The Story of the Sale--
 Drastic situations demand drastic remedies. Sales are usually conducted toward the end of the regular season, when the bulk of the business has been done. But circumstances alter cases, as you will understand by reading on further. Now is the season when every merchant is securing the biggest profits of the year. That this is good business it is impossible to contradict, and we should not conduct a sale until the very end of the season. Our mistake (we admit it) was made in buying too heavily. Every shelf and counter is overflowing with the season's swiftest merchandise, for although we have had a very good season so far, we realize clearly that if we do not have a strong sale right now in the heart of the season, we will be compelled to carry over thousands of dollars worth of goods. Rather than do this we are compelled to utterly annihilate every profit and get out the bare cost of the goods if possible. BUT THE MAIN THING IS TO DISPOSE OF THE GOODS. To insure a sensational success we have marked hundreds of articles actually far less than the cost in the whole sale markets. It will prove a positive revelation to the buyers of this community and enable you to get goods in many cases half what you will have to pay today in any other store in Clarksburg.
