Hazy—Great hobos! Think of tramping dat distance an' den getting chased by de old Dog star.

HON. JAS. GRAY, senator-elect from the Parkersburg district, has announced that he will introduce a bill at the coming session of the legislature, having for its purpose the prohibition of the sale of cigarettes in the state. He has been a careful student of the effect of cigarette smoking among children, and from the alarming increase in the number who are addicted to the habit he believes that such a law should be passed to protect the future citizens of the state.

"The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children, even unto the third and fourth generations," so we are told—and some people will leave enough to go around.

Cigarettes are now said to cure the drink habit. Another case where the cure is worse than the disease.

MANY ACTIVITIES MAKE THE LIFE OF THE STUDENTS A BUSY ONE.

STUDENTS ARE RELIGIOUS

The Young Men's Christian Association is Busy With Other Forces To Make Student-Life Worth While—College Circus One of the Coming Attractions.

Morgantown, W. Va.—The largest crowd of the season gathered in Recital hall, at West Virginia University, to hear Dr. Hodges discuss "A College Education and a Young Man's Religious Faith." This was a strong, straight-to-the-point talk which was enjoyed by all who heard it. Dr. Hodges said, in part:

"There are many young people who would be here except that their parents think that the influence at the State University would undermine their religious faith. There is an idea abroad that many of the professors are antagonistic to Christianity, but this is a mistaken idea. When I was a boy in college a wave of skepticism swept over the college world. Darwinism was at its height. People were saying, if Darwin's theory is true, it will destroy religion. Even religious people made the mistake of thinking that Darwin's theory was necessarily one of faithlessness. One day somebody awakened to the fact that there really was no conflict between science and religion. What difference does it make how God created the world or how long it took Him? The great fact is, 'In the beginning, God!' No man has been able to go back of this. We are learning, more than ever to-day, that scientific facts are in harmony with religious faith. It is my firm belief that there is nothing in a college education to-day to destroy a young man's faith, but there is much in college life to set such faith on a sure foundation. Paul told the Greeks that they were 'too religious,' that is, they were too much inclined to run after every new thing. That is not the tendency to-day. The tendency is more and more towards a firm belief in God. How many infidels, atheists, or agnostics do you know? Among all the college men I have known as classmates and students I have only known one who really said that he did not believe anything.

"The greatest advance in education the last number of years has been in science. Those of you who have studied physics know that energy is always the same; none of it is ever wasted. Who started this energy? Who set the universe in motion? No man can think of the millions of stars moving at terrific speed through space, without conflict or accident, without thinking of God. The science student, of all students, should be the most devout, for all science points him to God.

"We must distinguish between a mere belief in things and a faith that works. I expect to go away on the train to-night. Now, I may believe that the train is able to carry me where I want to go, but if my faith does not cause me to get on it I will not reach my destination. Now, people may stop me on my way to the train and talk to me, causing me to miss my train. There are some things which tend to keep a college student from working his faith—society, athletics, college politics and the like. Even his devotion to his studies may interfere. But there is no more danger of this in college than out of college.

"Jesus Christ has the brains of the world working for Him to-day. Visit the meetings of the great religious bodies and note the kind of men who are at the head. The study of God's works never led anyone away from Him. The poets and seers got their inspiration from a study of God's works. To-day we can look, not only at the great things which God has made, but with the microscope we can study the minute things, but whether great or small, they all point us to God, the place where the intellect must finally rest is 'In the beginning, God.' As Whittier says: 'I know not where these islands lift Their fringed palms in air; I only know I can not drift Beyond Thy love and care.'

Student Hand-Book.
The Student Hand-Book, published by the Y. M. C. A. of West Virginia University, has made its appearance, and fills a need long felt in the student body. It is a neat little book, of vest-pocket size, bound in a neat leather, in the University colors. It contains almost a hundred pages, consisting of general information about the University, the rules, customs, organizations, athletics, yells and songs, and other items of interest to the students generally. It also contains the student directory, in a much more desirable form than it has hitherto been published. E. C. Smith, '15, is managing editor. The book sells for the nominal sum of fifteen cents.

College Circus.
Something novel is promised by the Young Men's Christian Association, of West Virginia University, as an attraction for the college world. They promise a circus, to take place shortly before the Christmas recess, with many splendid features, novelty acts, spectacular performances, acrobatic antics, peanuts and red lemonade; in fact, everything that makes Circus Day so dear to every schoolboy, and all other boys of every age. That there is so much local talent within the bounds of the University, running in such lines of genius, may come as a surprise to many unacquainted with the inside situation. There seems to no doubt, however, that something really big and startling is to be pulled off. The students and citizens are already much wrought up over the occurrence, and the youngsters are beginning the saving of their coppers in anticipation.

News of the Cadets.
The new cadets of the West Virginia Corps of Cadets at the University are rapidly taking on the appearance of young soldiers. The fair weather has given opportunity for outside drill nearly every day and the cadet officers and noncommissioned officers are doing their best to train the new men so that they may be placed in the companies. The new uniforms have arrived and the new cadets seem to be glad not to be conspicuous by being in civilian clothing during the drill hour. About one hundred and thirty cadets have expressed a desire to continue the informal cadet hops this year. These dances are given and paid for by the cadets and are held in the Armory. The first hop will be held November 16th.

The subject of the Military Ball has been discussed in the corps and it has been practically decided to have it on February 2d. The ball is an event which is looked forward to with pleasure by a great many students and alumni throughout the state. It has been conducted for the past five or six years in such a way that it can give no offense even to people who are not in favor of dancing. It furnishes an opportunity for students, alumni and friends of the institution to enjoy a social evening together which would not be obtained in any other way and it therefore seems advisable to continue this event.

The cadet band has given two or three outdoor concerts during the drill hours which have been greatly enjoyed.

The theoretical instruction will begin about the middle of November and continue for the rest of the first semester and the first half of the second.

The College Women's Banquet.

The College Women's Banquet given by the young women of the West Virginia University on the evening of November 2d called forth much real enthusiasm among the women students. Numerous college pennants and banners among the profusion of autumn leaves and chrysanthemums made the armory a most charming place for the banquet and added much to the college spirit of the occasion. The banquet, for which one hundred and eighty-six plates were laid, was prepared by the young women themselves, and was admirably served by twelve young men of the University. The delightful music furnished by the cadet band ceased when the toastmistress, Miss Rachel Colwell, arose and proposed a toast to the young women who had made the banquet possible. A number of witty responses were made to toasts. Among the speakers were President Hodges, Dean Susan Maxwell Moore, Miss Mabel Eleanor Stone, and Miss Mary Rutherford. After the banquet was concluded many spirited college songs were sung; the women students became better acquainted with one another, and met socially the women of the faculty, wives of faculty members, the ministers' wives, and other college women of Morgantown, as well as quite a few of the alumnae who returned to spend the week-end at their Alma Mater.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Mabel Eleanor Stone of Cincinnati, Ohio, Territorial-Secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, and Miss Mary Rutherford, General Secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, Bombay, India.

School of Music.

The School of Music of West Virginia University has arranged, in conjunction with the Swisher Theater management, for a series of three concerts by artists of more than national fame.

In past seasons these concerts were given as the Choral Society series. This year they are to be separated. The concerts arranged for are on December 5, a program by the Mason String Quartet of Charleston, W. Va. This is an organization of West Virginians that has by its excellent ensemble gained for itself a splendid reputation not only in its own state but all through the East. It plays return engagements each season wherever it goes.

On February 4, Lucy Isabella Marst and Evan Williams are engaged to give a joint recital. Mr. Williams needs no introduction to American audiences for he is probably the most famous American tenor and undoubtedly possesses the most beautiful voice of all American concert tenors. Miss Marst is a young lady who has sprung into fame through her excellent records made for the Victor Phonograph. Any one who has heard her records of the Inflammatus or the Italian Street Song from Naughty Marietta knows what to expect of her.

The third and last concert is to be a song recital by the famous Italian tenor, Alessandro Bonel. This man who stands at the head of the list of the world's great operatic and concert tenors has been engaged for March 23. Just now he is creating a furore in the City of Mexico in a season of opera. He is master of all phases of singing and is without doubt the greatest singer the University has had the opportunity to hear.

Don't Suffer!

"I had been troubled, a little, for nearly 7 years," writes Mrs. L. Fincher, in a letter from Peavy, Ala., "but I was not taken down, until March, when I went to bed and had to have a doctor. He did all he could for me, but I got no better. I hurt all over, and I could not rest. At last, I tried Cardui, and soon I began to improve. Now I am in very good health, and able to do all my housework."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

You may wonder why Cardui is so successful, after other remedies have failed. The answer is that Cardui is successful, because it is composed of scientific ingredients, that act curatively on the womanly system. It is a medicine for women, and for women only. It builds, strengthens, and restores weak and ailing women, to health and happiness.

If you suffer like Mrs. Fincher did, take Cardui. It will surely do for you, what it did for her. At all druggists.
