

RECORD OF REPUBLICAN CONVENTIONS

With the close of the republican national convention in Chicago June 12, a brief record of previous conventions may be of interest. Since the civil war, conventions have been held as follows:

1868, Chicago, May 20-22; delegates, 650; U. S. Grant, of Illinois, nominated unanimously on first ballot; Schuyler Colfax, of Indiana, for Vice President.

1872, Philadelphia, June 5-6; delegates, 686; Grant nominated unanimously; Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, for Vice President.

1876, Cincinnati, June 14-16; delegates, 756; James G. Blaine, of Maine, led until the seventh ballot when Rutherford B. Hayes, of Ohio, was nominated, the vote standing 351 for Blaine and 284 for Hayes. William A. Wheeler, of New York, for Vice President.

1880, Chicago, June 2-8; delegates, 757; Grant led with Blaine a close second until the thirty-sixth ballot, when Garfield, of Ohio, was nominated by a vote of 399 as against 396 for Grant. Chester A. Arthur, of New York, for Vice President.

1884, Chicago, June 3-6; delegates, 819; Blaine led, having 334 votes on the first ballot to 278 for Arthur, his nearest rival, and was nominated on the fourth ballot. John A. Logan, of Illinois, for Vice President.

1888, Chicago, June 19-25; delegates, 830; there were fourteen names voted for on the first ballot, with John Sherman, of Ohio, leading by a vote of 229, with 111 for Walter Q. Gresham, 99 for Chauncey M. Depew, 84 for R. A. Alger; 80 for Benjamin Harrison. On the fourth ballot Harrison attained second place and was nominated on the eighth ballot. Levi P. Morton for Vice President.

1892, Minneapolis, June 7-10; delegates, 905; Harrison renominated on first ballot, with Blaine and McKinley receiving 182 votes each. White-law Reid, of New York, for Vice President.

1896, St. Louis, June 16-18; delegates, 940; William McKinley nominated on first ballot by a vote of 661. Garret A. Hobart, of New Jersey, for Vice President.

1900, Philadelphia, June 19-21; delegates, 924; McKinley and Roosevelt unanimously nominated on the first ballot.

1904, Chicago, June 21-23; delegates, 994; Roosevelt and Fairbanks unanimously nominated; each on first ballot.

1908, Chicago, June 16-19; delegates, 979; William H. Taft, of Ohio, nominated on first ballot, with votes cast for Knox, Hughes, Cannon, Fairbanks, LaFollette and Foraker. James S. Sherman, of New York, for Vice President.

1912, Chicago, June 18-20; delegates, 1078; Taft nominated on first ballot, with 344 delegates withholding their votes. Herbert S. Hadley, of Missouri, for Vice President.

1916, Chicago, June 9-10; delegates, 986; Charles E. Hughes, of New York, led first ballot with 253 votes, with Weeks, Root, Cummins, Burton, Fairbanks, Sherman, Roosevelt and Knox following in the order named. On the third ballot Hughes was nominated by a vote of 949. Fairbanks for Vice President.

1920, Chicago, June 8-12; delegates, 984; General Leonard Wood led first ballot with 287 1-2 votes, with Lowden, Johnson and Harding following in the order named. Harding, of Ohio, was nominated on the tenth ballot with 692 1-5 votes. Coolidge of Massachusetts for Vice President.

One Can Never Tell

In New England there was a man who would never commit himself on any question. Time and time again attempts were made to compel him to take a stand, but to no avail. One day two of his friends decided to make another attempt.

"Bill," said one of the men in the non-committal man's presence, "a traveller told me that he once saw a buffalo climb twenty feet into a tree
to get some grapes."

"What's that?" exclaimed the other.
"A buffalo climb a tree! Say Jim,"
he continued, turning to the non-committal one, "what do you think of a story like that?"

"I don't know," replied Jim, "but there's no telling what a buffalo might do if he wanted grapes."

this one:

That I am paid by the community I serve to use the utmost discrimination
