

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

In Spite of Parents

By H. IRVING KING
John Cartwright was in love with Emma Townsend and Emma was in love with John...

Emma was ordered not to talk to John Cartwright any more and to hold herself in readiness to marry some one to be picked out for her by her parents hereafter...

"Oh yes I am. He has not asked me, but he is going to and as to your discharging him I shall be twenty-three next month...

"What have you been saying to your uncle?" he asked when they found her seated in a corner of a highly respectable tearoom...

"You'll probably lose your job with us," she said, "but you can't work you were going to leave soon to go into that South American scheme anyway..."

"That evening Emma and John had a dolorous and despairing interview which they agreed, was to be their last, Clara with all smiles and winsome ways when she met her uncle at dinner that night..."

"Clara!" exclaimed the broker. "I really—such a creature—I don't know what to say to you..."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON.

Jack Horner Next

The next place the Twins came to was the house of Jack Horner. Jack was standing at his front door.

"Hello!" said he, when he saw the Twins. "Hello!" said Nancy and Nick. "We are hunting for Mother Goose's magic broomstick. Do you know where it is?"

"No," answered Jack. "I don't like brooms. I only like raisin pie and plum cake and fruit pudding. Would you like to have some?"

"Well, as to that," replied Jack. "I never make any, for I eat all mine. But you might ask Tom Tucker."

The Twins thanked him and the Green Shoes whisked them off to Tom's house.
