NOT TOO LATE YET TO SOW SOY BEANS Declares W. D. Zinn, the Agricultural Agent of Harrison County, in Article. (By W. D. Zinn, County Farm Agent.) The rainy season has no doubt deterred many farmers from planting as much corn as they had intended to plant and some may begin to conclude that they will have to forego the planting of as many soy beans as they expected to plant, but it is too early in the game to abandon the planting of beans yet. Our station advises farmers to plant them as late as July 10 for hay. I have planted them July 12 and they grew waist high. It is impossible to get the soy beans in by July 10, millet or sudan grass may be sown up to July 15 and still make a lot of feed. One thing is greatly desired and that is that Harrison county shall grow more roughage in 1919 than she ever did and to accomplish this every farmer must do his part. Podder corn may be planted yet. Drill it in thirty inches apart between the rows and cultivate a few times. You will be surprised at the amount of feed you can grow on an acre of ground in this way.
