

Mausoleum Company Opens Offices; Is Closing Contracts For Crypts

Building Will Be Complete in Every Detail, and Constructed Upon Very Substantial Lines.—Demand for Tombs in Structure Grows and Entire Space Will Soon Be Sold.

The office of the Mt. Hope Mausoleum association is now open and ready for business at 1114 Oak street, second floor, Sheaf building. The people of Watertown and vicinity desirous of any information whatsoever concerning the better way of burial are most cordially invited to address this office, or call personally, and no effort will be spared to gratify everyone concerning the erection of the two mausoleums already planned for Saint Mary's and Mount Hope cemeteries. The exterior views of these buildings are on display in Bloom & Martin's office, and at the office of the South Dakota Mausoleum Co., 1114 Oak street, and these are exact representations of the buildings as they will appear when completed.

DEMAND FOR CRYPTS.

The construction company has determined upon building capacity for 100 tombs in Saint Mary's and 200 tombs in Mount Hope cemetery, and now, before the public announcement is made that the sales of apartments are ready, the very remarkable number of thirty-two tombs have been old. There is little doubt that the total number of tombs provided for will be sold in a very short time, so that the office of the association will be open and ready to serve those whom, however much we would like to, yet we may not be able to reach personally at all.

The prices of tombs are $150 each, to one and all, and for the kind of building, plans and specifications for which have been submitted and approved by builders and architects' associations, east and west, by city and town councils and experts throughout the country and your own city council, the tombs in the buildings being constructed in Watertown are $50 less than they are selling for in the same kind of structure elsewhere.

STRONG AND ENDURING.

The interior of the building is lined and finished with 7 1/2 inch thick Vermont marble, while between this and the exterior of facing wall will be the solid reinforced concrete structure, which holds and supports the matting of steel and ventilating structure that makes the entire building so permanent and enduring, and all which, in fact renders it as indestructible as the pyramids themselves. The cement benches on which rest the great floor are massive enough to support a structure of one hundred times its own weight and the benches and great floor weigh together better than one thousand tons. The tombs are anchored to each other, to the walls and to the great floor, so that when the building is done, it can be said of it more than of any other superstructure on earth that it is truly a one-piece building.

No grave robber will ever work within these buildings. No holy hand will ever attempt to enter here or desecrate the sacred environments of a mausoleum tomb. No living or chemical force can ever invade the safely guarded dead which lie absolutely at rest there and the older the crypts the safer and more enduring the tomb becomes.

IT WILL BE DEDICATED.

The buildings, when completed, will be formally dedicated with civil and religious ceremonies, in every way appropriate, and in harmony with the high and holy purpose the mausoleum is to serve, and in this respect there could not be on earth a temple or shrine more sacredly or divinely appointed, or more sincerely consecrated as a final resting place for the dead than the mausoleum erected by the International Mausoleum company, than the two beautiful mausoleums already planned for Saint Mary's and Mount Hope cemeteries.

A community, a country, a state, a nation, indeed a distinct period of the history of our entire race, is often judged by the manner and method of caring for its dead. The ancient empires of the east, of Greece, Egypt, Rome, Spain, and new Italy, France, Germany and England, rivaled each other in the way of caring for their dead, and the permanence and long continued and ever increasing respect for ever accumulating tributes of honor and love these nations are constantly bestowing upon their sacred dead, so the people themselves have sought, and not in vain, for a more permanent way, a more sanitary way, and speak so emphatically of the deepest religious reverence reflected by their monuments and mausoleums, and so the people themselves have sought, and not in vain, for a more permanent way, a more sanitary way, and a more reverential way for human burial.

WITHIN REACH OF ALL.

Mausoleum burial unit now, has been only within the reach of the very rich, else all the people of all the civilized nations would have universally adopted it long ago. Not until the inventions of the International Mausoleum company offered to the public enduring snow white tombs, forever free from damp and mold and decay, and safe from wilful or careless desecration, could any family secure a better way of burial at less than $1,000 a tomb. Watertown people can secure today tombs at $150 each, more sanitary more enduring and otherwise better adapted to protect the living than those occupied by the very wealthy of any nation on earth. And is this not a great forward, enabling step for Watertown people? Will it not place your little city in the front rank among the energetic communities of the country whose praises the press country tires of for having been the pioneers in building mausoleums and beautifying their cemeteries?

Overland NEWS

An Overland costs more than a driving team to start with it is true but it will last longer. The cost of keeping it repaired and supplied with gasoline is considerable less than that of feeding the team.

It is ready to go at a minute's notice and the time saved in making a trip is no small item. On Sunday the tired farm horses are not compelled to haul the family to church, and stand fighting flies, while the sermon progresses instead the auto does the work.

At night there is nothing so invigorating as a spin of an hour or so before bedtime. It is something the whole family can enjoy. With an Overland thirty miles is of less consequence than ten was before. The way to keep the boys and girls on the farm is to interest them. An Overland is one of the most effective means of doing this. The boys' love for machinery and the girls' love for social advantages is satisfied by an Overland Automobile.

Most of the farmers are able to buy an Overland. The farmer who has $1000 or $2000 in the bank drawing 4 per cent interest, or even loaned to a neighbor at 8 per cent will find that he will obtain much greater return from his investment if he uses it in the purchase of an Overland Automobile.

A long step will be taken ahead in the matter of discriminating publicity when laws are passed applying to all the country making it an offense to give to the professional tourist beggar. In nine cases out of ten if they are physically able to get about the country, eating all kinds of grub and drinking all kinds of water, they would be able to stay where they were raised and earn an honest livelihood without prostituting their self respect by launching into the field of confirmed beggary. The eyes of those whose tenderness of heart leads them to give to such folk would be opened could they see the sang sams which they convert into drafts every Saturday night. In many instances more than the weekly wage of those who contribute to them. If travelers of this type want to work for a meal, feed them; if not, direct them to the town or township trustees who have an arrangement for providing for such folk.

THE AMBIGUOUS TELEGRAM.

A traveling salesman was away from home, pursuing the country trade, as usual. One night in a country town the telegraph operator handed him a message from his wife, which read like this:

"Twins arrived tonight, more by mail."

The drummer was unprepared for a moment, but finally sat down and wrote the following, to be dispatched at once.

"Will return tonight. If any more arrive by mail send to dead letter office."
