Why Oklahoma Government Indian Lands Sold by the U. S. Government Offer The Best Investment on Earth.

This is What the Newspapers Say:

Chilton Turned Down.
The Chilton candidate for chairman was C. W. Osenton, of Fayette county, and Senator Chilton did not give up hope until the very last of getting control of the committee by slipping in Osenton.

As an evidence that Cushing still has a strong kick in either hand, the Hill Oil & Gas Co. Saturday night drilled in a well that started off at a 12,000-barrel clip and yesterday was making right around 10,000 barrels a day.

That the greater part of the future oil and gas development in Oklahoma must be in the southeastern part of the state, and that there is very little hope for Western Oklahoma along that line, is the opinion of Professor Charles N. Gould, formerly director of the Oklahoma Geological survey.

As stated, Senator Chilton and his friends are not blind to this contingency and are building the best they know to forestall it, and to compel fair treatment from the organization even though it is manned by those who would shed no tears if he were compelled to fork over his senatorial toga to Howard Sutherland.

U. S. Government Indian Land Sale in Southeastern Oklahoma. Outright Sale—You do not have to live on this land. No improvement required by the government. Chance of a lifetime to buy land at a few dollars per acre. Direct from Uncle Sam on easy payments. Information Free.

NO CHARGE FOR ADMISSION
OKLAHOMA INDIAN LAND CAR
On B. & O. Railroad Tracks, Koblegard & Co., and B. & O. Depot, Glen Elk.

With a retirement prospect attached to it, Senator Chilton has believed for months, ever since Judge Atkinson resigned, that he had what amounted to a promise from the president to appoint Mr. Johnson. He was very sanguine that his man would land, and very earnest and active in Johnson's belief.

CUSHING FIELD IS STILL COMING STRONG.

Hill Company Gets 10,000-Barrel Well in the South End of Pool.

As an evidence that Cushing still has a strong kick in either hand, the Hill Oil & Gas Co. Saturday night drilled in a well that started off at a 12,000-barrel clip and yesterday was making right around 10,000 barrels a day.

COMING OIL AND GAS FIELD IS IN THE SOUTHEAST.

That the greater part of the future oil and gas development in Oklahoma must be in the southeastern part of the state, and that there is very little hope for Western Oklahoma along that line, is the opinion of Professor Charles N. Gould, formerly director of the Oklahoma Geological survey.

OKLAHOMA BOY WILL BE RICH MAN, GETS $100 A DAY.

Cushing, Okla., May 22.—Under date of Saturday, May 2, the Kansas City Daily Star prints the following story: "Running wild, free and irresponsible as a colt, oblivious to the events of the world as an Eskimo, in a four-room house on a rocky Oklahoma farm of 80 acres lives a ten-year-old Afro-American boy who doesn't know that he is one of the richest boys in the state, and if he did, the fact would carry no significance to his brain.

PROSPERITY IN OKLAHOMA.

In eighteen years Oklahoma has been transformed from a cattle range and Indian hunting ground into a state equal in industrial wealth and agricultural resources to almost any of the forty-six states of the Union. People can understand how the farm lands of Oklahoma were so quickly developed because they knew that thousands settled upon them in a single day, but the world has looked in wonder at the marvelous growth of the cities and towns.

PLEASANT CLIMATE THE YEAR ROUND.

The winters are short and never severe and the summers are not excessively warm. The farmer can break his soil for new crops when the greater part of the country is under a blanket of snow, and he is still able to work in his fields long after operations have been suspended in the north and east.

$175 INVESTMENT IN OIL NETS $83,000.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 15.—Oklahoma oil is today the source of the greatest natural wealth the world has ever known. With the price of oil jumping almost weekly, it reached the highest figure in history a few days ago when it went to $155 a barrel and the world looks upon Oklahoma in breathless awe and amazement.

HUGE OIL DEAL BY LOCAL MAN.

E. T. Richards, of this city, has sold 210 acres of his oil land in the Healdton field to the Cosden interests for $650,000. He could have secured $75,000 more for the 210 acres after the parties had purchased an option on the property and before the deal was closed. He has realized more than a million dollars from this property including the royalties and the sale price, the royalties at the time of the sale amounted to $35,000 a month. Mr. Richards estimates that if conditions in the oil business remain as good as they are now the purchasers will have their money back within three years.

OKLAHOMA WELL MAKES MILLION IN SIXTY DAYS.

Tulsa, Okla., May 1.—"Oklahoma's greatest oil well" is the title that has been given to the Gypsy Oil company's and Frank A. Gillespie's well in the Jackson Barnett allotment in the heart of the world-famous Cushing oil pool. This well has produced more than half a million barrels of the highest grade oil in the southwest, and has made its owners nearly $1,000,000 in sixty days.

OIL LEASES BRING UNPRECEDENTED WEALTH TO LAND OWNERS AND CROPS ARE GOOD.

Special to The World.
LANGLING, Okla., June 5.—Since the first of last August land owners in two townships of the Healdton district have received over $1,500,000 cash for leases on their lands, according to T. D. Wagner, local realty dealer, who has just made an estimate of the amount of business done in a region where wildcatting has been active and lease values soaring. These townships are three and four in two south end three and four in three south, embracing territory where the big Gypsy wells are and the operations about Milroy.

OIL AND GAS DRILLING IN PITTSBURG COUNTY.

The oldest inhabitants of Pittsburg county cannot remember when there were not fissures at various parts of the county from which gas had issued. In the southeastern part of the county one stream is covered with a seam of black oil and the memory of man cannot run back to when this phenomenon was first observed. Geologists of the United States and Holland have declared that if there is anything in geology at all, one of the greatest oil pools in America is within a radius of 30 miles of McAlester.

HALF MILLION FOR LEASES.

The Prairie Oil & Gas Co. paid $500,000 for a lease of 320 acres in the new field being opened up north and west of Augusta, according to the Augusta papers.

SPECTACULAR PROFITS IN THE OIL FIELDS.

The oil districts have fairly gone mad because of the number of new wells that have come in, and the price the product brings. Down at Tulsa, Oklahoma, no one mentions a sum less than $1,000,000. The lobbies of the hotels there are said to resemble New York's curb market in its maddest moments.

STRUCK OIL; PLUGGED WELL.

Word from Kiowa is to the effect that the Okla-toka Oil and Gas company, drilling on the T. D. Bell allotment, four miles west of Kiowa, 17-3-13, have made a real oil strike. At just what depth or in what quantity, however, nobody in authority to give actual information is willing to tell. Under instructions from the company managers drillers have plugged the well and refuse to give out information.

HOW PARSON LIFTED MORTGAGE.

In the Eldorado oil field dwelt a minister of the Gospel who had lost his eyesight. He owned an 80-acre farm of land, but being unable to work it properly, he was in financial distress. A mortgage was coming due and prospects were discouraging. The minister had a family of ten children, but they were young and not a source of help to him. Of course the minister prayed for assistance, but there was nothing doing. Then one day a man, wearing high-topped shoes and a make-up similar to that which goldmine heroes wear in moving pictures, knocked at the minister's door. There was some conversation. Finally, the man said to the preacher, "I'll give you $500 bonus on your land if you lease it to me." The minister was astounded. "Come tomorrow," he said; "I wish to inquire into this matter before I sign away any of my rights." So the minister made inquiries. A friend advised him to be in no hurry; to watch and wait. Better bids were sure to come. And they did. Now that minister is receiving an income of $300 a day from the oil on his land; his ten children are happy and well dressed, that old mortgage has been burned, and an oculist thinks he will be able to mend the minister's eyes.
