Farm Loan Act Legal

Thru a decision handed down from the Supreme court last Monday, the validity of the farm federal loan act which was passed some two years ago by which loan banks were established and have made millions of dollars worth of loans, was upheld. These have been pending a decision from the Supreme court, by an action brought by C. W. Smith, a stockholder in a Kansas City organization.

Grant county farmers will be interested to learn of this decision, for since the case came into court, the farm loan banks have been unable to loan money. The federal loans in this locality are made by an association of which John Nord is president and Wesley Swenson is secretary-treasurer, and the Southern Minnesota Joint Stock Land bank, which has operated thru their office at Big Stone City. They have made millions of dollars worth of loans during the two years they have been doing business and now that this decision has assured the legality of the act, the associations and the Joint Stock Land banks will resume this business.
