Stray Leaves From a Reporter's Note Book.

The average daily shipment of milk cream and condensed milk received in New York city is: Milk, 728,612 quarts; cream, 16,000 quarts; con-densed milk, 8,600 quarts. This milk is ship ped in 40 and 20 quart cans, and from some of the dairies in quart and pint bottles. The milk is packed in boxes and shipped in cars specially provided by the railroad companies for that purpose, and the railway companies also supply ice boxes at the stations for keeping the milk cool while waiting the arrival of the milk trains. The number of cows in the city limits which furnish milk for the city is 3,200, and the number outside of the city 112,370. There are 7,000 places in the city where milk is sold both wholesale and retail. The practice of putting ice in milk to cool it has been nearly abolished, as the sanitary code provides a penalty for the adulteration of milk in that way.

There are classes among negroes as well as among white people, and if you want to set an ordinary southern dar key wild tell him a story about the blue-gum negroes. There is a belief among the lower class of colored people that the bite of a blue-gummed negro is quite as dangerous as the lite of a rattlesnake. Here is a description of one who infested the neighborhood of Lufkin, Tex, some time ago: "He looks like any other negro, except that his gums are blue, his teeth are set for biting, and his eyes have a strange look. The said eyes are very convex, the pupil being nearly black, with a light blue ring around the edge of the corner. When angry they change color, his eyes bulge out, his teeth clatter similar to the rattlesnake's rattle, and woe be to him into whose flesh those death-dealing fangs strike. He wears chin whiskers and mustache, and these, upon a protruding front face, with those terrible eyes and bullet-like head. make him an object at once of curiosity and aversion.'

Base ball, the national game, was never more interesting than it is this year. We in Waterbury have a club that would now be leading the State league if the players had been secui early enough and the season co menced right. The race in the tional league is one of the most in esting and exciting on record. New Yorks won two games yester and took third position. It looks as though this club might finish position to play in the Temple series. The New Yorks have of admirers in this city who pi their faith to the club when our Roger was the star of the team, they have wished them well ever s and now that they are making st game fight the old time friends cluo are shouting for them for fa that ever pitched a ball," had go the harness earlier in the seaso New York club would undoubted leading the League now. The g newed interest.

The widening of North Main from Grove street to Spencer at is regarded as the most important lic improvement taken ho'd of by city in the history of the town. is especially so in the opinion of men, who looked upon the place sort of death trap, never consider themselves safe while passing thre iere. It is a matter well tioning that during the regime Mayor Kilduff several such imporpublic improvements, that have staved off by former administration have been taken up and pushed successful completion. There's the tension of Washington street f Baldwin to Dublin streets, the wid ing of West Main street at its junct with North Willow street, and North End sewer. Now the city is p paring to tackle Little brook, and w knows but after Mayor Kilduff is elected for another two years he pluck up sufficient courage to push t proposed extension of Liberty street South Main street, the extension Hickory street to Liberty street, as the extension of Jefferson street South Elm street. So far the preser administration has rendered good ser vice in this respect, and it is not likely the public will consent to allow Mayo Kilduff to get out of the harness unti he continues the work further, for there are a few other jobs about the city that want a man of Mayor Kilduff's grit and indomitable courage to Bristol, push them to completion.
