The man who starts early and plans wisely will be able to push the business of the farm to a successful finish. The man who starts late and plans carelessly will be worried and pushed by work passed due, and possibly pushed by his creditors

Eugene Moore, ex-state auditor is making an active canvass for the nomination of governor on the republican ticket. Mr. Moore's record as state auditor certainly entitles him to recognition and proves his ability to fill the position of governor.

We understand that there will be a meeting of the republican County Central Committee held at Loup City to-morrow at 2 o'clock p. m., but we have had no official notice of it so are unable to state positively whether or not it is a fact. Such meetings should be properly advertised and a regular call made.

The Congressional Committee for this district convened at Kearney last Wednesday, March 11th, and fixed the dates for holding the congressional conventions as follows: The first convention will be held at Broken Bow, April 13th, at 7 o'clock p. m., and the second convention will be held at North Platte, August 19th, at 10 o'clock p. m.

The democratic and independent papers over the state are talking Manderson for president and saying that the republican papers should stand up for Nebraska's favored son, in fact they are almost forgetting the candidates of their own party in their eagerness to induce the republican convention to choose a Manderson delegation. The republican convention, however will doubtless act its own pleasure concerning the matter.

With but one or two exceptions the republican papers that reach our desk is for McKinley for president, although they have nothing but words of praise for Nebraska's favorite son, C. F. Manderson. They stand for McKinley because he is the choice of the people and especially the people of the west, and because he is loved, respected and honored for his valuable services given the nation in the past by his protective tariff policies advocated in the McKinley bill of which he was the author, and which promised so much good to us all. They are also for McKinley because he has virtually been a standing candidate for the past three years and during that time they have often spoken of him as such and announced themselves as being for him.

There is a fascination about Nebraska which no one seems able to explain, and those once under its seductive influence are either unable or unwilling to break the charm. Men will leave the homes of their birth to seek their fortunes in the boundless West, and once settled in Nebraska becomes so attached to her beautiful scenery, her unequalled opportunities, her sure reward to the hand of toil and the general intelligence and hospitality of the people, that though for some reason they may dispose of their possessions here and return to their native state or country, nine out of ten of them become dissatisfied in a few years and again turn their faces to the west and Nebraska.—Mead Advocate.

The Homestake Mining Company of Lead City, in the Black Hills, a few days ago struck a vein which although small, gives returns of $2,000 a day. In the lower levels of the old workings of the company another fabulously rich strike is said to have been made which runs up in assay value to the thousands.

Kearney citizens have spent all their money and worn themselves weary booming the town by putting up for canals, cotton mills, sugar factories, etc., are now devoting their attention to raising celery. The land surrounding the city is particularly adapted for raising celery, and it has been demonstrated to be a profitable crop. Twenty acres of celery is said to be worth a clear profit of $5,000. Visions of a second Kalamazoo now haunt the dreams of the Kearneyites.—Mason City Transcript.

The 355 beet sugar factories that have been running in France handled 5,401,000 tons of beets up to January 15, or 1,707,000 less than in 1894-5. The sugar produced was 500,285 tons, instead of 577,165 of last season. This decrease is less than the diminution in quantity of beets would indicate, for the beets were richer in sugar than usual. As last season was one of unprecedented drought in France, there is perhaps a little comfort in the fact for Nebraska farmers.—State Journal.

A runaway which might have resulted in a very serious accident, occurred in town, Wednesday afternoon. The runaway happened just like many another has when John Fair's team which had been left unhitched in front of P. D. Duryea's blacksmith shop, while Mr. Fair attended to an errand inside, took a notion into its head to take a spin. Starting from there, it ran up main street as far as Parl Round's livery barn, then turned south toward M. L. Fries' lumber office, where in turning the corner short onto the street west, it came in contact with Fries' scales, demolishing the framework and breaking the beam. At the instant Mrs. Jake Gorden, Jr., was coming up town from E. Bartholomew's, and seeing the runaway team coming, thought to get out of the way of it by getting behind the framework of the scales, not thinking of course that the team was going to come in contact with it. When the team went over the scales, the horses, wagon and framework of the scales apparently went over the woman. When picked up the woman was partially insensible and it was found that quite a gash was cut in the upper lip on the left side of the face, and that there was also a cut above the left eye while one of her hips was quite badly bruised, and also her left hand. However, Dr. Lee pronounced none of her injuries as very serious or dangerous. From Fries' office the team ran west a block and then north, where they were stopped at the same place from which they started. This runaway is another instance of the foolishness of leaving a team standing unhitched on the street, and it is indeed lucky that the result of it was no more serious.—Arcadia Champion.

FROM CLEAR CREEK.
Clear Creek, March 6th, '96.
As time draws near for a republican convention why not give Jake a boom and run him for president. He would do fully as well as Cleveland.

In regard to his position as candidate for governor Congressman Meiklejohn says: "I want to be understood as being a candidate for governor and nothing else. I have no aspirations for the senatorship, there are plenty of men in Nebraska older in years, in citizenship, and riper in experience who would be better fitted and have more claims for this important position at the national capital."

"I appreciate keenly how kind Nebraska and Nebraska people have been to me. I feel that in many ways I have fallen short of my full duty, but wherever my friends have placed me in positions of trust I shall in the future, to merit their personal good will and their general confidence. Nebraska is a community of bright minded and intelligent people, and to be governor of such a commonwealth is honor and responsibility enough to arouse the highest instincts of any man, and to call into activity his best energies."

"I have been frank and open in announcing my candidacy not because I considered my claims superior to others, but because I believe that frankness and openness of method due the public, not only from candidates, but from all public officials. I do not want a position that cannot be secured by direct and straightforward methods, and that does not bring with it the confidence of the public."—State Journal.

The book is very valuable and well worth $2.00. The first come, the first served. We have sold over 40 of these books for $2.00 cash and they are well worth the price, but hard times and small crops have made it impossible for us so dispose of them at anything like their value therefor we will give them away free of charge on the condition above stated.

We make this offer to farmers alone as they are a farmer's book, especially ruled and constructed to keep an accurate account of the receipts and disbursements of the farm. Besides being an account book it contains valuable information, such as the Nebraska herd law, telling you how to proceed in case you take up estrays. It also contains table of Ready Calendar, showing the price of any article of given quantity, table of wages by the week, legal weights of bushels in pounds as held by the different states, how to plant trees and in fact a great deal of other useful information.

Come early and take advantage of this offer. It will not last long.

The gold craze is still raging in Nebraska, Norfolk being the latest victim to it. In Boone county the people are not prospecting for gold, coal or diamonds, but they are making substantial calculations on raising as big crops as can be produced in Nebraska, and that will bring gold into the pockets, coal into the bins and diamonds galore upon the shirt fronts.—Albion News.

The beet sugar convention held at Fremont was a splendid success. It was the means of sending broad east information regarding the sugar beet that will be of immense benefit to Nebraska even in the near future.—Corn Belt.
