WATERTOWN S. DAKOTA

Gen. Maas and Gen. Villa Write Letters

Some folks, who bury hatchets, Never leave them quite alone, But keep on digging round them, Like a dog with his pet bone.

The two letters following explain the attitude of the leaders of the federal and constitutionalists in Mexico toward American intervention, or rather toward American demands for honorable treatment:

Gen. Maas Asks Aid of Rebels.

"To General Francisco Villa:

"I have received instructions to notify the revolutionary chiefs that American intervention in Mexico is an accomplished fact. The United States of the North committed a grave offense against Mexico by disembarking troops in Vera Cruz April 21 and by taking similar action at Salina Cruz two days later. This act alone constitutes the initiation of war and this is the supreme moment to call on the patriotism of all Mexicans to present a united front and forget our differences in the intense love of the country of which we are possessed. We can consider the enemy only as a foreigner who in the most unjust and ignominious manner has stepped upon the holy soil of our fatherland.

"It is well known that the North Americans, following the hypocritical and undignified conduct which they have used in all cases of intervention, have declared they will not fight against the revolutionists, but only against the government, but it is clear that this conduct is for no other purpose than to keep us divided and make easier their conquests. As Mexican patriots we should not permit foreign nations to mix in our internal affairs.

"We, therefore, call upon our brothers to rally to the common cause for the defense of the national integrity. You could not more nobly yield your present position than for the purpose of rallying to the cause of the whole of Mexico that we may all march together against the invading Yankees. I have such faith in your patriotism that I do not doubt that the forces of your command will rally to fight the invasion of the Americans. I reiterate to you assurances of my distinguished consideration.

"J. Maas,

"General-in-Chief of the Division of the Bravo, Saltillo."

Villa declines to join forces.

Villa sent the following reply:

"In answer to your letter of April 28 in which, in accordance with your instructions, you invite me to march with you against the foreign invasion of our country, I would say that I understand your actions fully and also the present diabolical machinations. I know that as an accomplice you took part in the infidelity and treason of February 1913 (Madero's death). This is perfectly well understood and you should know that we cannot pardon it and also know that it will be the cause of your ruin.

"I therefore give you this answer only because your official request and my answer are historical documents and I owe to posterity an explanation of my conduct.

"I know the difficulties, by various processes, have up to this time sought to bring about North American intervention in Mexico. It is known without doubt that the coming of the Americans was desired and provoked by you. The manner in which you have excited internal troubles, and then called on all Mexicans to help fight the external troubles, is clear to all the world.

"General Huerta and you did not show much wisdom when you were converted into instruments of the intrigues and brought about the assassination of President Madero, Vice President Pino Suarez and some other liberal democrats because you did not realize that the blood of the heroes who started the democratic movement in 1910 would cause a civil war which would lead to your ruin.

"Now you desire to provoke a foreign war to save yourselves from the disaster coming from the civil conflict. You show even less wisdom when you pile up mountains of machinations and lies which will crumble about your ears.

"You have sought to make this union between yourselves and the constitutionalists who are under arms and with the pretext of a foreign war you seek to arm many Mexicans whose sympathies are not with you, but whose patriotism you expect to exploit, without reflecting that you are about to arm a people who in justice would chastise your crimes. These same people, when they discover you are an assassin of democracy, you seek to win over by starting a war against a foreign nation to serve your personal interests and those of your party.

"It will soon be proven that the satanic declarations which you traitors to the fatherland have made in stating that we have formed a union with the North Americans is a stupid assertion, which will cost you your existence and bring to your families an eternal shame.

"The constitutionalists have the desire to do all possible compatible with the national dignity to avoid a foreign war, but if we are not able to avoid it, we will face two enemies, the powerful stranger and the depraved compatriots.

"For constitution and reform,

Francisco Villa,

"General-in-Chief."

MANUFACTURED FUEL.

The total quantity of manufactured fuel in the form of briquets, egg-ettes, coal-ettes, boulets, and like products, according to E. W. Parker, of the United States Geological Survey, in an advance chapter of Mineral Resources, 1913, on "Fuel Briquetting," just published, amount in 1913 to 181,859 short tons valued at $1,007,327, a decrease of 18,205 tons in quantity but an increase of $55,066 in value, compared to the output in 1912. The slackened demand for briquetted fuel is believed to be due to the extreme mildness of the winter of 1912-13 and of November and December, 1913. The briquets which appear to meet with favor in the eastern states are of the boulet type, pillow or egg shaped, and about the size of anthracite nut. They are practically smokeless and make an ideal fuel for the open grate or kitchen range, holding their shape until entirely consumed and then falling, when stirred, into a pulverulent, clinkerless ash. In the central and Pacific states the popular type of briquetted fuel appears to be of larger size, about that of egg coal.

WALL-STREET VIEW OF BRYAN.

Wall Street Journal: A reader of the Wall Street Journal writes from Nebraska protesting against the suggestion of this newspaper that Mr. Bryan would find a more desirable field of usefulness elsewhere than in the office of secretary of state. This critic calls Mr. Bryan "our most gifted orator," and states, with perfect truth, that "his personal honor is untarnished by the breath of scandal."

It is certainly untarnished so far as the Wall Street Journal is concerned. But personal honesty is no guarantee of efficiency. Mr. Bryan lacks accurate knowledge, administrative capacity, and experience in the conduct of foreign relations—all indispensable in the high office he holds. So far as his oratory is concerned, he cannot discharge the duties of secretary of state with his mouth. If honesty were all, his possible successors would be numbered in millions.

William Jennings Bryan is a perfectly square man.

In a perfectly round hole.

BILL MAD.

Argus-Leader: A mania for law making seems to have possessed the American people in recent years, and congress and every legislative body is simply smothered in a flood of bills which undertake to remedy every ill to which man, beast or community is heir and the result is a vast mass of half digested laws, many of which are ignored and a vast portion of which are displaced at the succeeding session by others no more needed and equally as impracticable as those they repeal.

South Dakota is among the most conservative of states in this respect, notwithstanding the fact that the last session enacted 371 separate laws. There were introduced into the last session of our legislature 902 bills, but in the contemporaneous session, Minnesota considered 2,226; Iowa, 1,264; Nebraska, 1,346; Kansas, 1,773; Wisconsin, 1,759; Illinois, 1,608, and so throughout the union.

In South Dakota in the last session the legislature worked upon 45 days, so that eight bills per day upon the average, was passed through both houses, while twice as many more were considered and rejected. It goes without saying that such a mass of business could not be given adequate consideration; and if that be true in South Dakota what of Kansas or Nebraska which undertake almost twice as much in the same time. It is a serious evil, resulting in contempt for law and undermining popular government.

In the laconic interrogatory of "Old Man Chandler," what's the remedy? Governor Hoch would abolish the legislature and he is not without a following. Many believe that his proposal strikes at popular government; destroys that local representation which is fundamental in American institutions and is not to be seriously considered.

Must not the remedy be in educating public sentiment through school and press and forum, to understand that to propose an unnecessary law is a public offense; to enact such a law is a crime against society, and that the legislator who best serves his constituency is he who proposes the fewest bills and who kills the most of them. Public sentiment alone can remedy the evil. There is but one test which should be applied to every proposal for legislation, and that test is the probable effect upon public happiness and welfare and if every legislator would but ask himself that question when a bill comes on for consideration, mighty few would get by him:

"What will this bill do for the public happiness, anyway?"
