The Government Appropriated $30, .000 for This Laudable Purpose-The Results to be Preserved in the Archives at Washington as a Record of the Exposition-How the Intelligencer can Secure them Cheaply.

Months ago, when even the idea of the World's Columbian Exposition was young, the government foresaw the great importance of the event and took care that it should not pass unrecorded. The large sum of $30,000 was appropriated for the purpose of the securing a photographic record of every important detail so that the results might be deposited in the archives at Washton for the benefit of future generations. The very best and most representative views of the entire collection have been secured by the INTELLIGENCER for distribution among its readers exclusively, so that it is now within the power of all to obtain a superb series of scenes which cover every phase of the fair and upon such easy terms that it is most reprehensible to fail to secure them. The fact that each view is accompanied by a graphic and interesting description adda much to the educational value of the entire series and makes them of special value to every household. Those who saw the Fair will prize the portfolios as a souvenir, and those who were not so fortunate will value them as a record and a history. In either case their possession is almost invaluable.

and a history. In either case their possession is almost invaluable.

The plan by which patrons of the Intelligences can secure these rare views is explained in detail on page 3. The coupon appears at the lower right hand corner of the first page. The circulation is taking a boom as a result of this liberal offer, and all should secure the papers commencing yeaterday, when the first coupon appeared. Hereafter the coupons will be numbered consecutively, but the coupon bearing yesterday's date will go as No. 1.

A young lady was about town yesterday's gelling a collection of views in no way superior to these, the lowest priced style being $5. She found the pictures very slow sale, but her offer called attention to the wonderful cheapness of the Intelligences's unsurpassed pictures.

Archbishop John J. Kain, of St. Louis, arrived in the city fast evening at 7 o'clock on the Pan Handle. He is here to take part in the Reilly will contest, which however, has been postponed for a week. DANFORD FOR JUDGE.

Belmont Republicans Will Push Him for the Circuit Judgeship.

The Republicans of Belmont county have determined to place an honored and distinguished citizen upon the circuit court bench to succeed Judge Frazier, whose time expires next season. Judge Frazier is recognized as an able and efficient jurist, but is serving his second term and announced some time since that he would not be a can-didate for the third term. Judge John S. Pearce, of Cadiz, and Hon. John M. Cook, of Steubenville, have been mentioned in connection with the place, but the friends of Hon. Lorenzo Danford feel confident that they can secure for him that hone without opposition even from the distinguished gentlemen named by other counties. Captain Danford won distinction during the war as a soldier and in the halls of Congrees following that period, and for all the years since he has distinguished himself in the practice of law before the courts of the county, state and nation. The Bellaire Independent pays him a high compliment, and says "it is not beyond the range of possibilities that the gentlemen whose names are used above will cheerfully join in conferring the honor upon Belmont's distinguished lawyer and statesman."

PRECEDENT ESTABLISHED

By a Case of the Schmulbach Brewing Company in Ohio.

August Neuhausen, the Pittsburgh

agent for the Smulbach Brewing Company, of this city, has been a lucky defendant in a case just decided by the circuit court at Steubenville. Mr. Neuhausen was engaged in selling bear, with a cooler and office in Steubenville, and actions and office in Steupenville, and subsequently established a cooler in Mingo, with a horse and wagon to de-liver beer to customers. Treasurer Hugh Coble brought suit to collect the Dow tax for the cooler in Mingo and the common pleas court held that Neuhausen should pay taxes on both places. Since then the supreme court has held that one who has paid tax as a dealer may establish coolers in other places and deliver beer from there. Going by this decision the circuit court set aside the decision of the lower court and Mr. Nenhauseu won in a case that has been watched with interest by liquor dealers. The decision virtually gives a man a right to start as many agencies as he chooses.

Between a Farmer and County Officials in Marshall County. The Marshall county ciscuit court, at its last session, issued a rule against the county commissioners compelling them to show cause why a writ of possession should not be issued in favor of John Higgins for a small strip of ground near the mouth of Big Grove creek, on which was built the southeast abutment of the county bridge, the corner of it being also on Higgins' ground. The court de-cided in favor of Higgins and he was put in possession of it, and a few days ago he proceeded to tear the abutment down with the intention of hauling it away.

Last week the county court met and authorized Prosecuting Attorney Parsons to move the bridge over onto the county's ground. R. J. McFadden was hired to do the moving, and early yesterday morning with a large force of workmen he went down and commenced the work of moving the bridge. In the afternoon Higgins was notified of what was being done, and he, together with his attorney, D. B. Evans, went down and ordered the work stopped. After the news got around town some of the public officials thought there might be trouble, so the sheriff was sent down to preserve the peace. there might be trouble, so the sheriff was sent down to preserve the peace, but when he got there the men had moved their tools off Mr. Higgins' part and had promised not to do anything more in moving last night, but should they commence operations again this morning Higgins will swear out warrants for all the parties engaged in the work, and will bring civil action against them for damages.

A similar case exists at Rosby's Rock, where the county court built a bridge over Gravel creek, without condeming the land, at a cost of $2,500.

choice wedding breakfast was enjoyed.
In the evening a reception was given and largely attended by relatives and friends. The dinner commencing at 6

Mr. Th. Gjertsen, of the Martin's Ferry club, wrote to King concerning the dispute and the play, and the great Princeton playeranswered this way: "To be a touchdown the ball must be held across the line. If fumbled and secured by the side defending the goal it is a touchback and must be brought out to the twenty-five-yard line." This is just what the Martin's Ferry players said at the time, and the score ought to have been 10 to 8 in favor of Martin's Ferry. favor of Martin's Ferry.
