

WAS SHORT AND WEAK.

Ex-Governor Campbell, of Ohio, a Disappointment.

THE LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS HIM

Without Enthusiasm, because there was no Occasion for Enthusiasm. He Fails to Advance an Argument in Favor of Free Trade—A Demonstration of the Hopelessness of the Democratic Cause.

The announcement that ex-Governor James A. Campbell, of Ohio, would address a Democratic meeting at the Opera House last night drew to that house an audience which filled it upstairs and down. The speaker was escorted to the theatre by the Young Men's Democratic Club, about thirty-five strong, headed by the Opera House band. There he was greeted with cheers. County chairman Kinchelo called the meeting to order and introduced R. A. McCabe as chairman, and a long list of vice presidents as printed in yesterday's Register. He did not take the trouble to read the list, and it did not make much difference, for only half of those named were present, while about as many not on the list sat on the platform.

The speech lasted only about an hour and a quarter, the ex-governor reaching the Opera House very late, and quitting early. It was about the weakest speech ever heard in Wheeling from a speaker of local reputation who could make as weak a speech if he tried. Mr. Campbell told one funny story well, and he is fairly good at sarcasm. Besides that, there is nothing to say. Thoughtful Democrats remained thoughtful after the allowed speech, and the other kind of Democrats said things which have no business to get said in public. The fact is, the meeting was a fizzle, in spite of the large turn out.

Mr. McCabe made a brief speech, introducing the speaker. He named Congressman Wilson and John A. Howard, both of whose names were greeted with cheers.

Mr. Campbell opened gracefully, saying he was at home in West Virginia, as his grandfather was born here. He had come to return the favor. Wheeling people had done him in his campaigns in Ohio. He said this was an important campaign, because certain institutions were on trial. He reviewed recent political history, and extolled the Democratic party. He boasted that it had led $100,000,000 of a gold reserve and $75,000,000 of a surplus. Where did the surplus—which some people thought was a bugaboo—go to? It went where the Irishman erected his hole in the ground. He criticized the Republicans' administration of the finances, and said that in 1892 the Republicans were turned out, and the Democrats came into power. It was predicted then that the farmer would starve on his farm, not because of overproduction, but because of the lack of a market. "Then they called us 'Kalamity Kokers.'" We did croak calamity, and it came true.

Referring to the Sherman silver bill, he said that if one man was to store his silver and get a certificate, he would like to store iron from a mine in which he was interested, and the farmers would like to store wheat, and the government would eventually be compelled to start a pawn shop and take anything on deposit and issue a certificate. He said the repeal of the Sherman law would have a temporary effect, because the seat of the disease was not reached. Then Dr. W. L. Wilson and his able corps of physicians were called in. Of course the name of Wilson was cheered. In referring to McKinley, he said he had great respect for him, because he knew it took a mighty good man to beat him (Campbell) for governor.

Then the speaker went back to early days and undertook to make a humorous comparison between what he called the 8 1/2 per cent tariff of Alexander Hamilton and McKinley's 60 per cent. He said all tariffs were meant for revenue, not for protection.

The orator again, and several times later, claimed that the Democratic party was the only party that ever accumulated a surplus in the nation's treasury. The Democratic party once took the tariff question out of politics, and in his judgment it would live to do it again. When the Republican party, at the close of the war, repealed most of the internal revenue and left most of the import duties, he declared, the ownership of the Republican party by the protected manufacturers began. "Yet if my friend, Steve Elkins, who speaks here Thursday evening, is asked why his party increased the tariff from 15 per cent in 1860 to 60 per cent in 1892, he will say it was done in the sacred cause of labor." He said he did not believe in protection, but he would compromise with the Republicans and agree to protection if they would agree not to put on a coat of tax except to cover the labor cost.

He gradually worked back to the "Dr. Wilson" medical joke. His metaphor got badly mixed when he set to rotating the senate and praising the house, but he declared the time was coming when senators must be elected by the people direct.

The governor in introducing a newspaper extract he proposed to read, asserted that no laborer in a protected industry had had his wages increased under the McKinley bill, while he had found a man who had his pay raised already by the Wilson bill. The clipping he read asserted that a Lowell carpet factory had raised wages because of wool being put on the free list. He read several similar bare assertions, but gave no authorities, and these, as well as most of the points he strove to make, were very lamely received. The only time there was more than a mere ripple of applause was when he named Cleveland or Wilson.

The "force bill" came in for its share of denunciation. He predicted Democratic triumph, but said if the Republicans should return to power they would strive to restore "mad McKinleyism."

"Give us a year's trial of the Wilson law, and if this country is not prosperous I will come over and say that I stultified myself when I made this speech." He urged the Democrats to stand by their congressional and legislative candidates, and dwelt upon the importance of Ohio county's vote. He pronounced a hearty eulogy on Mr. Howard, and expressed a hope that when he put his ears to the wire on election night, the first thing he should hear might be a telegram from Louis Delaplain: "Johnny Howard elected."

He closed at 9:40, and after three cheers for Campbell and three for Howard, and a patriotic melody by the band, the crowd dispersed.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Matters of Minor Moment in and About the City.

MATRINE at the Grand to-day. ELKINS at the Opera House Thursday night.

THE GRAND this evening—"His Nibs, the Baron."

A MEETING of the council committee on finance has been called this evening. WORK has been commenced on the new high pressure water main to supply people on High and Charles streets and the upper end of Twelfth street.

CLERK Hook yesterday issued a marriage license to Casper Joseph Flading, aged 25, and Sabina Heavercamp, aged 21, both of this city.

WORK on the fourth story of the House & Hermann building is progressing rapidly. A large crowd watches the construction at all times.

This evening the Third Presbyterian church will hold a congregational meeting to sever the pastoral relation with Rev. C. N. Allford, who has accepted a call to a Philadelphia church.

The circuit court has adjourned for the term, but two special terms will be held, one on Friday and one just before the election, to naturalize citizens who apply. Notice of the date of the last session will be given in due time.

At a meeting of the council committee on petitions and remonstrances it was recommended that a license be granted to Frank Hisrick to keep a saloon at 1617 Market street, and one to Grant & Jones at 27 Eleventh street.

MANAGER WINSITT, of "His Nibs, the Baron," has invited all the members of the police and fire departments and wives to attend the performance at the Grand this evening free. This will be the last appearance of the engagement.

One of the most interesting announcements for the season is the engagement at the Opera House, Monday evening, October 15, '94, of Thomas G. Seabrook and his comic opera company in "The Isle of Champagne," by Charles A. Byrne and Louis Harrison.

The city's fire alarm wire was transferred from the old telephone poles to the city electric light poles, and yesterday most of the telephone company's poles on Market street north of Sixteenth were taken down. The change is quite perceptible to the naked eye.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Strangers in the City and Wheeling Folks Abroad.

H. R. Allen, of Washington, Pa., autographed at the McLure.

William H. Hearne left yesterday for the east on a business trip.

G. Fred Dorsey, of Morgantown, figures on the McLure register.

E. S. Duerr, of New Martinsville, registered at the Stamm yesterday.

J. B. Finster, of Weston, and H. Levy, of Sistersville, were guests at the Windsor.

Prof. I. C. White, of Morgantown, was among yesterday's arrivals at the Windsor.

S. C. Moore, of Proctor, and J. H. McCoy, of Sistersville, were at the Stamm yesterday.

D. G. Courtney, of Raymond City, a well known Kanawha valley man, is at the Windsor.

J. S. Price, of the Cleveland Provision Company, was here looking after the local branch.

R. H. Thompson, a Pittsburgh traveling freight agent, was here yesterday, a guest of the McLure.

Ex-Congressman Ben Wilson, of Clarksville, is here on a business visit, a guest at the Windsor.

Prof. Lyman T. Powell, of Philadelphia, the University Extension lecturer, is a guest at the McLure.

C. G. Hildreth, secretary of the Holly Water Works Company, Lockport, N. Y., autographed at the McLure.

Ex-Governor James E. Campbell, of Hamilton, Ohio, was a guest at the Windsor during his stay here yesterday.

C. A. Dunnington, traveling passenger agent of the Queen & Crescent route, was in the city yesterday on a business visit.

T. M. Garvin and D. K. McCombs left on the Pan Handle for Texas, on the home seekers' excursion. They will remain in the far west several weeks.

E. E. Stewart, of New Martinsville; Mrs. J. R. McCamie and G. A. McCoy, of Sistersville, and F. C. Stewart, of New Martinsville, autographed at the Behler.

Charles Travers, of Pittsburgh, traveling passenger agent of the Chicago & Northwestern, was here yesterday and interviewed the local railway passenger agents.

Miss Fannie Gardner and Miss Maud Curtis, of West Liberty, passed through Wheeling yesterday on their way to Moundsville to attend the district meeting of the Epworth League.

Rev. R. R. Swops and Dr. G. A. Aechman left last evening over the Baltimore & Ohio to attend the meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, which meets in Washington City this week. Thomas Davison, C. P. Flick, Percy Norton, Thomas Danner and Archie Taylor leave to-day.

Photograph Concert. At the First Christian church last evening the Pittsburgh Photograph Company gave an exhibition under the auspices of the C. E. society. The programme, which consisted of songs, recitation, orchestra selections, banjo music, etc., was a fine one, and each number was heartily applauded. A large crowd was present, as the exhibition is quite a novel one.

The spectators claim to have heard the songs and other selections very distinctly in the remotest part of the room. The same entertainment will be given at the Zane Street M. E. church in the near future, under the auspices of the Epworth League.

Nearly an Accident. Last night about 10 o'clock there was a narrow escape from a bad accident at the corner of Fourteenth and Market streets. Mr. Ewing, of Pleasant Valley, was driving up Market, when one of the horses stumbled and fell and in the mix-up that followed the carriage with four ladies nearly turned over; in fact it would have done so but for the help of a driver of one of Burns & Church's wagons who caught the frightened animal.

"Members" Saturday Night. Saturday night Robert Mantell will present one of his strongest plays at the Opera House. This is a play by Adolphe D'Ennery, one of the most prolific and effective of modern French dramatists. It deals with the story of the self-made man who falls in love with one of the aristocracy of France. Mr. Mantell does clever work as Monbars, and his impersonation is quite picturesque.

Notice. I want every man and woman in the United States interested in the Opium and Whisky habits to have one of my books on these diseases. Address B. M. WOODLEY, Atlanta, Ga., Box 390, and one will be sent you free.

BUYING COAL LAND.

Numerous Options Being Taken on Coal Land Over the River.

THE PLANS OF THE PURCHASERS

Are Not Known, and Two Suppositions are Given, One That the Real Purchaser is the Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling Railway Company and That the Coal Will be Worked from Maynard or Martin's Ferry.

Options have been secured on about fifteen hundred acres of coal land commencing at Martin's Ferry and extending to Scotch Ridge, a distance of four miles. The Scotch Ridge farms owned are those of H. M. Pickens, David Thoburn, Mrs. A. J. Alexander, Joseph Majors, James A. Gray and John Coos, and two nearer Martin's Ferry are those of Thomas Gow and E. E. Krauter. A deposit has been made with each of these farmers to make the options binding and the name of the gentleman who is getting them is William Kinsey, of Maynard. The price on most of the land leased is $20 per acre for the coal, and the options are for one year, the money paid to be forfeited if that time if the land is not taken. For what company Mr. Kinsey is taking options is not known to a certainty.

Some persons assert that a company will open an extensive coal works at or near what is known as the Gow coal bank on West Jefferson street and this is why all the land has been secured, while others say it is the land for the Pittsburgh & Wheeling Coal Co., (Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling railroad company) which will work it from the Gow bank opening near Maynard.

A Scotch Ridge man told an INTELLIGENCER representative that the same parties would work out the coal that have the mines at Maynard. One farmer asked $40 per acre for the coal privileges on his farm.

THERE WAS NO QUORUM.

The Council Has no Meeting—Too Much Politics.

The city council failed to get a quorum last night. The first branch was short four and the second three. The Democratic members seemed to take more interest in the Democratic meeting at the Opera House than in the public business entrusted to them. In the second branch Mr. Milligan moved to enforce the rule which authorizes council to compel the attendance of absent members, and Mr. Gruse and he had a rather warm passage over this, and finally on Mr. Gruse's motion the branch adjourned. All the pending business will therefore have to go over for two weeks, unless a special session is sooner called.

A New Industry Organized.

Last evening the American Electric Smelting Company, of this city, met and organized. The directors elected are Dr. John A. Campbell, T. H. B. Inase, Joseph B. Hall, Charles Menkemeller and Robert C. Haase. The following officers were elected: President, Dr. John A. Campbell; vice president and business manager, T. H. B. Inase; manager operating department, Joseph B. Hall; secretary, Robert C. Haase; treasurer, Charles Menkemeller. This company is formed to manufacture aluminum and other metals by electric and other processes, and for the production of articles of like nature, under United States patents owned by the company. It has secured by purchase, free from royalties of any kind, the "Joseph B. Hall's Electrolytic Process."

Death of Eli Gilmore.

Word was received in Bridgeport yesterday that Eli Gilmore, formerly of that city, had died at his home in Columbus. He was in the wholesale grocery business in both places, and was prosperous, respected by all who knew him, and will be sincerely mourned. The remains will probably be brought to his old home at Bridgeport for interment.
