ROUSING MEETING

In Fact the best Ward Meeting of the Campaign, was held AT MOZART HALL LAST NIGHT.

ADDRESSES BY SENATOR WHITAKER AND MESSRS. BRADY AND McLURE WERE RECEIVED WITH ENTHUSIASM BY THE LARGE AUDIENCE--MR. BRADY'S TRIBUTE TO SENATOR WHITAKER'S EMINENT SERVICES--LATE POLITICAL NEWS.

The best and largest ward meeting of the campaign was held by the Republicans of Ritchie district last night, at Mozart hall, Eighth ward. The meeting was productive of a very large attendance of voters, and the enthusiasm at times was intense. The speakers were Senator N. E. Whitaker, Hon. Joseph C. Brady and Mr. Harry W. McLure.

Previous to the addresses, good music was made by a drum corps. The stage was prettily decorated with flags and bunting and conspicuous positions were given to portraits of McKinley and Dovenor. Committeeman George Bell called the meeting to order, and Mr. Fred Schaub, member of the board of education for Ritchie district, was elected to the chair. Promptly at 8 o'clock the meeting opened to a large crowd, despite the erroneous statements in local papers that the meeting was to have been held at Mozart park. Seated on the stage, besides the speakers, were Hon. W. H. Blon and Squire Allan. Chairman Schaub introduced Senator N. E. Whitaker as the first speaker.

SENATOR WHITAKER. Senator Whitaker sketched briefly arguments made by the Democrats which led up to the political revolution of 1892. One of these arguments was that no harm could come to the country because Grover Cleveland had been elected for the years from 1884 to 1888, but Senator Whitaker said that Cleveland had to deal with a Republican Congress in his first term; and it is Congress which rules, not the President. So the people listened to the alluring and deceptive voice of Democracy and Grover Cleveland, with a Democratic administration, was elected in the memorable and lamented landslide of 1892.

Continuing, Senator Whitaker recalled the scenes of poverty in Wheeling in 1892, and the hardships suffered by the laboring classes in that "Democratic panic." When he said that he never wanted to see the charitable institutions busy again as they were then, his audience was particularly attentive. "For the first time in Wheeling," said Senator Whitaker, "I saw honest workmen receiving baskets of food and clothes for their children--dependent on charity; and I hope to God I'll never see such a scene again." The audience cheered this remark to the echo.

Senator Whitaker went into further details of Democratic maladministration, and he scored the Cleveland issue of bonds, showing in comparison how President McKinley's war loan was floated. He shattered the "tariff for revenue only" cry, and when he got down to protection for American tin plate his hearers frequently interrupted his remarks with enthusiastic applause. The speaker dealt with historical facts, and they struck home. President McKinley's name was loudly cheered for his connection in giving to this country the great tin plate industry--an industry which has become so important to Wheeling and vicinity. The senator's audience followed the speaker closely through his review of tariff legislation.

The Democrats had wrought bitter experiences to the nation every time they tinkered with the tariff, and in less than two years after they took hold in 1892 the people knew that "a change" had come. And now two years after the Republicans took hold in 1896, the people know that "a change" has come. Since President McKinley has been in the executive chair there has come about a restoration of confidence, for the Democrats paralyzed business and filled the streets and country roads with beggars, tramps and Coxeyite armies, while now approaching the drear months of winter no mention of poverty is heard, for all over the land the mills are running, there are good prices for crops, and the wage-wear and the farmer are singing songs of happiness. Senator Whitaker drew effective pictures of the two years following the '92 landslide in comparison with those following the annihilation of the silver dreamers in '96; and his Ritchietown hearers knew well the difference between those corresponding periods under Democratic and Republican regimes.

CAN'T CHANGE ITS SPOTS. Democracy, argued Senator Whitaker, leopard-like, can not change its spots. It stands for free trade and free silver just as it stood for them in 1892 and 1896. The principles are inseparable from Democracy. The Democrats say there are no issues, but free trade and free silver are just as much issues now as they ever were, for the Democratic party of to-day is the Democratic party of two, or six years ago. Senator Whitaker called attention to these facts in the course of his address, and he warned citizens of the importance of the approaching election. He reminded them that the support of a patriotic administration needed the election of Republican congressmen. To elect Republican United States senators they must elect a Republican legislature. Senator Whitaker called for enthusiastic demonstrations of approval. He insisted that it was the duty of an American citizen to attend the polls one week from to-day to cast his vote for the right, because every citizen is a part of the government, and should root his stamp of approval on a wise administration, which is yet confronted with mighty affairs, in connection with the recent war.

After the applause signaling Senator Whitaker's close had subsided, Chairman Schaub introduced Hon. Joseph C. Brady. The latter gentleman opened up store from the start, and he had the crowd cheering wildly when he complimented Senator Whitaker for his work in the state senate.

BRADY'S GOOD SPEECH. Said Mr. Brady, "Senator Whitaker hasn't bragged about it, but he has saved Ohio county $15,000 a year, in connection with the school tax; getting half of the $30,000 back which the county was assessed." (Cheers.) Mr. Brady further complimented Senator Whitaker, adding that he wasn't after the office, and when Mr. Brady asked if Ohio county wanted to replace him with John Waterhouse, the crowd returned a storm of "no" next discussed the state's finances. He showed up the loose management of Democratic administrations as compared with the Republican. He referred to state orders being hawked about at fifty cents on the dollar under Democratic regime. He also instanced the shaving of the public printer's appropriation. For the past two years the legislature appropriated $64,000, and Mr. Brady said Secretary of State Dawson was authorized by a statement that $40,000 of the appropriation was turned back into the treasury. This saving was effected through economical management. Further proof of the benefits of Republican rule was instanced in the fact, that instead of there being a deficiency of $64,000, as there was when the Democrats got out, there is now a surplus of $24,000. Along this line Mr. Brady scored good points, and he was applauded frequently. Turning to the Republican ticket up for election, Mr. Brady referred to Captain Dovenor's eminent services in Congress, in reference to river improvements and other matters affecting West Virginia. He urged the election of a Republican legislature, and a board of county commissioners as well, and when he referred to the "counting out" process under a Democratic majority in the board, his audience understood.

McLURE KEPT 'EM GOING. When Mr. Brady concluded there were cries of "McLure!" and the cries grew in volume until the genial legislative candidate was compelled to leave his seat and ascend to the stage. Mr. McLure was happy in his opening, and he kept the audience on the roar, while referring to the Register with its nineteen-year-old political editors. He said that he hoped that if one of the editors was present he wouldn't report the meeting as a "frost," but would term it "ice cream." Mr. McLure bombarded the free trade and free silver camps with considerable force, and eloquence. He asked citizens who wanted free trade or free silver to vote for Blair, if they want another reign of soup houses vote for the Democratic candidate for Congress. But if they want a continuation of the reign of prosperity they should vote for Captain Dovenor. Republican principles have been tried and found true, the Democratic found wanting, therefore it isn't likely they want "a change."

Mr. McLure amused the crowd in telling them that Colonel Arnett, and John A. Howard, who have bitten the dust for Captain Dovenor, couldn't be dragged out of the city to make speeches through the district, despite the frantic appeals made. Both Colonel Arnett and Mr. Howard said they had nothing to talk about, and they couldn't be prevailed on to take the stump. Why, said the speaker, "Johnny" Howard was billed to speak at Weston--according to a current story--and he didn't want to go, so he declared his refusal to Chairman M. D. Post, of the congressional committee; whereupon Mr. Post, in desperation, said to Mr. Howard, "Well give me your pass and speech, and I'll go." The recital of this incident was done in Harry's best style.

In praising the congressional and legislative tickets, Mr. McLure said he hoped to see the day when Nelson E. Whitaker would be elected to the United States senate, and he said that if he went to Charleston he would have no greater pleasure than in casting his vote for Mr. Whitaker for that high office. This sentiment was received with a remarkable display of enthusiasm.

ANOTHER GOOD MEETING. A large and enthusiastic meeting of Republicans was held last night at Pleasant Valley, Marshall county, and attended by a large number of the fair sex. The speakers were Messrs. M. H. Willis, of Doddridge county, and B. F. Meighen, of Moundsville. Both speakers were in excellent form and discussed the issues in a manner that appealed to their hearers with particular force. The meeting was one of the best ever held in Pleasant Valley.

Mr. T. B. Ritchie officiated as chairman, and the honors of secretary fell to Miss Blanche Livingston, than whom no better selection could have been made. From every view-point the meeting was a magnificent success.

THE SMITH MEETING. The announcement that Postmaster General Smith, of the President's cabinet, will be one of the speakers at next Friday's meeting in the Opera House, has been received with enthusiasm. Hon. W. P. Hubbard has been chosen to preside, and to-day or to-morrow County Chairman Hornish will announce a number of vice presidents who are to occupy seats on the stage.
