An Innocent Drummer. He bade his wife a tearful good-by. "My love, my only one! The time will soon be here when I shall be in a position to snap my fingers at fate and set up as my own boss.

"Oh, dear, no! Are you sure you will look at it sometimes, love?" "You wicked little drummer; you know I should be wretched without at least such a precious semblance of my pet to look at daily, nightly."

"The dear fellow, how he will scold me for the trick," she thought; "but I will send him the photo in the very first letter."

Her husband had been saying his prayers abroad that evening, and when he got to his hotel about midnight his spiritual emotions received a rude shock by a telegram from his "only love."

"What the devil did I write to her, anyway?" he muttered. After a while his face cleared. "By Jove! I must have been piling on taffy. That's what a man gets for trying to make a woman feel good!

"Send, me, first mail, photo of my wife. Beg, borrow, steal it somehow. Mum's the word. Will write particulars." About a week later, a drummer, in dignified martyrdom, stood face to face with a stern but very wept-out wife.

NOW TRY THIS. It will cost you nothing and will surely do you good, if you have a cough, cold, or any trouble with throat, chest or lungs.

impulse she followed, thanking heaven he had not locked her out. "Well!" she began, with wavering courage, "what have you to say for yourself?"

"Yes, you." "Woman, if it were not for the over-mastering love I bear you, I should never, never look upon you more!"

"What any intelligent, right-minded wife should have thought; you would have said to yourself: He is incapable of deceit; he has my picture anyhow."

"Oh woman! without an atom of faith!" Then he put his hand in his pocket and produced the photograph.

"My dear," said he, looking into her face with grave but loving reproach, "let this be a warning. Never doubt me again, no matter what appearances may be. I can always look you squarely in the eyes and say, I am innocent."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR LESSON. Baptist church Friday night, June 2, Mr. J. R. Adams, leader; Presbyterian church every Sunday evening at 7.30 p. m.

The Bible is not only a book of faith, but also of practice; not only a book of doctrines, but also of morals and of principles. It illustrates ideal character. It also describes them.

The essential qualification of character by the Bible ideal is the faithful performance of duty in the various relations of life. This is also illustrated in the examples before us.

The results of such a character by the Bible are praise and just reward. Of the woman it is said: "Her children arise and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her."

Good Manners and Good Morals. Good manners are closely allied to good morals; therefore proper behavior ought to be enforced in Sunday schools.
