

AN EAGLE A DAY WILL SOON COME FROM FORD PLANT

Warships Will Be Turned Out Just Like Flivvers.

TO SEA THROUGH CANAL

They Will Burn Oil and Can Steam Across Atlantic.

By FREDERICK M. KERBY (N. E. A. Staff Correspondent.) (Passed by U. S. Senator.)

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 17.—Turning out warships as if they were flivvers is a success.

Henry Ford told Secretary of the Navy Daniels he would do it, when he undertook the contract for the first 100 Eagle boats—the new submarine chasers designed by the Navy department.

The River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor company, where I spent the day inspecting the production of the new navy boats, is called a shipyard.

These boats are built on moving platforms, conveyed on wheels; they are made of steel parts fabricated in endless quantity and put together with rivets; they are wheeled out to the water's edge, placed on a platform operated by hydraulic jacks, and water and all is let down into the water and the ship floated away.

The plant is laid out systematically, so that the steel is fed into one end while at the other completed boats, with naval crews, guns, stores and supplies aboard, sail away to the Atlantic.

At the lower end of the assembling plant, a great transfer table operates. Onto this the cars carrying the complete hull are run, and this table connects with the launching bridge.

More than 5,000 men are at work now. The vista of ships on the platforms, with the three nearly completed hulls are far away at the lower end, and the three lines tapering down until at the upper end of the line only the keel and skeleton ribs represent the ships, convey a clear idea of the plan of the whole thing.

The "Eagles" will be sent to the Atlantic through the New York State Barge canal. The fuel is oil, and the steaming radius is sufficient to take them across the Atlantic.

Personals. Thos. Hawker, a prominent business man of Shinnston, was in town on Thursday afternoon.

Secretary Daniels called Henry Ford to Washington last January to ask him if he would undertake the job of building the new "Eagles."

Within 24 hours plans were being drawn, and details of the buildings worked out. The site on which the great plant stands was partly under water.

The fabrication shop was built in three weeks. Long before the 1,700-foot assembling buildings was finished the fabrication shop was producing plates, angles, channels, etc.

The first complete "Eagle" went into the water July 15. Eighteen ships are under way now. In a few days there will be 21 on the shipways—the capacity of the plant.

The plant is laid out systematically, so that the steel is fed into one end while at the other completed boats, with naval crews, guns, stores and supplies aboard, sail away to the Atlantic.

TODAY'S POEM

J. Caesar, writing to his folks in Rome, Expressed his peevishness—"I can't come home, Because these damphool Britons whom I've picked As easy money don't know when they're licked."

You said it, Jule! and still it's one best bet T. Atkins, Briton, hasn't learned it yet. He holds his Flanders line and plugs away; Week in, week out, he's at it night and day; He hammers at his foe with either fist And makes no boast. Just sends his weekly list, Which sums it all—"Killed, wounded, missing!" He growls a bit as he loses, when he wins, grins.

Out of the torpid sands he grubs the Turk, Or up at Ken and Kola speeds his work. The Arctic circle is his helmet's rim And earth's equator makes a belt for him! Shake hands, you good, old Tommys! aren't we glad! You're pals of Sammy, our own Yankee lad!

This is Miss Jane Starr, of Los Angeles, Calif., hanging the war garden service flag awarded her by the National War Garden Commission for her war gardening effort.

Miss Starr now flies several flags as proof positive of her patriotism. There are the stars and stripes; her brother's in the army and a star is in the star service flag; Miss Starr is a star Red Cross, Liberty Loan and Thrift Stamp worker and has service signs of each in her windows.

TERRIBLY SWOLLEN

Suffering Described As Torture Relieved by Black-Draught.

Rossville, Ga.—Mrs. Kate Lee Able, of this place, writes: "My husband is an engineer, and once while lifting, he injured himself with a piece of heavy machinery, across the abdomen. He was so sore he could not bear to press on himself at all, on chest or abdomen. He weighed 165 lbs., and fell off until he weighed 110 lbs., in two weeks.

He became constipated and it looked like he would die. We had three different doctors, yet with all their medicine, his bowels failed to act. He would turn up a ten-cent bottle of castor oil, and drink it two or three days in succession. He did this yet without result.

I sent and bought Theodor's Black-Draught. I made him take a big dose, and when it began to act he fainted, he was in such misery, but he got relief and began to mend at once. He got well, and we both feel he owes his life to Theodor's Black-Draught."
