RADICAL TALK ON A WARM DAY.

Socialistic Utterances of Organizer Bryan Before the Trades Assembly.

CAPITAL AGAINST LABOR.

He Would Sacrifice All Millionaires That the White "Slaves" Might Be Free.

The Ohio Valley Trades & Labor Assembly met at their hall yesterday afternoon and transacted some comparatively unimportant business. Mr. Bryan, of Cleveland, organizer of street car unions, was present and addressed the delegates. His remarks were of a decidedly pessimistic nature and took on the tinge of a Democratic political speech. He referred to Cleveland as the home of the President of the United States, Mark Hanna.

President Bauer, of the assembly, rapped the meeting to order at 2 o'clock and there was a good attendance of delegates present. Credentials were received from the following, and they were duly obligated: James Hiems, John Fitzgerald and George Weiser, of Virginia Lodge No. 4, A. A. of I. & S. W.; Charles Huggins and E. D. Mooncy, of Local Union No. 126, A. F. G. W. U.; H. S. Hart, William Carroll and William Howard, of Wheeling Lodge No. 5, A. A. of I. S. & T. W.; Peter Hillenbrand, of the A. M. C. & B. W. of N. A. Peter Putnam was elected to fill the unexpired term of J. V. Glatz, of the Journeyman Horseshoers Union.

Chairman Boes, of the organization committee, made a report regarding the condition of affairs in the clerk's union. He started out to say they were in a bad way and the union about to collapse, when Delegate Sims rose to a point of order on the grounds that it was a private affair of that local and he did not think such matters should be aired in the assembly. Mr. Boes was in a quandary and did not know how to proceed. He was told by the chair that the committee had full power to reorganize locals and that they should proceed with the work of reorganizing the clerks' union.

Chairman Bauer called on Mr. Bryan for remarks and he arose and addressed the delegates. He started out by addressing the delegates as "fellow slaves." He said he was always ready to raise his voice in the interests of the toiling masses. His remarks were those of a misanthrope inasmuch as he took a pessimistic view of affairs all over the country. He said that wealth was stored labor and added that the capitalists had stored their wealth while the workingman had forgotten to store his labor. He painted a dark picture of conditions in the south. Children of tender age down there, he said, were laboring in the factories and at meagre compensation.

The speaker went on to say that the laboring men were the conservators of the moral atmosphere of the country and the sooner they woke to that fact the better it would be for them. He drew a simile of an elephant at the circus being led by a man whose strength was as a pigny to a giant in comparison. The elephant, if he knew his strength, could hurl his captor into kingdom come. This was the condition with labor. They did not know their own strength. He said that the wealth of the country belonged to the workingmen and they should receive their share of what they produce. They produce 100 per cent and receive seven and one-half per cent. He saw the Rockefeller monopoly at Cleveland and said he did not care how soon all of his kin were buried under it. Rockefeller was a great Baptist, but was so smeared over with oil that water would not have any effect upon him. He would give $100,000 to the cause of religion to-day and raise the price of oil a quarter of a cent to-morrow to pay for it.

Continuing further, Mr. Bryan said he would be willing to sacrifice all the millionaires in the country in order that the white slaves might be free. He said there was no such thing as freedom in this country. People said he was an idealist. What was idealistic to-day would be realistic to-morrow. Business men were the paupers between the producer and the consumer. If they had brains enough to last them over night they would get into the labor movement. Higher wages to labor would increase the volume of business. Concluding the speaker said the fault was not over-production as has been said, but it was under consumption.

The assembly then launched into a discussion as to the best way to carry out the plans for the labor day picnic. Some of the delegates wanted a street demonstration, but it was voted down, as the time is too short to arrange anything of a creditable nature. They then adjourned, after which the picnic committee met and perfected plans for the labor day picnic to be held at the State Fair grounds next Monday.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Star Boarder" is the name of a new, up-to-date farce comedy that will be presented at the Grand Opera House, for three nights and Saturday matinee, commencing Thursday, August 30. It is one of those absurdities that touch a tender place in laughing-loving play-goers. No piece was ever offered that fulfills the ideal so perfectly as a fun-maker, as this latest invention. The mirror is correctly "held up to nature" in the representation of boarding house life and a star-boarder. Charles H. Boyle appears in the title role and infuses into the character all the peculiar action and merriment it requires. A galaxy of pretty girls in gay gowns, songs, medleys, dances and specialties form a magnetic combination that wins enthusiastic commendation from all classes of theatre patrons.

Civil Service "Exam."

Application form 101 must be filed in complete form with the secretary of the board prior to the hour of closing business on October 23; otherwise, the applicants cannot be examined.

FAILED TO HALT,

And a Young Man Was Shot and Killed by a Policeman.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 25.—For failing to halt while carrying a box of beer through the streets at an early hour this morning, when ordered to do so by a policeman, John P. Brady, aged 29 years, was shot and instantly killed by one of two policemen who fired one shot at Brady and two companions. Brady and his two friends had purchased the beer for use at a picnic to-day and were carrying it to the home of one of the party. On the way they passed Policemen Charles H. Wilson (colored) and George Kenkel, who ordered them to halt. The three young men became frightened, dropped the beer and started to run. They were again ordered to stop, the policeman said, and not heeding the officers' warning of bodily harm, the policemen shot and Brady fell dead. The two policemen were placed under arrest.
