Right Arm Paralyzed!

Saved from St. Vitus Dance.

"Our daughter, Blanche, now fifteen years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. We feared St. Vitus dance, and tried the best physicians, with no benefit. She has taken three bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine and has gained 31 pounds. Her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid."

RING OUT, YE BELLS!

Ring out, ye joyous New Year's bells,
Ring out the old, ring in the new!
Each brazen throat triumphant swells,
As if, old bells, 'twere much to you.
This happy, merry, gladsome time,
You're ringing in with joyful chime.

Perhaps 'tis so; so long you've hung,
So long in that old steeple gray,
Methinks each iron, clanging tongue
Is glad to tell its tale to-day.
Each ringing, swinging, tuneful bell
Its twelve months' tale would gladly tell.

A happy twelvemonth 'twas to some;
Alas! that 'twas not so to all!
But joy and grief alike must come,
Into each life some rain must fall.
Oh, tolling, rolling, heavy bells,
How solemn sound your deep-toned knells!

You've rung for life, you've rung for death,
The gladsome lay, the last sad rite;
You've sped the old year's parting breath,
And welcomed oft the new year bright;
You clanging, twanging noisy bells,
That each a different story tells!

But, oh, your maddest, blithest tune,
Your gayest, brightest, sweetest lay,
You chime from June to sequent June,
On every happy wedding day.
Then trilling, thrilling, blithely swells
Your paean glad, oh, marriage bells!

But, dear old bells, whate'er your song,
Though sad or merry be your lay,
I've loved you well my whole life long,
I'll love you to my dying day.
You rippling, rhythmic, dulcet bells,
Wherein a world of music dwells!

WEST VIRGINIA LOGGING.

A Bright Artistic and Graphic Picture by a Great Authority.

Mr. A. H. Winchester, of Buckhannon, has a bright and interesting letter in The Timberman on the methods of logging in certain parts of West Virginia, a method rapidly going out of practice and confined now to certain small sections, fine big horses having generally taken the places of the little mountain oxen. A portion of the article is given below:

BUCKHANNON, W. VA., Nov. 20.—All through the mountain portion of the south there is no valley so narrow nor hillside so remote as not to offer the familiar sight of the mountaineer's cabin, dotted upon the landscape like raisins on the surface of a fruit cake. Usually the one near the trail is occupied by the father, living with his second wife, with eight or ten small children and his own father and mother. It is a singular and to me an interesting fact that with all my acquaintance with the people of the mountains—and I think it is perhaps as extensive as that of any man now living—I never knew a man, whom I now recall, who had outlived his father, or a home that did not contain a "grandpap" and "grandma." Up every little "seep" and "drain," setting back from the home place, are modestly hid the cabins of the married—I was going to say "grown-up," but that is not always essential—sons by the first wife, whose progeny equal in each instance the number of half brothers and half sisters, but never exceed it, that being considered a breach of family custom not to be thought of in these patriarchal communities. Near the home cabin, built of logs, only differing from those of the sons in having a ladder to climb up into the loft—a tribute to grandpap's rheumatiz'—while they pull themselves up on pegs driven into the wall, stands the "new house," roofed and all but one sided up, with one of the outside end chimneys nearly completed and the other just begun. But at this stage of the construction the rude little dry kiln, heated by direct fire heat, always burns up with all of the finishing lumber. It is never completed, as the mortgage upon the portable mill is foreclosed and operations are suspended before any more can be sawn.

The occasional traveler from the outside world who rides these lonely trails and sees the occupants of the home place in an incidental way, puts them all down as sang diggers; while men of the M. Quad and Opie P. Reid sort, who occasionally catch a glimpse of their cabins out of a sleeping car window, give full credence to the stories telegraphed Wheeling papers by young fellows sent out to the mountains to recover from an attack of the "horrors," and believe them all to be the home of desperadoes, murderers and moonshiners. They base all their pictures of mountain life upon this belief, that, because they do not know mountain men and mountain women, they dress city hack drivers, livery stable hostlers and canal boot cooks in their attire and palm them off upon an unsuspecting public as mountaineers.

We lumbermen know that throughout the lumber region of the mountains south every one of these is a "jobber." What the casual observer takes for coon dogs trailing rabbits, and syndicate writers imagine are bloodhounds running detectives of the revenue department, are their little oxen, ranging through the red brush and fire brakes, their activity occasioned not by the chase of victims, but by a commendable effort to be the first to light upon a sprout or weed as it unfolds its budding leaves upon its initial appearance above the ground. Dogs there are, and in abundance, too; but they are inside the house calmly sleeping on the hearth, while these hardy little oxen, shaped something like the ones our children make by sticking toothpicks for horns and legs into potatoes, range the hills. One end of the new house is full of corn, and in the other end "grandpap" makes new ox yokes or repairs the old ones, which look like the willow twigs we used to bend into similar shapes to work our kittens in, long before Great Hoo Hoo taught us the sacred nature of the cat. What the idle stranger takes for the grape arbor, leading from the little gate up to the front door, is the "shoeing rack," where the diminutive creatures are traced up to be shod.

In this district lies all of West Virginia's lumbering operations west of the Little Kanawha, which includes Tug river and all other tributaries of the Big Sandy, Twelve Pole, Guyandotte, Mud, Coal, New and Lower Gauley and Elk rivers, the only exception that now occurs to me being the Graham Lumber Company's operations on the waters of the Tug, which are carried on just as they would be in a first class lumber camp in Maine or in Wisconsin. The current magazines inform us that "Time has slumbered in our midst, but he has been very kind to the cattle industry here, which, like the farmer's crops, keep growing while he is sleeping, with the result that each father in this locality owns at least five teams and each son at least one. A team consists of five yokes, that being the least number that can be driven without the loss of dignity in the eyes of the community, and is, therefore, the number taken to go after the log chain borrowed by a neighbor, or to get a shoe box to make another cradle, after the old sap-trough ones are filled by the increasing family. When we take into consideration the number of family branches reaching out from the main stem, any attempt to compute the number of these work cattle reminds one of St. Ives' riddle with reference to wives, sacks, cats and kits, and arithmetical progression of the figure 7.

The first step toward logging operations is, of course, a contract to put in all on a given stream or hillside. The second is an advance of credit at the commissary for supplies, which include copper-toed shoes for the "chaps," snuff for the women and salt meat from Chicago. I know a man who killed twenty-seven shoats off the range last fall, who, before the middle of July, had taken over a thousand pounds of meat out of the store. On the following Monday morning after the contract is taken, "grandpap" redoubtles his exertions on the yokes, while "pap" and the sons, with the combined force of "chaps" and dogs, gather up the steers. On Tuesday and up to Wednesday noon, all is life and activity shoeing the steers. By that time they all have to be turned out to fill up on oak brush before undertaking any hard work. It takes all day Thursday to gather them up again. Usually considerable work is done on Friday, unless all hands take into their heads to go to mill, while on Saturday, of course, no work is performed, on the oft-expressed theory that "Saturday is a nigger holiday, and it is a pity if a white man ain't as good as a nigger." Sunday, of course, is given up to the usual visiting and preaching. Beginning with Monday the whole programme is again repeated.

A MARRIAGE MIX.

A Divorced Couple After a License Meet an Obstacle.

Pittsburgh Dispatch of Thursday.

Among the applicants for marriage licenses yesterday was a couple who had been once divorced. The license was refused because there were no decrees of divorce on hand. The contracting parties are middle-aged, and, according to the story told at the Register's office, their lives are tinged with more or less romance. They now reside in Pittsburgh, having come to the city from Wirt county, O., about twenty years ago. They eloped and were married when quite young, against the wishes of their parents. The husband was then of a roving disposition, and, after living for two years with his wife, suddenly disappeared. The parents of the wife prevailed upon her to secure a divorce, she did so, and obtained a decree that permitted them both to marry again. The husband went to Mexico, and in a few years was a prosperous merchant in a big Mexican city. It was some time after his wife secured a divorce that he learned of the fact through a friend, and thinking that she would probably remarry, he hesitated in making known his place of abode. The husband sold out his business in Mexico and came north to settle in Pittsburgh. He was not long in this city until he discovered that his wife had never remarried, but instead often expressed a wish to see him. A second courtship followed, and this time, with the consent of the woman's parents, they decided to venture once again on the matrimonial sea.

About the first question Captain John D. Hieber asks an applicant for a marriage license is: "Were you ever married before?" and if the reply is in the affirmative that question is followed with: "How was the marriage dissolved?" If by death the license is forthcoming. If by divorce a copy of the decree is required. The refusal of the license to the couple just mentioned will evidently cause a big mixup in arrangements for a wedding, as it appeared they had been about completed. As the couple retired from the office they said the copy of the decree could be secured in a few days and they would return for the license.

Another couple was refused yesterday because the would-be groom was under age and intoxicated. He wanted to marry a woman who was many years older than he.

ANY one who has children will rejoice with L. B. Mulford, of Plainfield, N. J. His little boy, five years of age, was sick with croup. For two days and nights he tried various remedies recommended by friends and neighbors. He says: "I thought sure I would lose him. I had seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised and thought I would try it as a last hope, and am happy to say that after two doses he slept until morning. I gave it to him next day and a cure was effected. I keep this remedy in the house now, and as soon as any of my children show signs of croup I give it to them, and that is the last of it." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Charles R. "Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell, and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured me.—Marcus George Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

WHEN A MAN WAKES UP.

Unpleasant Experiences That Spoil His Temper and the Flavor of His Breakfast.

You wake up on a cold, gloomy morning and, unless you are different from most of us, you wish you could sleep a little longer. But it won't do; business calls you. You shiver as you stand in the cold air of your bed room, and, while you are dressing yourself, you cough three or four times.

If you hurry at your toilet the cough comes on again, and when you go out into the street after breakfast you have another paroxysm.

Are you on the verge of galloping consumption? Not a bit of it. But causes you may not have been conscious of have weakened your whole body and the cough is nature's call for reinforcements.

Because it is not a melodious call is no reason why it should be neglected. A body tried by sudden changes of temperature is best protected not by overshoes and mufflers alone, but also by a medicinal stimulant os guaranteed purity.

The people who wrap and bundle themselves, may hack and sneeze all winter. Those who use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey are rewarded for their prudence by freedom from coughs, sore throats and attendant miseries.

Not, because Duffy's Pure Malt acts exclusively on the throat and lungs. Every organ in the body feels its helpful influence. Free from the least taint of foreign matter, it is never confounded with common whiskies, and it is not necessary to explain that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is prepared both for family and medicinal purposes.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

The Features of the Money and Stock Markets.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Money on call easy at 1½@2 per cent; last loan 2 per cent; closed at 2 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 2½@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange quiet and steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4 88½@4 88¾ for demand. Silver certificates 59½c bid. The total sales of stocks to-day were 93,724 shares.

Speculation on the stock exchange reached a point of extreme stagnation to-day, the total sales being less than has been done in a single hour on a fairly active market. Only the small traders entered into the dealings, which were for the most part for the account of the short interest and to close out long contracts which showed a profit. There were occasional bear raids, which were chiefly confined to Sugar. The general market moved independently of the syndicate, the bonds receding to 117½, which is about the price current at the time the new issue was floated, while the syndicate selling price was 119¼. In announcing the disruption of the bond trust a fling is taken at the United States treasury, the action of which on the currency question is declared to be the cause of the dissolution of the syndicate, which had disposed of only 35 per cent of the issue. The remaining 65 per cent will be apportioned to the members according to the original subscriptions, to be disposed of individually.

At the opening of the stock market a generally firm tone prevailed and some shares showed an advance on the closing figures of yesterday. The market soon became heavy and dull, but rallied a fraction after 11 o'clock and continued fairly firm on a light business until 1 o'clock. Then came a rally, and at 2:30 o'clock the tendency was downward during the rest of the day and the market closed weak. Compared with yesterday's closing prices the final sales to-day are very irregular, but the majority of the list is lower. Declines are recorded in Baltimore & Ohio, 1 per cent, and Distilling and Cotton Oil preferred ¾ per cent. Among the advances are Cordage preferred 1⅜, Leather ⅞ and Tobacco ¾ per cent.

The bond market was generally weak during the early session, but closed in a good tone. The total sales were $1,010,500.

Government bonds easy.
State bonds dull.
Railroad bonds firmer.

Chicago—Cattle—Quotations ranged from $3 00 to 5 90 for common to extra steers, with the bulk of the business at $3 75a5 25. Cows and heifers were salable at $1 25a3 50, and there was a fair inquiry for calves at $2 50a5 25. Hogs—With one or two exceptions nothing sold above $4 65, and the bulk of the business was accomplished at prices below $4 60. From $4 10a4 20 bought most of the light and $4 25a4 50 the bulk of the medium and heavy weights. In view of the small receipts, the lack of firmness the market displayed was a surprise. Sheep—The best sheep sold around $3 80 and as high as $4 25 was paid for lambs. Quotations now range from $1 75 to $3 65 for poor to extra sheep and $2 50 to $4 65 for lambs. Receipts—Cattle, 7,000; calves, 300; hogs, 16,000; sheep, 8,000.

Cincinnati—Hogs steady at $3 90a4 60; receipts 2,700 head; shipments, 1,800 head.

Dry Goods.

New York—The severity of the snow storm was a regular set back to any prospective demand, and the office business was belittled by the receipts of mails from the west. There was an irregular demand for colored cottons, and at the reduced prices for wide sheetings very fair engagements were made. At the best, however, the business with commission houses was of nominal proportions. Printing cloths very quiet at 2 11-16c bid for 64 squares, and no sales reported.

Petroleum.

Oil City.—Opened at 95c; highest 95½c; lowest 94½c; closed at 94¾c; sales 2,000 barrels; clearances 70,000 barrels; shipments 94,412 barrels; runs 85,497 barrels.
