REPUBLICAN COUNTY TICKET.

FOR HOUSE OF DELEGATES, JOSEPH C. BRADY, ABRAHAM STAMM, ALEX. R. CAMPBELL, S. G. SMITH.

Senator Camden's Fourth of July Declaration.

It was very thoughtful of Senator Camden to come to Wheeling to spend Independence Day. The sun was not brighter, the air was not balmer, anywhere in the country than in Wheeling on that day.

In reply to an enquiry about state politics the senator said that he had been so busy and so much confined in Washington that he knew very little of what was going on at home...

It does not seem to have been necessary, as of yore, to induce the senator to "relax his negation." He had not negated and there was nothing in that line to be relaxed.

"Democratic supremacy" is all very fine, but if it bring with it E. Willis Wilson supremacy what shall it profit Senator Camden? This is the "home matters" which the Parkersburg statesman has on his mind and will look into with all his might.

A good deal of the looking into will be done in Ohio county. It may be accompanied with the flying of fur. Mr. Wilson is something of a hair-raiser himself and is not without friends in these parts.

UNLESS Debs has to pay for his fan there will be a failure of justice. No man should be permitted to do as he has done and go scott free.

Want to Read Hill Out. It is not strange that the Democrats in the senate are wrothy with Hill. If they could do something that would clip his rampant comb they would be only too happy.

What has Senator Hill done that he should be read out of the party? He has denounced the income tax provision of the tariff bill and refused to support the bill with that in it. Is the income tax a test of Democratic loyalty? It is not in the latest Democratic platform or any other of that party, although it may be in the next.

It would be unkind to read a man out of his party for opposing something to which his party, through its platform, has never sought to commit him. The reading out of Hill would naturally be recorded in the column of "phunny phancies."

Dum's strike is fast approaching the condition of a thing that was. How will he settle with the men he drew into a movement that never had a chance of success?

State Troops and the Mob. The California soldiers who refused to try to push back a mob by main strength, the United States marshal insisting that they should not, are not to be blamed. If the mob knew that the soldiers are to be used merely to push and deny the right to fire if their officers think it necessary, the mob will have no more respect for the soldiers than it has for the deputies or other men.

The efficiency of the soldiers lies in the certainty that they will fire if that be necessary to quell a riot. This is the contemplation of the law, or there would be no use to call out the military. The mistake of the California authorities was in allowing the marshal to dictate to them.

If the marshal had the matter in his own hands he had the backing of United States troops and had no use for the state troops. It is better not to mix things at a critical time.

The governor of Colorado has been airing some more views. He does not agree with the United States courts. The reasonable inference from this is that the courts are right. Waite has a genius for being wrong.

Debs and His Wicked Partner. Perhaps the country has been doing injustice to Debs. At the beginning of the strike of his organization Debs said it was to be a peaceful movement. If his men were not willing to work for the Pullman company at its wages he supposed they had a right to quit it quietly. This placed Debs on the side of law and order.

The Debs movement had not gone far before it developed violence. The running of trains was interfered with until more than thirty lines were tied up. Coupling pins were pulled out, trains were dented, armed and angry mobs congregated to suspend as much of the traffic as they could control, the sheriffs were powerless, the United States marshals could do nothing, orders of United States courts were defied, the President of the United States was denounced with great bitterness. So far as the followers of Debs and their sympathizers could make it there has been a condition of anarchy.

All this agrees with the advice of Vice President Howard, who early in the game said that the Pullman officers should be well dosed with the coupling pin, and who was not going to allow anything to run if he could help it until the Pullman men were put to work at the wages they demanded. This would indicate that Howard is the wicked partner of the gentle and well-meaning Debs, who desires to obey the law and wants his men to preserve order, but is overruled by the stronger mind of the determined and reckless Howard.

If Debs can't hold Howard down how can he hope to get through with the big contract he has undertaken?

This startling statement is from the New York World, and the World is a Democrat.

Gossip makes the profit of one cabinet officer on sugar to date $400,000, while his private secretary has laid by a little nest egg of $17,000. It is only fair to add that this cabinet officer's duties are not in any way connected with the tariff or customs.

Has the sugar itch fallen on the whole outfit?

The country has nothing to do with any disagreement between the Pullman company and the men who were in its employ, but it is deeply interested in the supremacy of the law, without which the transaction of business is impossible and there is nothing left of all that men call country.

CROKER came sailing o'er the seas to meet the Tammany bays once more on a Fourth of July. Before the next occasion of this kind there may be some rude separations. There may be many Tammany braves under one roof who will not be able to mingle in a festive way. Some have gone before.

The preachers gathered at Chautauqua have been discussing the evangelists. One preacher told of an evangelist who was willing to work at the rate of a dollar per head of the converts he made. This was thought to be scandalous. In fact the price is low enough.

At the Chicago stockyards ninety regulars dispersed a mob of 3,000. The regulars moved into the mob on the double-quick, bayonets fixed. Uncle Sam with his bayonet fixed for business is always persuasive.

RANDOM POLITICAL NOTES.

One H. J. McGivern, the ex-Republican, who was given an office in Washington by Mr. Pendleton before he had served his first year's apprenticeship as a Democrat, while Democrats of long standing were left to go hungry, devotes nearly a column of space in the Register to a violent personal attack on me because I made some comments on his appointment. Mr. McGivern exaggerates his own importance when he thinks it necessary to devote so much space to his own defense. Concerning his record and his character I care very little, and it is not in evidence that the public is losing any sleep over the matter. My criticism was of Mr. Pendleton and not of Mr. McGivern, but Mr. McGivern gets himself mixed up with Mr. Pendleton in a way that hides the main issue, which was that he received recognition when Democrats who had claims on the party for long service in the ranks were forgotten. If Mr. McGivern could hear some of the comments that Democrats make on his appointment he would not consider that he has any quarrel with me. Could Mr. Pendleton hear them he would regard McGivern's appointment as a paying investment. Mr. Pendleton's protegee resents the reference to his being a loiterer about fishing camps and asserts that as a member of the Mark Twain club he dispensed his hospitalities to me, even to the extent of allowing me to "swill gallons of beer." He has made a serious error. Since I have never in all my life been a guest of the Mark Twain club at its camp, nor a guest at the camp of any other fishing club, and since I have never enjoyed the acquaintance of Mr. McGivern, it is not possible that he or any other person could have allowed me to make such a hog of myself under such circumstances. In other words, Mr. McGivern doesn't know whom he is writing about, and if the other statements he makes in his letter contain no more truth than the one in question, his defense doesn't amount to anything. By the way, a defense of Mr. McGivern from the members of the Mark Twain club might make interesting reading.

The Register has had an attack of hydrophobia, or something very much like it, ever since last Saturday, when the Republican county convention placed in the field a legislative ticket. Republicans were not so sanguine as to hope for the Register's support of the ticket, but were surprised that the Democratic organ should adopt a course which is a virtual confession of the strength of the nominations. Its vile attacks on them and the worse than demagogic comments on the convention's action are evidence that somebody is badly frightened. The unscrupulous effort to array the foreign born element among the citizens of Ohio county against the Republican party because Mr. H. F. Behrens failed of the nomination, is an exhibition of the rankest demagoguery, scarcely ever before equaled by even the Register itself. It must necessarily fail of its object for the very reason that the intelligence of our German-American citizens will resent it. The Register's course in the matter has been an open insult to their intelligence and no citizens are quicker to realize the fact than they. Our foreign-born citizens resent the idea that would make of them a distinct class, and they insist upon it that they are American citizens, on an equality and taking their chances with the native born people of the country of their adoption. The Republican party makes no distinction on account of race, nationality nor religion. It has never done so in the past and never will. It does not nominate a man for public office because he is of this or that nationality, nor because he holds this or that religious creed. It only requires of him that he be a Republican, subscribing to Republican doctrines, and a legal and honorable citizen of the republic. There is no "foreigner" class among our citizens—all are Americans. When a partisan newspaper attempts to create class prejudice for partisan purposes it insults the pride and loyalty of every American citizen, be he native born or naturalized. When a politician attempts to do the same thing he stamps himself as a despicable demagogue. And what desperate straight a party is in when it is obliged to resort to such contemptible methods.

This course of the Register is on a par with the course of the Democratic campaign managers in this state in 1892, when they raised the "negro domination" cry. That contemptible and partly successful effort to create race prejudice in some sections of West Virginia is still fresh in the minds of those who watched the course of the campaign. In this section of the state it was not generally known at the time to what extent this peculiarly outrageous campaign was carried on in those portions where the negro population is large. In some counties the white people were told that if the Republicans obtained power in the state mixed schools would be established, though the Democratic managers know that such a thing would be impossible under our constitution, and that the Republican party and its candidates did not favor such a movement. In the southern counties of West Virginia, and particularly in the remote mountain districts, great posters were displayed, on which was an enormous picture of the interior of a school house. Seated side by side were colored and white children, and in the foreground was a gigantic negro in the act of administering corporal punishment to a little white child. This, the reader was informed in flaming words, was a picture of what was to be expected if the Republicans carried West Virginia. Intelligent Democrats were disgusted with their party managers that such a method to obtain votes had been adopted, but they were easily persuaded by the bores that the necessities of the occasion demanded it. And so the minds of ignorant white voters were worked upon effectively—and all in the name of tariff reform! How a self-respecting man can endorse a party that will resort to such means to carry an election is a mystery. And yet the honest, self-respecting Democrats of West Virginia did that very thing, though, let us hope, not without a blush of shame.

Cure For Headache.

As a remedy for all forms of headache Electric Bitters has proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure, and the most dreaded habitual sick headaches yield to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the bowels a regularity, and in many cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only fifty cents at Logan Drug Co's Drug Store.

Whether this "negro domination" scare will be attempted again or not remains to be seen.

It is not likely that the Democratic party will be able to fool even the ignorant masses a second time in the same way, however, and so a search is being made for some new cry with which to appeal to class prejudice in the interest of "tariff reform." The dishonest effort to create race prejudice, having served its day and purpose, the Register has hit upon the "anti-foreigner" lie. But it will not be successful. This time the Democratic managers will not have ignorant whites in the mountain districts of the Kentucky border to prey upon, but the intelligent foreign-born citizens of the intelligent community of Wheeling, who are already showing their resentment of the insult given by the Register when it attempts to create race prejudice.

Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

style of campaign will react with terrible force before the battle is over. See if it doesn't.

The Democratic organ's deep concern for the Republican ticket is really affecting. It assumes each day to call attention to the mistakes made by the convention last Saturday. It doesn't require an astute politician to observe that when the enemy sheds tears over our "mistakes" it is time for us to congratulate ourselves.

The visit of Senator Camden to Wheeling is brief but it is sweet, for the boys, while it lasts. The result of it will be noted when the personnel of the legislative ticket is known. Everything was fixed, and all the convention will have to do will be to meet and ratify Mr. Camden's ticket. The primaries will select delegates to the county convention who will vote for the slate. That part of it will be arranged at the suggestion meetings. After that will come the checks from the Standard oil magazine to help matters along until November. Windy Wilson won't have a show in this county, but at an early day he will take the opportunity to inform the Democrats of Ohio county that he is a candidate against Camden, and is running on a platform representing Democratic principles as opposed to the compromising attitude occupied by the senator.

In connection with the talk concerning the Democratic fear to run Mr. Pendleton again for Congress, and Mr. Pendleton's own consuming desire to get out of the way of the cyclone that is due November 4, are the speculations regarding the Democratic nominee in case Mr. Pendleton retires. All the old names are mentioned and some new ones. Among the Wheeling men, who are talked of are Colonel Arnett, ex-Senator Summerville and Hon. John M. Birch. Mr. Birch represents the young Democracy and the progressive element of the party, but as the latter is sadly in the minority, it is not likely that the Birch movement will get beyond the speculative stage. Besides, Mr. Birch, who is a broad-minded man and not tainted with demagoguery, can scarcely be regarded as an available candidate in a year when the Democratic candidate is expected to defend the failures and short-comings of the Democratic Congress and administration. So frank and fair-minded a man as Mr. Birch would be placed at a disadvantage under the circumstances.

An anonymous correspondent in the Register the other day propounded a series of questions to Captain Duvener. The inquirer asked the captain if he was willing to pledge himself to certain things if elected to congress. Those "certain things" proved to be the principles embodied in the Populist platform, with an amendment endorsing Coaxeyism. While I am not authorized to speak for Captain Duvener, I would suggest to the correspondent that if the captain is nominated he will carry the standard of Republicanism, under which this country grew great and powerful and prosperous. Suppose the correspondent propounded his series of questions to the Democratic candidate. This is not the year to ask Republicans to compromise with any of the crazy issues that have sprung into existence as a result of the Democratic era of business depression, wrecked industries and financial panics.

SONS OF VETERANS

Hold a Delightful Picnic and Camp-fire at Gladesville, in Preston County. Special Correspondence of the Intelligencer.

GLADESVILLE, July 5.—G. A. R. Post No. 112, of this place, and Lynn Post, of Independence, turned out in a body at the Sons of Veterans picnic and camp-fire here last week. At 3 p. m. the Sons of Veterans and G. A. R. formed into line in front of their hall, and headed by a drum corps marched to the beautiful grove located at the edge of the town, where a large crowd had assembled to hear the speaking. Conrad Lanham, of Independence, was made chairman and responded in an interesting speech, at the close of which he introduced Thomas N. Swisher, commander of Meade Post No. 6, G. A. R., of Fairmont, who spoke impressively and eloquently for half an hour. His address was greatly enjoyed. Conrad A. C. Scott, of Independence, followed with a twenty minutes' speech, in which he related many funny stories.

Rev. A. M. Bennett, captain commanding camp No. 9, of this place, was called out, and demolished Conrad Scott's story, which caused great laughter. Captain Bennett is past divine captain of the sons and a good talker. Loud calls were made for Col. Wilbur H. Brand, commander West Virginia division, Sons of Veterans. He came forward to the stand, and in a ten minute speech capped the climax. Colonel Brand has been called the "boy orator of West Virginia." Conrad Swisher then sang the "Faded Coat of Blue," which closed the exercises for the day. The G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans were invited to the G. A. R. hall, where refreshments were served by camp No. 9, Sons of Veterans. The big Sons of Veterans campfire opened at 8 o'clock in the junior hall, which was crowded to its utmost capacity. Capt. A. M. Bennett presided, and introduced Colonel Brand, division commander of the Sons of Veterans, who spoke eloquently for three-quarters of an hour on the principles and objects of the order. Short speeches were made by Thomas N. Swisher, Capt. A. M. Bennett and Rev. Hall Snodgrass.
