

THROUGH THE STATE.

News and Events of Interest Gleaned from Our Exchanges.

Clarksburg is to have a new opera house. G. W. Crook's store at Alum Bridge was burned last week. Loss $1,600; no insurance.

Bellaire. All Sorts of Local News and Gossip from the Glass City. Charles Apple has received a patent on a potato masher.

The colored I. O. O. F. held a two nights' entertainment at the City Hall, closing Saturday night. The affair was very enjoyable.

Bellevue. Several Bellevue stone masons are busy at work in Wheeling. A day or two more will finish the Fourth ward street paving.

A change of men from the river division of the C. & P. Railroad to the main line takes effect to-day. One man, Charles Shillito, has been at work constantly since March 17, 1861, or thirty years, on the C. & P. Railroad river division.

Bellevue. A Belgian who cannot talk English, but who can speak French very fluently, has explained through several Frenchmen here the feasibility of making gas from coal, as they do in England.

Bellevue. The following are the officers and directors of the new Bellaire Board of Trade: President, W. C. Berglundth; First Vice President, J. E. Clements; and the iron workers attended in a body. The remains were buried in Riverview cemetery. The court has allowed an injunction restraining the Pennsylvania Company from crossing any of the streets in Martin's Ferry with a side track or in any way interfering therewith until the final hearing of the case.

POLITICS IN BARBOUR.

The Farmers Having Their Eyes Opened. The Alliance Worked by Politicians. Correspondence of the Intelligencer.

Astor, W. Va., June 20.—People in this section are truly glad of the nomination of Major McKinley for Governor of the great State of Ohio, because they know he deserves it and can be elected by one of the old-fashioned majorities.

It was quite amusing to see the editor of the Barbour Jeffersonian, in order to get in the Farmers' Alliance (he being a lawyer and State Senator), to claim his paper to be strictly an agricultural paper.

The Democrats are fearfully mad because the Alliance would not support their candidate for County Superintendent. They just met together and pulled one another's hair, did not want the County Court to issue a certificate to young Mr. Lough.

Mr. J. P. A. Entler, of Piedmont, whose popular hotel, the Sims House, was burned to the ground sometime in March, is negotiating for the purchase of the Summit House. If Mr. Entler secures this hotel he will thoroughly renovate it and fit it up specially for the accommodation of transient guests and summer visitors.

The foot race between Edward McAninch and Robert Edwards, for a purse of $10, on Saturday, was won by the latter with ease.

Mart Hachle, the eighteen-year-old son of Mrs. Cramer, was fined $25 and costs on Saturday for stealing two watches from two Huns.

Mrs. Emma, wife of Charles Myers, a well-known iron worker, died on Saturday at the family residence on Monroe street, aged 30 years. Her arm was amputated a short time ago, blood poisoning setting in and causing her death.

The attendance at the convention of the Christian Endeavor Society next Wednesday and Thursday promises to be large.

The Clarksburg News reports the following amusing incident: Ed. Pickett, the popular Baltimore or Ohio conductor, carried as passengers on his last Thursday thirty jupils of the Bent and Dumb School at Komney, who were going home to spend their vacation and expected to take the Ohio River railroad at Parkersburg.

While Justice Hill, of Grant county, was hunting recently he stopped at Sam Bumphrey's to rest and, while sitting down, was astonished to see a cat come into the house carrying the bigger half of a large black snake, which she laid down upon the floor. Squire Hill said she seemed to have had a hard battle with the snake, as she was almost played out when she came into the house. Mr. Bumphrey told him that this was the third snake the cat had killed and brought to the house—all large black ones.
