AT THE CAPITOL

CHANGE OF PROGRAMME REGARDING THE SILVER BILL.

THE REASONS FOR IT AND ITS MEANING

The House Will Consider the Bill at Once and Vote To-Morrow.

IT MAY PASS BOTH HOUSES THIS WEEK.

Bullion Redemption Will Be Dropped. Naval and Postoffice Appropriation Bills.

In the Senate to-day the conference report on the Naval Appropriation bill was agreed to.

The Postoffice Appropriation bill was then taken up. The amendments recommended by the Committee on Appropriations were:

To increase the item for mail depredations from, etc., from $250,000 to $300,000.

To increase the item for clerks in postoffices from $7,200,000 to $7,590,000.

To reduce the item for mail locks and keys from $50,000 to $35,000.

To increase the item for transportation of foreign mails from $664,000 to $712,000.

SILVER UP TO-DAY.

A SUDDEN CHANGE OF PROGRAMME—THE REASONS FOR IT.

Chairman Conger of the House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures gave out yesterday that he would call his committee together some time this week for the purpose of considering the Senate amendments to the House Silver bill. The impression he created was that the committee would not be called to meet before the latter part of the week. Undoubtedly this was his intention. A rumor to the effect that the soundness of the committee, from the gold standard point of view, was widely circulated last night and found some credence.

Whether this rumor tended to hasten matters is not known. Be that as it may, the Committee on Rules met at an early hour this morning and issued orders that the Silver bill should be reported back to the House to-day. Mr. Conger called his committee together hastily. Though the manner was somewhat informal, the action was formal. A majority of the committee agreed to report the bill back with a recommendation that the Senate amendments be non-concurred in and a conference be asked. The minority will recommend a concurrence. It is expected that the recommendation of the majority will be adopted.

The bill will then go at once to conference, as the Senate has been fixed for prompt action. It is expected that the compromise measure the conferrees will submit will provide for the compulsory coinage of $4,500,000 a month. Bullion redemption will be dropped. The legal tender clause, applicable to silver certificates, will probably remain. This would add $54,000,000 a year to the circulating currency of the country, and would just about absorb the output of the silver mines of this country. In this shape it is expected the President would either append his autograph to the act or permit it to become a law without his signature. If the programme now decided upon by the leaders is carried out without a hitch, the measure will be passed through both Houses this week and be laid before the President for his action or non-action.

THE HARRISBURG CONVENTION.

Indications that Delamater Will Get the Nomination.

HARRISBURG, PA., June 24.—It has been agreed that George C. Graham of Philadelphia shall be temporary chairman of the Republican Convention to-morrow, and Walter Lyon of Allegheny permanent chairman. Both are young men. It is said that Graham will vote for Hastings for Governor on the first ballot, and that Lyon will vote for Montooth, ann yet the Delamater men claim that they named both chairmen.

The indications here to-day are that Delamater will get the nomination for Governor. The race for the Lieutenant-Governorship nomination is close between Passemore, Watres and Martin. The grangers are backing Passemore for the place, while Watres is the favorite with the Delamater lieutenants, and Martin has good backing among the other delegates.

ROOSEVELT TO LEHLBACH.

Inspection of Civil Service Commission Work Invited.

Civil Service Commissioner Roosevelt has addressed a letter to Chairman Lehlbach of the Congressional Committee on Civil Service Reform, in which he invites the committee to meet at the office to see how the business is conducted, the safeguards that are used to prevent fraud, and in which the Commissioner offers suggestions as to the character of the examination papers, whether practical or not; as to whether or not the eligible list is overcrowded, and an outlying course which he (Mr. Roosevelt) proposes to follow.

RESCUERS NEARING THE GOAL.

A Fresh-Air Passage Opened Into the Dunbar Mine.

PITTSBURG, PA., June 24.—A report has reached the city that about 3:30 o'clock this morning the rescuing party at Dunbar made an opening into the Hill Farm mine and at once walled it up again, pending necessary preparations for an exploration. The report, however, lacks confirmation.

LATER.—From a later report, Leader special:

DUNBAR, 9:18 a. m.—A fresh-air passage has just been opened by the rescue party. It is believed that it leads into the Hill Farm mine. The end is likely to come before noon.

"Peached" Because Ejected.

Henry Busch, the beer bottler, was before Judge Miller this morning charged with violating the Sunday law. The main witness was a drunken man who "peached" because he had been ejected. Lawyer Shillington raised the point that there was no Sunday law in existence, and the case was continued until Friday when arguments will be heard.

PATENT OFFICE CRANKS.

The Queer Inventions That Are Sent to Be Investigated.

From the New York Herald.

To fully realize how many cranks live among us one has only to visit the Patent Office in Washington and examine the models which fill the shelves of that Department and read the specifications, in which are set forth in glowing terms the many benefits which they propose to donate to mankind. Every imaginable scheme is suggested and laid before the patent examiners. The question of utility, of practicability, does not enter into the taking out of a patent; it suffices that the invention has the feature of novelty and that the applicant pay the legal fees.

So numerous are the "perpetual motion" cranks, who think they have discovered the long and vainly sought enigma, that the office has prepared a circular which is mailed to any one who takes steps to enter an alleged perpetual motion invention. The circular informs him "that it is thought proper to advise him, in order to save him further expense and labor, that the views of the Patent Office coincide with those of scientists in general in regard to mechanical perpetual motions—that they are impossibilities. Should your entry be taken, a working model will be required, the office being aware that it will be impossible for you to comply with this requirement." The specification and fee are then returned. Does this dampen their ardor? Doubtless thousands of them are now trying to compass the working model.

Many of the old models were burned up in the fire of 1877, and tradition only tells of some of the queer contrivances that had been gathered in.

One of the most curious of these was a hen's nest, constructed with a spring trap at the bottom of the nest. The weight of an egg was sufficient to press down the spring and allow the egg to slip out. The theory of this thoughtful inventor was that as soon as the hen laid an egg it would press down the trap-door and disappear. The hen, as is her custom after laying an egg, would rise and cackle, but, finding no egg, would conclude that she had made a mistake and would proceed immediately to lay another, and so on ad infinitum. On this principle the owner of a hen would have had a great monopoly.

A trip through the model rooms revealed many unique and curious inventions, some of the more unusual of which I venture to describe and illustrate.

One of the most original is an ordnance plough, patented by C. M. French and W. H. Fancher, of Waterloo, N. Y., in June, 1862. The object of the invention was to produce a plough equal in point of strength and lightness to the one ordinarily in use and yet which would combine the elements of a small sized cannon, so that it could be outfitted by the frontier settler both for defensive purposes as well as agricultural.

The beam or tongue of the plough to which the horses or oxen are yoked is in fact a gun barrel or piece of light ordnance capable of throwing a projectile of one to three pounds weight without rendering it cumbersome as a plough.

The ploughshare takes the place of a gun carriage and serves to anchor the improvised cannon firmly in the ground and enable it to resist the recoil, while the handles furnish means of giving the plough or gun, as the case may be, direction or aim. To use the language of the inventors, "as a means of defense in repelling surprises and attacks on those engaged in a peaceful avocation it is unrivaled, as it can be instantly brought into action by disengaging the team, and in time of danger may be used charged with deadly grape. This combination enables those in agricultural pursuits to have at hand an efficient weapon of defense at slight expense, in addition to a common and indispensable implement, and one hardly inferior to expensive light ordnance on wheels." With due deference to the originality of the conception of the inventors, it does not appear that the "plough gun" or "gun plough" has come into very general use.

Chief Examiner Webster on a Trip.

Chief Examiner Webster of the Civil Service Commission left this afternoon on a business trip to New York and Brooklyn, and will be absent about a week or ten days.

LIEUTENANT GESSFORD EXONERATED,

But Charges Against Other Officers Will Likely be Pressed.

Commissioner Douglass was not at the District building to-day and consequently no advance was made in the police investigation. Lieutenant Gessford was closeted with Commissioner Robert for several hours and had the good luck to obtain a dismissal of the charges against him. The Commissioner assured him that after a full investigation that the charges were without foundation, and completely exonerated him. He took occasion at the same time to compliment Lieutenant Gessford in having so easily vindicated himself.

The charges against the other lieutenants have not yet been put in charge, nor will they be until Commissioner Douglass recovers sufficiently to attend a meeting of the board. Had it not been for the accident which befell him, the charges would have been made out yesterday, and the trial of Lieutenant Guy, who it is understood, will be the first one tried, began to-morrow. It will probably be the latter part of the week before anything is done in the case.

Lieutenant Vernon, who it is said assisted Colonel Robert in his investigation, was at the District building for a long time yesterday, but denied that it was upon any business connected with the pending investigation.

Civil Service Examinations.

There will be a civil service examination to-morrow in the division of vegetable pathology in the Agricultural Department, and as there is but one applicant, Major Webster says that applications will be received to-morrow morning. The position pays $1,000 per annum. Next Monday an examination will be had for a compiler and writer of statistics in the Agricultural Department, and for which a knowledge of modern languages is required. There are a number of applicants.

EPISODE OF THE HAT.

How a Pretty Woman Won a Vote of Thanks in a Theatre.

From the Philadelphia Press.

A stately and handsome example of the well-bred young lady attended a theatrical first night last week and occupied, with her escort, seats in the third row of the orchestra. She was so fair to look upon that a large share of the audience watched her as she went down the aisle and settled gracefully in a chair.

It was then observed, with much interest, that she raised her arms and detached from her head the fashionable hat that became her so well. Her hair was bright golden, and under the lights it fairly flashed in its beauty.

The old gentleman sitting behind her settled back comfortably in his chair and congratulated himself that he had been placed behind such a thoughtful creature, for now he could not only see the stage, but a splendid head of hair as well.

Presently two or three young women in the immediate vicinity quietly removed their hats, having noted the admiration that the originator of the scheme had excited.

From this the movement spread until hatless feminine heads were discoverable all over the theatre, even to the rear rows of the circle. Between the acts a paper began to circulate among the people in the orchestra.

Each gentleman, as he received it, read something that had been written on it, and then smilingly signed his name, after which he passed it to his immediate neighbor.

In a few moments the paper came back to the old gentleman that had started it on its travels. Bending forward he politely addressed the golden-haired girl, handing to her at the same time the paper. She read it, and as she did so a deep blush and a smile crept over her face. The paper was a vote of thanks, signed by thirty or more of the male spectators. Its text was as follows:

"We, the undersigned, desire to express our respectful admiration for a most beautiful and considerate young lady, name not known, who, by removing her hat from her bright golden head, has set the fashion for others, thereby rendering it possible for a delighted audience to witness the details of a stage performance."

The pretty girl cast a radiant smile over her shoulder at the old gentleman behind, and, folding the paper, tucked it into the front of her dress by the side of a bunch of pansies. And everybody was very happy.

Rheumatism,

BEING due to the presence of uric acid in the blood, is most effectually cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Be sure you get Ayer's and no other, and take it till the poisonous acid is thoroughly expelled from the system. We challenge attention to this testimony:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th st., New York.

"One year ago I was taken ill with inflammatory rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."—Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H.

THE STORY OF A HOUSE

Built for a Bride Who Died on the Eve of Her Wedding.

There is in New York, says the Ladies' Home Journal, quite one of the most fashionable thoroughfares, a magnificent house—yes, it is a veritable palace—which can never be looked at by the sentimental woman without a tear coming to her eye because of the story attached to it.

It was designed and built by one of the richest men in New York—the head of an old Dutch family—for the woman he loved. Throughout the whole house, which might have been called "The House Beautiful," were the colors, furnishings, ornaments and dainty touches that were the young bride's taste. The ball-room, in which she expected to trip so many merry measures, was walled and ceiled in many colored marbles, but the lover himself directed the building of the porte cochere under which her carriage was to roll, so that, stepping out, she would not be touched by a drop of rain or a flake of snow.

Everything was ready. The horses were pawing in the stable, waiting for the day to come when they would carry their new mistress out; the coachman and the footman had their big white rosettes at hand to wear on the wedding day; the house was full of fragrance, for beautiful flowers were massed to please the coming mistress, and everything seemed to be in harmony with this thoughtful, loving care, for the sun shone bright, and it was somebody's wedding day. Yes, but it wasn't an earthly wedding, for when, with quick footsteps, her mother went to wake the expectant bride she found her dead.

The last kiss she had given had been given to her lover the night before. The last kiss he ever gave any human being he gave to her as she rested in her coffin. But he lives on in the beautiful house and does with his great fortune a good deal of good, all in the name of the woman he loved. The shutters are never opened in that wonderful house, the carriage has never been used, no feet have danced in the ball-room, but it and the solitary man are there as evidences of the fact that a love can so completely fill the heart that all life is nothing without it.

HORSE FLESH AS FOOD.

It Resembles Bull Beef and Tastes Something Like Hare.

From the Nineteenth Century.

Physically, horse beef may be distinguished from beef or mutton by its appearance. It is coarser in the grain than beef. In this respect it resembles the bull beef more than any other. It is darker in color and looks more moist than beef. It has a peculiar smell and a peculiar sweetness of taste. Its flavor is generally considered to be half-way between the flavors of beef and game. It is something like the flavor of hare. One reason why horse flesh is, as a rule, darker in color than beef is that horses which are poleaxed, or which have died from injury, disease or old age, are not properly bled and dressed by the slaughterer. It is, however, by its fat that horse flesh is most easily distinguished.

The fat of horseflesh is not generally mixed with lean. It is yellow in color. It looks more moist than the fat of beef. It soon melts and soon becomes rancid. Consequently, unless a rapid sale is effected or the fat removed, an advanced price must be charged in order to secure the butcher from loss on unsold meat.

Lastly, horse flesh can be distinguished from beef by its chemical characteristics, and it is in this way that it may be recognized when mixed with other substances. Who can tell, except the chemist, what are the component parts of a sausage, polony or saveloy? Or who can tell by taste what these parts are? We do not judge by taste, we judge by flavor, and in the making of flavor—to use Sam Weller's phrase—"It's the seasoning as does it."
