Transfusion of Blood.

A sad case occurred lately in Liverpool, England, which, if it does not shake the confidence of physicians in this much esteemed practice of economical surgery, will be a lesson to them to use the utmost discrimination and caution in its applications. The chief operator, Dr. Rushton Parker, is a medical man of extensive practice and much local distinction. He had a patient, who was suffering for want of blood, and concluded to try the efficacy of transfusing blood and cast about for a healthy man who would be willing to supply it. His friend and colleague, Dr. Thomas, undertook to find such a person, and the result was that a Mr. Williams, a man about 32 years of age, of full, robust habit, and engaged as a shipping clerk in the city, offered to supply the blood for this purpose. He does not seem to have been led to this by any pecuniary motive; but that he thought he would feel the better for the loss of some blood, and because he understood that he would be benefitting another. The method of operation employed on this occasion has been severely criticised by some physicians, but had the confidence of Dr. Parker. The invention used was Dr. Aveling's in which a pipe is directly introduced into the veins of the one from whom the blood is to be supplied. The result was death, which occurred shortly after from erysipelas, induced by the operation. It seems by the testimony brought forward in this case, that no inquiries were made as to the man's previous health or habits, or whether he was a fit subject for such experiment. And, again, that these physicians took no further interest to ascertain whether he had received injury or not from it. The verdict rendered by the jury, was to the effect "that sufficient inquiry was not made as to the habits of the deceased, or his physical condition, and that he did not receive sufficient warning from these medical men of the risk he was running."

This treatment is not likely to be abandoned in surgery, but it is to be hoped that this sad case will lead all applying it hereafter to more rigid scrutiny, and more care about the consequences.

THE internal revenue returns indicate a considerable consumption of beer in the United States. During 1876 a tax rate of $1 per barrel brought into the national treasury $9,159,675. This is an increase of $415,931 over the receipts of the previous year, showing eather a more honest return of the manufacture of fermented liquors or else a considerable increase in consumption. Doubtless the increase is mainly due to an enlarged demand. This is not a token of an improved purchasing capacity on the part of the people. They have been driven to drinking beer in place of costlier and more hurtful beverages.

FAIRMONT.

Sunday School Anniversary—A Barbecue in Prospect—Tidings from an Absconding Bank Clerk—Soldiers' Meeting, Etc., Etc.

FAIRMONT, June 12, 1877.

Editors Intelligencer:

On Sunday last, the 10th inst., the Sunday School of the Methodist Protestant Church, of this town, celebrated its forty-second anniversary. The church was gayly and elegantly decorated with beautiful flowers. A large crowd assembled, morning, and evening, to witness and enjoy the exercises, which consisted of singing, recitations and brief addresses. The prominent speakers were Governor Pierpoint, Dr. W. W. Granger, Prof. T. C. Miller and Hon. John S. Barnes. The audience seemed highly delighted and entertained with the exercises.

The Sunday School was organized some time in 1835, and has ever since enjoyed a high reputation for usefulness. It now ranks amongst the most flourishing institutions of the kind in this country. Its anniversary, this time, was fraught with unusual interest, occurring as it did, so soon after the union of the Methodist and Methodist Protestant Churches. The Methodist Church, it should be remembered, was formerly a branch of the Methodist Protestant Church, the separation growing out of the parent church having retained the word "white" in its book of discipline after the abolition of the institution of slavery by the General Government. Now, however, that a reconciliation has been affected, that the word "white," thus making the negro two bodies have united in expunging the equal before the law—the Sabbath school teachers and scholars commemorated not only the forty-second anniversary of their school, but rejoiced in hand-clasping over the settlement of the difficulty which had divided and estranged the members of their church for the past fifteen years.

It is a noted and noticeable fact that the Protestants of the United States, in the past ten or fifteen years, have been giving Sabbath school work more time and attention than ever before in the history of the nation. It is a matter of congratulation that our own State is not lagging behind its sister States of the Union in this respect. Sunday schools and Sunday school conventions are receiving as much attention by the people of our State now as churches and camp-meetings did in the earlier times of which we read. Indeed, it is now conceded that Sunday Schools are the nurseries from which churches are transplanted. They are the great source to which Protestant America must look for its safety against the teachings of the Roman Catholic religion. But for the careful and rigid manner in which the Catholic Church disciplines and catechises its infant members in its creed, it would not likely be as formidable as it is. So thorough is that church in this respect that its most humble and unlettered adherents can give a reason or explanation for the faith which they profess.

And right here, if I may be permitted to digress a little, let me ask, who are the Catholics? This may appear like a grave question, but it can be answered. The Pagan religion was, A. D. 384, abolished throughout the Roman Empire, by a decree of the Emperor Constantine the Great. In its place the Chsistian Church was established. At the Council of Nice, in the year 325, Arianism was condemned, and the orthodox religion declared to be the Catholic religion of the Empire. The word "Catholic," as you are aware, signifies universal; consequently the Christian Church was called the Universal Church, or the Catholic Church.

In the year 606, however, the Roman Church separated from the Universal or Catholic Church, and became apostate—adhered to a Pope and worshipped images. For this reason, if I understand analogy, the Roman Church then became a Popish Church. If not, why not? We call the church that is ruled by Presbyterians the Presbyterian Church; the church that is ruled by Bishops the Episcopal Church; and why not, then, call the church that is ruled by the Pope the Popish Church? I don't think the Popish Church has any more right to the title of Catholic—Universal—than a Hottentot has to be called the Queen of England. But the Popish Church never was Universal. She was not known in Ireland until the year 1172; nor in England and Scotland until in the ninth and tenth centuries. She was never recognized by the ancient Irish Church; by the Culdees of Scotland; by the Britons of England; by the Lollards; by the Hussites; by the Waldensians; by the Albigensians; by the Greek Church; by the American Church; by the Syrian Church, and by the Protestant Churches in Sweden and Norway, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, France, Scotland, England, Ireland, South Africa, Asia, Australia and America.

The Protestants of America, so far as doctrine is concerned, are a much nearer approach to a truly Catholic Church than the Roman Church. The misguided followers of the crowned bishops of the United States are not Catholics, but Papists. Now let me ask pardon for this apparently intended thrust at the Catholic brethren. I beg leave to say that in writing the foregoing in regard to who are the "Catholics," I was not prompted by any unkind feeling or sectarian spirit toward that body of Christians. I merely wished to give things their right names. If you have occasion to speak of or to Catholics as a Christian body, call them Papists, their honest and true name.

Mr. E. W. Shurtleff, of Locust Avenue, West Fairmont, promises the people at large to give them an old-fashioned barbacue at his celebrated "Pleasure Gardens" on the Fourth of July. A roasted ox, music, dancing and speech-making will be the order of the day. Colonel Ben. Wilson, Fontain Smith, Esq., James Morrow, jr., and several gentlemen from Wheeling are expected to be present to speak to the people. A good time generally is anticipated. By the way, if Col. Ben. Wilson speaks here on the occasion named it will be an excellent opportunity for him to put in an oar for Clarksburg for the future Capital. The "Glorious Fourth" and the "Heroes of Seventy-six" would make first rate seasoning for a speech on the Capital question. I think the Register ought to be ashamed of its intimation that the Republicans favor Clarksburg for the Capital as a punishment to the Democrats of the Third District, when it sees such sterling and honored Democrats as Col. Ben. Wilson in the field for that point. The Register knows that politics have nothing to do with the question of locating the Capital; that some of the leading, influential Democrats of the State are among the greatest advocates that Clarksburg has.

About six or seven weeks ago Edwin L. Compton, a teller in the First National Bank of this place, left his place of business to visit friends in Harrisonburg, Va., but did not return to the bank or report his whereabouts in due time. Investigation proved that the young man had not been worthy of the confidence of the bank or community, and on this account he had absconded. He took from the bank and borrowed from his friends sums of money amounting to near $300. No word could be heard from him from any quarter, and he was accordingly given up as having absconded and secreted himself to avoid the shame and punishment of his misdeeds. On last Sunday, however, the cashier of the bank, Mr. Joseph E. Sands, received a letter from him, postmarked New York, in which he acknowledges his badness, and expresses himself as truly sorry for having betrayed the great confidence reposed in him by his employers and the high circle of friends in which he moved. The only remarkable feature in this affair is that the young man could get the consent of his mind to sell his character so cheaply. But for his absenting himself from the country, nothing that he did would have been regarded as criminal. It is proper to state here that he has returned some clothing and other articles which he had borrowed and purchased on credit. Taking everything connected with the case into consideration, it really appears as if the young man was laboring under insanity at the time he determined upon a dissolute life. He had hitherto stood high in the estimation of this community, and promised to be a man of great business capacity and usefulness in the future.

In my letter to the INTELLIGENCER of the 8th inst., I made a mistake in announcing the time of the meeting of the Union soldiers at this place. Although I deprecated the object of the meeting, for reasons which I gave, I had no intention of misleading the public as to the time of the meeting. I should have said the meeting of the 2d inst. adjourned to meet again on Saturday, the 16th inst., instead of the 25th, as it was printed. The error was no doubt committed by the compositor, as the formation of the sentence clearly indicates. For instance, there is no Saturday, the 25th, in this month. At any rate, I now say the meeting will be held at the Court House, this place, Saturday, June 16th. I still, however, deprecate the object of the meeting. I still fail to see the necessity for the Union soldiers holding a meeting for the purpose of organizing themselves for mutual protection. But as I gave my objections to such a movement in my letter preceding this, I shall not repeat them here.

On last night there was a "parlor entertainment" at the Town Hall, which which was largely attended. The exercises were literary and musical in their character. The proceeds of the entertainment are intended to aid the Masonic Society of this town in erecting their contemplated new hall.

The Virginian of last week, I notice, still frets itself over its awkward position on the Capital question; still avers that it now is, always was, and ever expects to be, for Clarksburg; still contends that its cotemporaries, and a certain correspondent of the Fairmont Index, misquoted and misconstrued its articles, &c. Unfortunate Virginian! Poor (truly speaking) Virginian! It twits me, also, for misrepresenting its position on the Capital question. If the Virginian men were always advocates for Clarksburg they have certainly been most unfortunate in making themselves so understood. Of course, they no doubt feel a little sore after having been coerced into the support of Clarksburg, but if they will only posess their souls in peace until their sore place quits hurting, they will feel ever so much better. They will thank every one that had a hand in forcing them to do their duty—in urging them to obey the will of the people whom they pretend to serve.

But I ask'd not their old explanation,
Or pledges of truth—no, not I;
They're the greatest humbugs in the nation,
Therefore I adjourn sine die.

Since the recent rain, everything in the vegetable line looks splendidly in this section. The prospect for fruit is better than last year, unless the apple crop should prove an exception.

PHILLIPS.

Some Gentlemen-Farmers.

New York Letter to Rochester Democrat.

Secretary Evarts' Vermont farm is said to exhaust the best part of his income. He has seventy head of cattle, 200 sheep, sixteen horses, and twenty-five swine. The extent of land is 800 acres. Last year 200 tons of hay were cut, costing the proprietor not much more than double the market price. More than 2,000 bushels of corn were raised at an estimate loss of 50 cents a pound, and, therefore, ought to be of good quality. His pork is estimated at 20 cents a pound, and chickens at $3 a pair.

Beecher last year raised about 15,000 bushels of onions on his peekskill farm. They cost him $1.50 a bushel, according to estimate, and as the market in this city was $1, any one can see how much he made. Beecher can send beef to the New York market at 50 cents a pound, and can raise oats at as low a mark as $2 a bushel. His butter is reckoned at $1.25 a pound, and his eggs at 75 cents a dozen. He cleared $40,000 by lecturing last winter, and if he maintains such an income he will be able to continue farming.

Gough lectures five times a week, his fee being $200. He has a farm in worcester, which at one time contained 175 acres. He has no children, but his expenses are very heavy, and, to bring matters in a snug shape, he sold a part of his land, and reduced the farm to 125 acres, which is as extensive as his income will admit. A few years ago his wife, who was a Yankee girl, undertook to raise fancy fowls, which some say are very profitable. She got up a very nice variety, and at a rather reasonable expense, for the Shanghais did not cost more than $75 a pair. The Cochin Chinas were a little cheaper, and bantams could be rated at from $25 to $40. After stocking the place with these rare birds, Gough, it is said, found that if they were to be kept up he would "be obliged" to lecture on Sundays as well as on week days to make a living. When it cost $15 to winter a chicken a man needs a good income. The system was, therefore, changed; the fowles were abolished, and regular crops were tried with decided success. As long as Gough's rye does not cost more than $5 per bushel, and the other crops are kept at an equally reduced rate, his present income will enable him to live in a very decent manner. There is nothing like a farming life for men who have plenty of money.

A Point on Which the Doctors Agree.

Physicians who have tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters concur in representing it to be an eminently safe stimulant, far preferable to the ordinary liquors of commerce, not only because it is medicated, but because it is infinitely pure. Its alcoholic basis is the finest old rye, and this is tempered and rendered medicinal by the curative ingredients of botanic origin which it holds in solution. It has often been imitated, but never rivalled, and is to-day the leading tonic, diuretic and aperient of America. Malarial fevers are prevented and remedied by it, and it is a thoroughly reliable medicine in cases of dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, gout, nervousness, urinary and uterine affections. It improves the appetite, increases the bodily stamina, checks premature decay, and as a sustaining and comforting cordial for the aged and infirm is unequalled. eod&w
