

We'll take the road together through
the morning's golden glow,
And we'll dream of those who trod it
in the mellowed long ago;
We will stop at the Missions where
the sleeping padres lay,
And we'll bent a knee above them for their soul's sake to pray.

Old Conquistadores, O brown priests,
and all,
Give us your ghosts for company
when night begins to fall:
There's many a road to travel: but it's
this road today,
With the breath of God about us on the Kings highway."

A Trip to the Orient.

by Rev. D. Gregory Gerrer O. S. B.

There are 2500 Europeans in Beyrouth. The Christians of Beyrouth who are gradually displacing the Meslem element are very industrious. Many of the firms have branch houses in England and France.

The most common language spoken after the Arabic is the French. There are 13 printing offices in Beyrouth. The best is that of the Jesuits, from a whole series of valuable works have been issued.

Twelve Arabic newspapers are printed. The Jesuits have a grand university and medical school with an attendance of about 2000. The largest Girl's school is that of the Sisters of Charity, which contains more than 2000 scholars; most of
