than the base line of the house and the ground is graded off with the evenness of a bowling alley, making the entire garden within plain view from the front porch, and coming within the vista of the city, making in all a very pleasing effect.

There is little change made on the east side of the house. A little grading has been done and grass sowed upon the bald spots, the planting of shrubs and arbutuses so as to screen views that will not harmonize with the work that is being done. As a broken skyline is much more to be admired than one that is even, so planting of trees on broken ground lines gives enchantment to the surroundings. This idea is being carried out on the east side.

To the south of the vista bounded by trees the eyes rest on two pools of water, nature's mirrors reflecting the beauty of the trees and the surrounding hills. The pools are in a ravine. They will be stocked with fish. Between the house and the stable is an arcade; the pillars are constructed of concrete. The arches are made of wood, giving a screen effect. By the side of the arcade is to be a rose garden.

There will be great changes in the ground on the west side of the home, where the stables are located.

The vegetable garden is to the southeast of the home and is being graded. The top soil has been removed and a big fill is being made from dirt taken from a neighboring hill. This will be covered with the top soil that has been removed from the garden and from the foundation of the new stable, that is building. This is an expensive way of making a place to raise vegetables, but the investment will be a paying one.

The home is reached through a splendid driveway that enters the grounds from Ninth street, near the head of Walnut avenue, winding along a little ravine about half way and then its course is through the green award to the home. At the head of the ravine vine service road leads from the main driveway to the stables. The main driveway is of the best modern type of road that is found in the east. On the upper side of the road the water drains into a grass gutter and is carried to an underground drain, where it is carried into a natural drain. The grounds have a perfect under ground drainage system which has been put in by one having a great deal of experience in that line of work.

To the left of the main driveway is a fine green grass plot that would be a great place to play golf. There will be some planting in this space. Only trees of small growth will be planted here, as it is desired that the northern sky line be not obscured. To the right of the road as one enters the grounds is a clump of large native trees, which will continue to grow in the same way that they have for years. The flowers growing wild under their shadows will stay in their familiar haunts. The trees will be supplemented by the planting of rhododendron, azaleas, and other native shrubs. A little ravine is the natural boundary between the trees and the grass plat.

In the little ravine that separates the trees from the grass is a fine spring which furnishes the water for the home. It is pumped to the house. There will be a small reservoir constructed near the spring and an engine house will be erected for the small engine that will be used to pump the water.

These beautiful grounds will be enclosed by an ornamental fence that will add to the grandeur of the scene. The fence will be built along Ninth street over the $2,500 retaining wall that Mr. Watson constructed to hold a fill made at Ninth street, between Benoni and Walnut avenues, to the gate at the entrance. From the gate the fence will be extended up Ninth street to Fairmont avenue; thence up the avenue as far as Twelfth street.

The old log house to the southwest of the home where most of the Watson children were born is being extensively repaired. In fact a new house will be made of it, except the logs of which it was constructed. These are good. While there will be new material put in the house it is the purpose to make it the same as it was in former days.

Besides the extensive improvements that Mr. Watson is making on his home and the spacious stable that he already has he is erecting a handsome new stable. The new one is being constructed of brick and concrete work. It is 212 feet long, 58 feet wide, 17 feet to eaves of the roof and will have eight gables. Through the center of the barn will be a feed loft 22 feet wide. Rooms will be fitted up for the stable men and they will be provided with the conveniences to be found in a modern house.

The barn will contain 20 box stalls, 11x13 feet. The watering troughs will be in the barn and it will also contain carriage and wash rooms. This stable is being built for a breeding stable. Between the two stables a small race track will be constructed for the purpose of exercising the horses.

The construction of the stable, the repairing of the log house, the erection of a new brick house, is under the supervision of Robert Kolter, of Washington. Mr. Kolter came here five years ago in the employ of Mr. Watson and supervised the construction of the home and stable. Mr. MacElwee, the man who is superintending the ornamentation of the grounds, is a very capable landscape artist and has laid out some of the finest gardens to be found anywhere. In 1894 he laid out the botanical gardens of the University of Pennsylvania. He laid out John Wanamaker's private gardens and has beautified the lawns of many of the wealthiest residents of his adopted city. Mr. MacElwee was born in Glasgow, Scotland. He came to Philadelphia when he was fourteen years of age and has lived there ever since. He is a great student of botany and has collected some of the most valuable herbariums that have ever been turned into the leading museums. With correspondents in different parts of Europe, Asia and South America, he has gathered together a great collection of flowers.

He has been here since May, and during that time he has made a fine collection of the native flowers that are peculiar to this part of the country. He has also some fine geological specimens that he has collected, among them a number of fern fossils that he found near Virgo.

This work that Mr. Watson is doing to improve his home is only another way he has of helping Fairmont. It will stimulate others to beautify their premises, enhancing their value by properly adorning them. The adornment of property means progress and has a commercial value as well as an aesthetic one.

Girls Outvote Boys

THIEL COLLEGE FAVORITELY TAKE VOTE ON FOOTBALL AT CHAPEL.

GREENVILLE, Pa., Sept. 24.—There will be no football at Thiel College this year. This decision was made at chapel yesterday morning, and was the result of a vote which put a ban on the game.

It all came about through the accident last week to Charles Wakefield, a son of Rev. C. B. Wakefield, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and a student at the college, who had the misfortune to break his leg in a practice game.

The matter was discussed at chapel, and Dean Burt gave a talk on the subject, and then asked that the students vote on it. Now the male students wish that they had been at chapel, for there was a majority of the gentler sex present. The majority of the male students favor the game and were getting in time to put a team in the field, but the action of yesterday morning will stop this.
