GOV. M'KINLEY

Seriously Embarressed, if not Bankrupted by a Friend.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 17.—Robert L. Walker, banker, capitalist and manufacturer, has made an assignment to Hal K. Taylor, and probably will carry Gov. McKinley down in the wreck, leaving him without a dollar.

A judgment for $5,050 was entered in court to-day against Walker and the Youngstown Stamping Company, of which he is President, and a levy made on the plant. Walker immediately executed mortgages on a farm and his homestead to partially protect Gov. McKinley and Thomas Guy, who were indorsers of his paper for large amounts. Ascertaining that financial ruin was certain, Walker made an assignment, and on application of creditors, W. C. Hine was appointed receiver of the Youngstown Stamping Company.

Walker engaged in numerous enterprises, including the stamping works, Girard stove works, coal mines at Salineville and West Newton, Pa., and made other investments, requiring a large outlay of money, that exhausted his resources and did not prove productive.

Gov. McKinley and Walker have been close personal friends from boyhood, and when the latter desired his signature on negotiable paper the Governor freely gave it, having the utmost confidence in his friend, and believing him to be wealthy. Gov. McKinley arrived here to-day, and is trying to ascertain the extent of his liability as indorser.

The liabilities of Walker are estimated at $250,000, with assets less than $100,000.

Gov. McKinley said to-night: "All that I desire to say is that I will pay every note of Mr. Walker's on which I am indorser and no one shall lose a dollar through me."

Figures were obtained to-night showing that Gov. McKinley is on $60,000 of the Walker paper.

Walker has a spotless reputation in the business community.

Fair Will Be Shut Sundays.

CHICAGO, ILL., Feb. 20.—The battle of the minority against the majority for the opening of the World's Fair on Sunday has been given up as hopeless.

The Christian people of the United States may now rest assured that the gates of the Exposition will be closed unconditionally and without exception on the first day of the week.

Rules governing the rates of entrance and admission fees to the grounds were promulgated yesterday.

The first regulation provides that the gates shall be closed on Sunday, unless Congress decides otherwise.

Bequeathed His Heart to His Wife.

Major Carl Brandt, for many years editor of the Belleville Zeitung, the leading German newspaper in Southern Illinois, died several years ago, leaving a will, one paragraph of which directed that his heart should be sent to his wife in Germany. He was married in the Fatherland when a young man, but became estranged from his wife and came to this country. He often said, however, that his heart was still true to her and that he would return it to her after death. The heart was taken out and is now being prepared for shipment.

The bill introduced in the Texas Legislature legalizing lynching is such an outrageous proposition that it can scarcely be credited. It grants immunity to homicides where the crime they perpetrate occurrs before their victims have completed their offense. In such extreme cases as that of the negro who was tortured to death at Paris the offenders may be legally killed by a mob within sixty days after the misdeed. The bill provides, of course, for holding persons accountable where it is established that the victims of the mob are innocent, but this feature would prove entirely nugatory. This attempt to logalize popular brutality is a striking reflection upon Texas civilization.

HOW TO CURE LYING.

The Varieties of This Disease as it Affects Children.

Miss Harrison, Superintendent of the Kindergarten College in Chicago, tells how she would undertake to cure a child of lying.

"Lying," she said, "is too often treated locally, when it should be constitutionally treated. There are almost as many sorts of lies as of fevers.

"There is, for example, exaggeration, which comes from excess of imagination. That is to be cured by teaching accuracy of observation. Make the child count all the objects in the room. Make him hold steadily to proved facts in everything. Then there is the lie of egotism, which is always claiming everything for itself. Ignore the story. Make it seem not worth his while.

"The lie which denies is the fault of older people. Punishment has been given arbitrarily. That is to be corrected in the guardian. The hardest fault to correct in a child, or any one else, is the deep lie of jealousy, the malicious lie. It always comes fom jealousy, and there seems to be only one possible remedy. Get the jealous child to perform some service for the other. Make him participate in the other's life, in some way become a partner as it were and the jealousy ceases."

FROM THE PINEY WOODS

Of the North to the Everyglades of the South, druggists are besieged by people with every shade of Rheumatism, inquiring about Dr. Drummond's Remedy: "Will it cure me?" And the druggist points to the fact that the Drummond Medicine Co., 48-50 Maiden Lane, New York, offers a reward of $500 for a case their remedy will not cure. That kind of answer is satisfying, and the sufferer planks down five dollars and goes home and is cured. Not only relieved, but cured. Agents wanted. 14-2

HOOD'S CURES.

In saying that Hood's Sarsaparilla cures, its proprietors make no idle or extravagant claim. Statements from thousands of reliable people of what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for them, conclusively prove the fact—Hood's Sarsaparilla cures.

Hoods Pills act especially upon the liver, rousing it from torpidity to its natural duties, cure constipation and assist digestion.

Found—the reason for the great popularity of Hood's Sarsaparilla—simply Hood's.

Mr. Albert Favorite, of Arkansas City, Kan., wishes to gives our readers the benefit of his experience with colds. He says: "I contracted a cold early last spring that settled on my lungs, and had hardly recovered from it when I caught another that hung on all summer and left me with a hacking cough which I thought I never would get rid of. I had used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy some fourteen years ago with much success, and concluded to try it again. When I had got through with one bottle my cough had left me, and I have not suffered with a cough or cold since. I have reccommended it to others and all speak well of it." 50 cent bottles for sale by H. L. Wells. f

In these perilous days of cholera, typhus and typhoid fever it would be well to vary the old apothegm and "Trust in God and keep clean."

A correspondent of the Pocahontas Times, writing from Three Forks Camp, Webster county, says the W. Va. & P. Railroad Co. is having prepared samples of timber of that county for the World's Fair. Slabs eight inches thick, six feet long and as wide as can be got are being cut. The finest piece will be a poplar six feet wide, making a complete square. The tree it was taken from, scaled 17,400 feet. The largest spruce scaled 3,880.—Ex.

A SNAKE STORY.

The Serpent Takes Possession of a Hornet's Nest.

Prof. R. R. Powell of Broaddus College, while loitering in the front editorial room of the TELEGRAM building yesterday, related some interesting reminences of W. S. White, of Fredericksburg, Va., who is gaining a wide reputation as a writer of short stories. Prof. Powell and White are old personal friends and at our request the Professor took from his pocket one of White's papers and read us one of his latest snake stories, which was as follows:

He claims that while traveling to Tappahannock he saw a large blacksnake slowly crawling among the branches of a tree that stood by the roadside. Following the snake with his eye the observer saw an unusually large hornets' nest attached to one of the branches of the tree, and toward which the snake was advancing.

When close to the nest the snake coiled itself about a limb, releasing its tail, and with it gave several hard raps upon the exterior of the nest as if knocking for admission. The noise of the blows and the swaying of the nest caused the hornets to leave their home and prepare for an attack upon the intruder. The snake ceased tapping with its tail as soon as the hornets left the nest, uncoiling itself, and quickly disappeared, taking the place of the hornets within their nest.

Presently the snake's head was seen to peer out, and its bright, black eyes glistened as he anticipated a feast from which the bravest man would shrink with fear. The snake drew his head within the entrance hole to the nest until nothing was seen of it except an occasional forked tongue that darted in and out with lightning rapidity. Thinking the coast clear the hornets began to return to their nest, when the snake took them in as fast as they could enter. Watching the proceedings for some time our informant concluded that all the hornets had been safely hived, and he stood up in his buggy, tapped the nest with his whip, and awaited the result.

No hornets appearing, the nest was then knocked to the ground, opened and his snakeship discovered in a torpid condition, with his size greatly increased. The snake was killed and a post-mortem held, with the following result: Stomach stuffed with dead hornets.

ANACHRONISMS ON CANVAS.

One Painter Armed the Children of Israel with Guns.

The anachronisms of painters would, according to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, make a curious chapter in a collection of literary and artistic oddities. The famous Italian painter, Jacopo Tintoretto, in one of his most celebrated pictures, the "Fall of Manna," when representing the children of Israel gathering manna in the wilderness, took the precaution to arm several of the men with guns. He was not outdone by Cigoli, another famous Italian artist, who represented the aged Simeon at the circumcision of the Saviour as wearing a pair of enormous spectacles, while Verrio, in a picture of Christ healing the sick, fitted out the bystanders with three-cornered cocked hats and full-bottomed wigs. The noted Durer dressed the angel who expelled Adam and Eve from Paradise in a gown with flounces, and in his picture of Peter denying Christ represented a Roman soldier as smoking a long Low-Dutch pipe. The Dutch painters have been famous for their anachronisms. One represented the wise men who visited Christ as wearing cavalry boots, spurs and long sabers; another represented Abraham as about to shoot Isaac with a blunderbuss. Berlin, in a picture of the Virgin and the child, shows them listening to a man playing the violin. The French Dubois, in a picture of the Last Supper, placed on the table a goblet filled with cigar lighters, while Tarrant, to complete the list, represented the expulsion from Eden, the unhappy pair being driven out into a swamp, while not far away a man with a gun was shooting ducks.

HOW A STEER TOOK REVENGE.

Getting Help, It Proceeded to Punish a Cow Which Had Hurt It.

A cow and a steer—the latter two to three years old—were the only occupants of the barnyard where an occurrence described by the Popular Science Monthly took place. A baiting of hay was put to them, the cow taking possession. The steer wished to share it, but the cow, like some higher animals, was selfish, and was bent on taking the whole of it, and as often as he would maneuver around from side to side to get a bite she would drive him off at the point of her horns. The steer was so persistent that at last the old cow's patience gave way, and, making a determined and vicious charge on him, punished him severely, though he was her own offspring. The steer felt badly hurt, not only in body but evidently in mind as well, and immediately started out of the yard and off down the lane toward the pasture, where were the rest of the stock, bellowing vengeance at every step in a language which was unmistakable to the bystander and which the mother well understood, as she ceased eating and listened intently to the threatening of what was to come. When these died away in the distance she resumed her ration, but with evident apprehension. In due time the steer was seen returning, bringing with him a companion larger and stronger than himself. As they approached the rumblings of rage and revenge could be again heard, which grew louder as they came nearer. The cow took in the situation at once and was now terror-stricken. As her assailants rushed into the yard she dodged them and rushed out at life-and-death speed and away toward the rest of the stock in the field, with her pursuers close in her tracks.

An Old Rose Silk Transformed.

A somewhat dingy old rose silk gown and a somewhat worn old black lace gown were once upon a time by ingenuity made into a charming house dress. The lace had a vine-like pattern and was cut into strips about an inch and a quarter wide, each showing the viney line. These were joined to black satin ribbon of the same width. The dingy old rose silk was sponged and freshened. The slightly trained skirt had two narrow ruffles of black satin ribbon set on the bottom and was covered with an overskirt of the lace and ribbon. The plain silk bodice was covered with a full, gathered baby waist of the same. Puffs of the lace and ribbon over the pink reached to the elbow and were met by a deep plain puff. The black satin belt was fastened by a big rosette of narrow black satin and the old rose ribbons.

Fruit or Flowers in Jelly.

A luncheon dish which is a feast to the eye as well as to the palate is jelly and fruit or flowers. The jelly portion is made from gelatine, flavored with wine, lemon, rose or orange, or something more choice, colored a pale rose, or green if one chooses, or left the light yellow natural to it. A little of the jelly should be put in the bottom of the mould, and when it has hardened the flowers or fruit are laid in and the liquid jelly poured in to fill the mould. Grapes in a large bunch, pink roses with their leaves, violets, strawberries, or glaced fruits or crystalized flowers may be used. The decoration should be as near the surface as possible and yet be well covered by the gelatine.

Wrinkles Once More.

Wrinkles appear because the fine muscles of the face lose their tone, the tissue shrinks, and skin fits itself to the depressions which are thus left. It is a mistake to suppose that wrinkles can be wholly eradicated, especially those which are due to advancing years. Let us "grow old gracefully," and accept the inevitable with the best grace possible. A cheerful disposition will do wonders towards lighting up the face and making one's friends forget or overlook entirely the signs of advancing years. But wrinkles frequently come on prematurely and prove extremely vexatious.

Papa's Consent.

She—Isn't it lovely? Papa consents.

He—Does he, really?

She—Yes, he wanted to know who you were, and I told him you were tape-clerk at Scrimp & Co.'s, and he seemed real pleased.

He—I am delighted.

She—Yes, and he said we could be married just as soon as you were taken into the firm.—N. Y. Weekly.

Her Question.

Briggs—I called on Miss Birdseye the other day in my new suit, and when I kissed her she was quite indignant, until I told her it was always the custom to christen a new suit in that way.

Griggs—Then what did she say?

Briggs—She wanted to know if that was the only new suit I had.—Clothier and Furnisher.

ALWAYS GET THE BEST.

Persons who suffer from rheumatism want immediate relief. It is not enough that the pain should be eased, and the appetite be increased. Anything short of a cure is only prolonging torture. The poisonous acids in the blood, which is the direct cause of Rheumatism, are immediately and effectually expelled by Dr. Drummond's Lightning Remedy. Where it fails to perform a cure, the price is refunded. If the druggist cannot furnish it the remedy will be sent prepaid to any address on receipt of price, five dollars, Drummond Medicine Co., 48-50 Maiden Lane, New York. Agents wanted. 14-2

MISERY OF A CAMEL RIDE.

Sore Bones and a Fall the Fate Which Usually Befalls a Novice.

There is something inexpressibly repelling in the supercilium triste of a camel as he looks scornfully at you with his nose in the air, says a writer in the London Spectator. But I overcame my repugnance and mounted one, after receiving careful instructions how to retain my seat while the brute was getting up. It was well enough while he walked, but when he began to trot a brisk pace I devoutly wished myself astride on a humbler animal. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished to make him go to the right I must hit him on the left side of the head with a very short stick, with which I had been provided for the purpose. But that was more easily said than done. How was I, from my giddy perch, to reach the creature's head across that long stretch of neck? I tried it and nearly lost my balance for my pains—no joke at a height of some ten feet above the pebbly sand. One of the officers, however, saw my plight, stopped, uttered some gurgling sound, and then the camel, exposing its teeth and protesting vigorously, knelt down, and I dismounted, vowing that never again would I choose that mode of locomotion. My deliverer, who exchanged his donkey for my camel, laughed heartily at my discomfiture. But I had my revenge speedily, for in the exuberance of his gayety he allowed the camel to rise unexpectedly and was pitched head over heels on the ground. He was not hurt and he joined in the laugh against himself as heartily as he had laughed at me.
