Archeologists Believed on Verge of Great Discoveries in Districts of Central America.

Important medical and economical discoveries that will be of great value to the modern life of the peoples of the world are on the verge of being made at the present time in several districts of Central America by American archeologists.

This prophecy was made by Prof. William Gates, president of the Maya society, in an address delivered at the meeting, at Johns Hopkins university, of the Archeological Institute of America, the Philological association and the Maya society.

Prof. Gates brought forth in his talk the fact that in Central America there has recently been discovered the evidences of an ancient race of people, with a civilization as old and as cultured as that of the ancient Egyptians.

The plans of an eminent group of American archeologists for further exploration of the remains of this ancient race were dwelt on by the speaker. These workers, he declared, hold forth the promise to the American people of a new region, rich with archeological material, the surface of which has yet only been scratched.

Among the most important discoveries expected to be made there are the unearthing of further native medical works, some of which are already in the hands of the Maya society, that will add valuable specific pharmacopoeia and medical knowledge to that society in this country.

The death of Anders Zorn, the famous etcher, brought the talk round to Whistler, and a Pittsburgh poet said: "Whistler and Walter Sickert were once printing etchings together. Sickert, stumbling, had the misfortune to drop a copper plate.
"How like you!" said Whistler, jolly.
"Hardly five minutes later Whistler, usually the deffest, surest of men, dropped a copper plate himself. He stooped and picked it up. Then he murmured:
"How unlike me!"

"How do you account for his drowning? I thought he was an excellent swimmer?"
"So he was but after his body was recovered, we found that he had been so loaded down with a cigarette case, a fancy match box, a metal cigar clipper, a patent cigar lighter, a gold-trimmed fountain pen and a few other metallic curios and novelties that he didn't have a chance."
