THE INTELLIGENCER
Has more daily circulation and carries more advertising regularly than any other six-day morning paper in West Virginia.

The Wheeling Intelligencer.

WEATHER FORECAST FOR TODAY
Showers and Warmer Friday; Saturday Fair and Colder.

VOLUME LXXI., NO. 86 WHEELING, W. VA., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1922 SINGLE COPY (TRANSIENT) THREE CENTS

West Virginia Defeats Wash-Jeff, 14-0

WHEELING HIGH CAPTURES 20-0 VICTORY FROM BELLAIRE

Won't Claim The Football Championship

Replying to an inquiry from The Intelligencer, Athletic Director H. A. Stansbury refuses to claim the eastern football championship for the unbeaten West Virginia university team, following its victory over Washington & Jefferson. Stansbury's telegram says:

"West Virginia university will not make a claim on the eastern intercollegiate football championship or any other championship for that matter. We have had a good season and are satisfied with it. Fordham, Cornell and several other teams, however, are undefeated and untied and the championship will be played for by some and especially the large number of strong teams make it nothing more than fortunate for a team to get in the championship."

CONGRESSMAN JAMES R. MANN DIES SUDDENLY

Pneumonia Follows Chill, and the End Comes Late Friday Night.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Representative James R. Mann, of Illinois, died at his home here tonight after a brief illness.

With him at the end were Mrs. Mann and two physicians. It was said that although he had recently passed two restless nights, his condition did not definitely develop for the worse until 1 o'clock this afternoon.

He rallied slightly at 6 o'clock but again suffered a relapse and sank rapidly. The end was peaceful.

Mr. Mann, who had served for a quarter of a century as a member of the House, was stricken a week ago, first with a chill. Pneumonia developed, his condition became desperate and the end came at 11:15 o'clock.

The veteran legislator, an ardent advocate of the shipping bill, sent word to House leaders early in the week and again yesterday, that while he was ill, he would go to the capitol and help in the fight if needed. He was urged to stay at home, though none of his friends realized that his condition was serious. One of his colleagues, Representative Sabath, Democrat, Illinois, against the bill, was paired with him, and so Mr. Mann was recorded in the vote.

No plans were made for the funeral tonight but it was said that the sergeant-at-arms of the House would confer with Mrs. Mann tomorrow to assist in making the arrangements. It is understood that a funeral service in Chicago is in contemplation and that Mr. Mann will be buried there beside his son, who died four years ago. He is survived only by the widow.

In the words of friends and foe, Mr. Mann was the best informed man on the details of government that ever sat in the halls of Congress. There was nothing too little to escape his eyes; there was no man or measure he feared to attack.

Yet by his own direction, the record of his distinguished service is summed up in less than a line and a half of the Congressional Record.

Republican leader of the House for [illegible] 1856, was elected to [illegible] and each succeeding Congress.

That meant thirteen consecutive terms, or seventeen years. It was reelected this month, and indeed it had been understood that the [illegible] were determined to keep him in the House as long as he lived.

If "Jim" Mann ever felt the sting of defeat, when his party in caucus failed to select him as speaker after he had served as minority leader during the eight years of Democratic house control, his friends did not know it. Nelson Gillett, of Massachusetts, was named. Mann was offered the place as leader of the party, then in power, but he declined. Thereafter he held sway as the floor leader of the house, and as chairman of the committee on committees, which assigned members to committee seats, his power was equal if not greater than that of the speaker himself.

Refused Speakership

When the Republican majority in the Sixty-eight congress was cut in the 1922 election from 160 to less than a score, the great power of Mann was counted on for a possible house upheaval. Mann, before he had declared he never would accept the speakership or the leadership. For his friends set at work quietly in his behalf. Mann heard of it and reiterated his former statement.

While the vote was running thus, Mann, meeting reporters, was asked about it.

"I have said before and I say now," he stated with an emphatic sweep of the arm, "that I would not accept the speakership or the leadership. It is more to [illegible] I am a [illegible] shelter."

"May we quote that?" a reporter asked.

"Yes, and I hope you will," Mr. Mann replied.

Paid Dearly in Health.

In a few hours the man had crushed all members of his party. It settled then and there and settled definitely the most important fact as to whether the veteran legislator from the Second district of Illinois, who had served in the house in 1897, would be granted another eight years. However, it served to put [illegible] of Massachusetts, in the leadership of the majority party, for [illegible] of the high position [illegible] quite a powerful effect to beat him.

Like many others who had gone before him, Mann paid dearly for his work for during the session is [illegible]

(Continued on Page Ten)

STIFF ATTACK BRINGS SCORE IN 3D PERIOD

Forward Passes By W. & J. Fail to Result In Hoped For Touchdown.

Costly Fumble By State During First Half of the Contest.

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 30.—Fred S. Simons, of New Cumberland, W. Va., halfback on the West Virginia University football team, was today elected captain of the Mountaineers 1923 football team, just after the victory over W. & J. here, today. Simons is playing his third year on the West Virginia eleven and has been one of the most dependable players.

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 30.—For the first time in its football history, which reaches back to 1891, West Virginia university today had played through a season without suffering a defeat, as a result of its victory over Washington & Jefferson college, 14 to 0, here this afternoon before a crowd of 13,500, the largest assemblage that had ever witnessed an athletic contest in the Mountain State.

Revitalized Attack.

After nullifying most of their gains in the first half by costly fumbles on the part of Simon, West Virginia showed a revitalized attack at the beginning of the third period which Washington & Jefferson could not stop.

Receiving the kickoff, Homer Martin returned for the Mountaineers 25 yard line to the West Virginia 33 yard line. Simon got loose through left tackle for a 17 yard gain and Nardieci and Martin added a first down in two rushes. Nick Nardieci wiggled and sidestepped around right end for a 29 yard dash that took the ball to the W. & J. nine yard line. After Simon had made two yards in

(Continued on Page Eight)

WILL PROTEST TO THE GREEKS

Both the Vatican and Premier Mussolini Will Take Action.

Rome, Nov. 30.—The Vatican is to make a direct protest to the Greek government against the execution of the former Greek ministers. Pope Pius has ordered the papal nuncio at Berne to make representations to Eliptherio Vanticelos of the Greek delegation at Lausanne against further executions of former public officials in Greece.

London, Nov. 30.—An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Rome says Premier Mussolini informed the Italian cabinet today that he planned to protest to the Greek government against the wholesale executions of former public men. His protest, he added, would be on purely humanitarian grounds.

Brakeman Killed

Stephenville, O., Nov. 30.—James [illegible] Pittsburgh railroad, [illegible] was killed [illegible] his home in the railroad yards at [illegible] W. Va., east of here, [illegible] making an emergency stop [illegible] signaled for the engineer to back the cars. Geary was thrown under the wheels and decapitated.

Pope Joins Americans in Their Thanksgiving

Rome, Nov. 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—For the first time in the history of the Catholic church, the Pope joined in an American national festival when he insisted this evening upon receiving the students of the American College, and addressed them on the topic of Thanksgiving Day.

The students, numbering 180, were accompanied to the audience chamber by Cardinal Bisleti, their protector, as well as by the rector and vice rector of the college.

In his address the pope said:

"National Thanksgiving day is a noble idea on the part of your people choosing the day for prayer. Men who look greater [illegible] one of the essentials of life. Your country must indeed be blessed by Almighty God.

The Pope said that through the American students, he wished to congratulate the entire American people and express his gratitude for the generous [illegible] shown on every occasion of need.

In the course of his address the pontiff said:

"It is consoling to see the heads of nations fixing days for the people to pray to and thank God for blessings received. Nations going this cannot but prosper materially and spiritually. I am with you, with your people on the day of Thanksgiving. We are praying together."

MANY MEXICANS SHOT DOWN BY POLICE VOLLEY

Citizens Who Demonstrated Against City Authorities Fired Upon.

Mexico City, Nov. 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—At least four persons were killed and a dozen injured tonight when the police used machine guns against a band of demonstrators who attempted to invade the city hall in protest against the alleged negligence of the aldermen in connection with the water famine in the city.

Two machine gun volleys were fired by the police—the first over the heads of the crowd and the last into it.

All Basic Industries Show Larger Activity

Washington, Nov. 30.—Virtually all basic industries in the United States are showing increased productive activity, according to the Federal Reserve board, which, in a review of business and trade conditions made public today, reported a generally improved situation in the American business world.

The improved conditions according to the review are reflected, first, in a greatly increased employment of labor in industrial establishments and second, in an unprecedented demand for freight cars. Reports showed that, on November 1, the greatest shortage of freight cars ever developed was recorded, while immediately before and after that date the car loadings were maintained almost at the maximum.

Instantly Killed By His Hunting Companion

Stephenville, O., Nov. 30.—William [illegible] was shot and instantly killed by his hunting companion, Richmond [illegible] while hunting the [illegible] Creek township today. [illegible] had shared a shelter into a [illegible] pile and [illegible] Each [illegible] with his gun [illegible] the left temple.

REPORT OF ARMED DISTURBANCE IN THRACE TRUE BUT MAGNIFIED

London, Nov. 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—Dispatches from Constantinople [illegible] of the Petit Parisien [illegible] to the [illegible] Agence Havas [illegible] Turkish [illegible] without knowing details of additional importance.

A dispatch to the Temps from Constantinople thinks the first reports possibly were exaggerated, but adds that [illegible] were executed.

At Salonika 24 comitadjis were killed in a fight. Several dozen prisoners there were executed.

TWO KILLED IN EXPLOSION OF N. & W. ENGINE

KENOVA YARDS SCENE OF RAILROAD ACCIDENT

Boiler of Locomotive Nearly Dry When Jet of Water Is Turned On.

Kenova, Nov. 30.—The [illegible] of a locomotive at the Kenova yards of the Norfolk & Western railroad here [illegible] were fatally [illegible] were treating [illegible] explosion.

The dead are Elmer [illegible] a [illegible] Huntington, W. Va., and [illegible] Engineer [illegible] of the [illegible] and one of the engineers [illegible] the second [illegible] were [illegible] the explosion [illegible] the [illegible] engine [illegible] the [illegible] engine [illegible] the [illegible] engine