DUDLEY AND HUSTON DENY AND LIE

Caught in the act of colonizing the doubtful Northern States with negroes, even DUDLEY winces, and enters a denial of the World's sensational exposure, but his denial is of that peculiar kind common to men taken by surprise in a meanness they expected would never be exposed.

He was approached by LINDSEY, who professed to be a philanthropist interested in the welfare of the negro. LINDSEY wished to find homes for a number of "downtrodden men of color," and DUDLEY, being also a philanthropist, was anxious to help in the laudable effort. That was all. He never thought of politics in connection with LINDSEY'S colonization scheme. Heaven forbid! He is not that kind of a man. There can be no reason for surprise, therefore, when it is announced that DUDLEY is shocked at the utter wickedness of the World and declares the colonization story a silly fake. "If," he says, "the World can stand the ridicule of the newspaper-reading Americans, the object of its attacks ought to be able to stand it."

But there are the letters of LINDSEY and of QUAY, and DUDLEY admits that he received an order from QUAY to pay LINDSEY $1,000 out of the treasury of the National Republican Committee, and he does not deny that if $1,000 had been given by the committee it would have been expended in furtherance of LINDSEY'S scheme. It will be seen that DUDLEY'S denial and the facts do not "consist."

But what are we to think of HUSTON? He has been regarded as a pretty good sort of a fellow, and the world has persisted in believing him to be reasonably honest. In spite of the fact that he is a managing Republican politician of the Indiana school. He also denies the political purpose of LINDSEY'S scheme. He also regarded it as a philanthropic movement. He did not suspect that there was any political purpose in LINDSEY'S desire to send 10,000 North Carolina negroes to Indiana! "If LINDSEY had proposed a political scheme of the kind set forth in the World," says HUSTON, "it would have been promptly and emphatically sat down upon."

"But, Mr. HUSTON, you wrote a letter to LINDSEY, and this letter was published in the World?"

"Well, maybe I did. I can't remember. About that time my correspondence was very large, and I dictated many letters that I have forgotten all about."

"Yes, of course. We understand that, Mr. HUSTON; but, look here; in the letter to LINDSEY you say: 'I myself am heartily in favor of it [the colonization scheme], and at the first opportunity will speak to the President about it, or will, if opportunity would offer, talk to Mr. MILLER, though I do not believe he could be induced to feel the same interest in it that I do. He has never taken much interest in practical politics.' Now, Mr. HUSTON, if Mr. LINDSEY'S scheme was purely philanthropic, why did you say MILLER would not be interested in it because he was not a practical politician?"

Of course, Mr. HUSTON has nothing to say.

"And, Mr. HUSTON, why did you propose to talk to the President about the scheme?"

"Well, now, really I did not mean the President of the United States. My reference to the President was intended as a reference to the President of a local club in Indiana, of which I am a member."

You man who will make such an assertion as this—tell a falsehood so palpable—there is no use to talk. He is as bad a man as either QUAY or DUDLEY; but he has not the tongue-holding ability of the former nor the genius of a political diplomat—the gift of skill in lying—possessed by the latter. He is a transparent bombag.

LOTTERY MATTER RULES.

Postmaster General WANAMAKER has promulgated a circular letter to postmasters containing instructions to them in reference to the recent anti-lottery act. After quoting the law the Postmaster General gives the following instructions:

1. Section 3894, above quoted, applies to any letter, ordinary or registered, if it concerns any lottery, gift concern or scheme described in the section, and to lottery tickets, checks, drafts, bills, money, postal notes or money orders for the purchase of lottery tickets, or any share or chance in a lottery or gift enterprise, and to the list of the drawings at any lottery or similar scheme, and forbids the carrying of them in the mails or the delivery of them from postoffices.

2. The seal of a letter, or of any sealed packet prepaid at letter rates, must not be disturbed for the purpose of ascertaining if its transmission in the mail or its delivery at a postoffice is forbidden by the provisions of this act. Nor will the mere suspicion that such letter or packet relates to a lottery, or the fact that it is addressed to any person known to be engaged in the business of conducting a lottery, justify its detention or non-delivery, except that the delivery of registered letters at the office of destination shall be withheld when the Postmaster General has issued specific orders under the provisions of section 3929 to that effect.

3. Postal cards and circulars unsealed, and all other unsealed matter, may, when suspected of having been deposited or mailed in violation of the provisions of this act, be examined for the purpose of ascertaining their character.

4. The mailing of matter interdicted by this act by citizens to lottery companies and their representatives is as clear a violation of the law as the mailing of such matter by lottery companies to their customers or other persons.

5. When it is known at the time of depositing them for mailing that postal cards or circulars are unmailable under the provisions of section 3894, above quoted, the postmaster should decline to receive them. If they be found in a postoffice and the sender is unknown to the postmaster, or if they be discovered in the mail in transit, they should be withdrawn and marked or stamped "fraudulent" and sent to the Postmaster General, accompanied by a special report from the postmaster explaining the reason for their detention.

6. The provisions of this act apply to letters, postal cards and circulars containing matter or similar schemes that come in the mails from foreign countries, and such matter so received should be treated as if it originated in the United States.

7. Matter sent in violation of the provisions of Section 3894 discovered by postmasters at intermediate offices should be withdrawn from the mail and disposed of in the same manner as if it had been discovered by the postmaster at the office of mailing or the office of delivery. But postmasters at intermediate offices should not delay the transmission of other mail in making special search for anything declared by this act to be unmailable.

8. Newspapers, pamphlets and publications of all kinds, bearing date before or since September 19, 1890 (at which date the act took effect), which contain the advertisement of any lottery, gift enterprise or similar scheme, or the whole or part of the list of prizes awarded at the drawings of lotteries or similar schemes, are, by the provisions of this act, denied carriage in the mails or delivery to subscribers, addressees or to any other persons, or as "sample copies." Postmasters should refuse to receive them from publishers or to deliver them if by inadvertence they reach the office of destination. When found by postmasters in the mail in transit they should be held until a report concerning them can be made to the Postmaster General and instructions received from him as to the disposing of them.

9. Foreign newspapers, pamphlets and publications of all kinds containing printed matter forbidden by the provisions of this act should be treated as if they were published in the United States.

10. Clerks in the Railway Mail Service, discovering matter the carriage of which is forbidden by the provisions of this act, should withdraw and forward it to their respective division superintendents. Division superintendents should treat such matter in the same manner as postmasters are herein instructed to treat it.

11. The term "lottery," as used in this act, embraces all kinds of schemes, general or local, for the distribution of prizes by lot or chance, such as gift exhibitions, enterprises, concerts, raffles, or the drawing of prizes in money or property at fairs. Hence letters, postal cards and circulars concerning them and newspapers, pamphlets and other publications containing advertisements of them are unmailable.

12. The provisions of section 3929, relating to registered letters, and of section 4041, relating to money orders (both of which sections are set out in full in the preceding copy of the act), apply to such matter at offices of delivery only, and are to be enforced upon the direct orders of the Postmaster-General.

13. Postmasters and other postal officials and employes are expected to be diligent in carrying out the foregoing instructions for the enforcement of the provisions of this act.

THE NEW YORK World says: "THE WASHINGTON CRITIC cites one of Mr. WANAMAKER'S advertisements as proving that he took a trade advantage of his official inside knowledge as to the tin schedule of the Tariff bill. But Mr. WANAMAKER being the business man in politics, what else is he there for? Did he not plaster his shop advertisements over the Pan-American dignitaries precisely as if they had been so many barns or country fences?".

IT SEEMS TO BE CERTAIN NOW that the murder of General BARRUNDIA by the Guatemalan Government was directly due to the interference of Minister MIZNER. The commander of the United States naval forces at San Jose at the time would have afforded the unfortunate man ample protection had not Minister MIZNER prevented his so doing, saying he would call upon the naval forces if their services were needed. It is high time that Minister MIZNER muzzled.

CHEAP TURKISH BATHS

Scalpers Sell Tickets at Greatly Reduced Rates to Their Patrons.

From the New York Sun.

Cut rates or "scalpers'" rates for a Turkish and Russian bath establishment is rather a new enterprise, isn't it? The "scalper" and ticket speculator has been known to theatre-goers and travelers on the railroads for years, but I think I can safely assert that there are not five hundred people out of the million and a half who Superintendent Porter says are residents of this city who ever heard of a cut-rate ticket for a Turkish bath. Competition in this industry seems to be followed with the usual result, however, for yesterday, on entering a prominent saloon up town, the card, in relation to one of the most widely known Turkish baths of the city, attracted my notice: "Tickets for Turkish and Russian baths at No. — sold here for 75 cents." I asked the bartender if the bath had changed its rates, which have for years been $1. "No," he said, "if you go to the bath you will still be charged $1 for a bath. We sell the tickets at cut rates."

A SNAKE CHARMER'S FATE.

He Played Once Too Often With His Pet Family of Rattlers.

Pottsville Dispatch to New York Herald.

Old David Harpster, a gray-headed snake charmer of this city, met a horrible death on Tuesday from the poisonous bite of a big rattlesnake that turned on him while he was handling it. For many years the old man made a business of capturing rattlesnakes. He sold many specimens of rattlers and other American snakes to museums and circuses and carried on a small trade in rattlesnake oil.

A party of sporting men were in the barroom of John Weisteiger's Hotel on Tuesday night of last week, when Harpster came in with a big rattlesnake in a cage. He had been drinking, and in a reckless moment he declared he would show the gentlemen how to bite off a snake's head. He took the rattler from the cage, and the monster sank its fangs into his right wrist. Harpster hurriedly replaced it in the cage and went out.

Nothing was seen of him until Thursday, when he was found huddled up in a dense growth of weeds in a yard surrounding Lloyd's foundry. His right arm was swollen to an enormous size, and he was half dead from pain and exposure. He was at once taken to Andrew Brown's residence and supplied with food and drink. Dr. W. H. Robinson was called in. The snake charmer demanded of him certain herbs, with which he said he could banish the poison from his system. The herbs were provided, but the poison had seized too firm a hold on its victim; his condition rapidly grew worse and last Tuesday he died. He was 75 years old.

LITERARY NOTES.

Mr. Oscar Fay Adams, whose collection of poems on the seasons "The Poet's Year" has just been issued in a sumptuous volume, is a compiler of excellent editorial judgment and has all a poet's appreciation of the real poetry of nature.

"The Jack Trust" is the title of a parlor farce which Grace L. Furniss, the well known author of "A Box of Monkeys" and "A Veneered Savage," will contribute to the forthcoming number of Harper's Bazar.

There are now nearly 200,000 "King's Daughters" in the land, and Mrs. Margaret Bottome, an energetic New York woman, is their President, as she is also the founder of the order. With October 1 Mrs. Bottome took up the editorial pen and became one of the editors of The Ladies' Home Journal, in which periodical she will hereafter write and edit a department entirely devoted to the best interests of "The King's Daughters." Through this channel it is Mrs. Bottome's intention that her "Daughters" and herself shall come closer together in feeling and sympathy.

Nellie Bly is in clover. For the next three years she will write under contract for Norman L. Munro, publisher of the Family Story Paper, at a salary of about $12,000 per annum. Miss Bly's extraordinary tour around the world, coupled with her original and popular career as an all-around writer for the press, presages for her a bright and profitable future. Mr. N. L. Munro has again shown his skill as an editor of high merit in selecting a writer so thoroughly equipped to please the readers of the Family Story Paper. There has been a substantial increase in the circulation of the Family Story Paper since Miss Bly's work began.—The Newsman, Sept., 1890.

By a singular coincidence the two stories of adventure just issued on the same day by D. Lothrop Company—"Wednesday the Tenth" and "The Lion City of Africa"—were by the two Allens, the English and the American authors. Mr. Grant Allen is well known as an entertaining English writer on popular science and social problems, but this story of a close shave in the South Pacific is in quite a different line. Mr. Willis Boyd Allen, the American, is the editor of the Cottage Hearth, and is dear to thousands of American boy and girl readers as the author of the delightful "Pine Cone Series." His "Lion City of Africa" is said to antedate Stanley and to be full of wonderful facts and startling experiences.

Frederic Harrison, the positivist essayist, has often been called the best living master of English prose. What he has to say, therefore, about literary methods and style is of the greatest practical value to writers. Incidentally, in an autobiographical essay in the October "Forum," he takes the subject up and declares that he never gave serious thought to how he should present a subject, so far as the mere style is concerned. He has a clear and serious purpose in view always, aiming to change men's opinions or to bring some practical thing to pass; and he goes at the task without indirection or conscious art, aiming to strike straight blows. This, he declares, is the secret of style—earnestness, directness, sincerity, together with constant communion with the great masters of literature.

The Albany Book Company announces for publication, October 10, a new novel by Arthur Dudley Vinton (exmanaging editor of the "North American Review") entitled "Looking Further Backward." This story is an answer to and continuation of Edward Bellamy's famous novel "Looking Backward." Mr. Vinton's story has been highly spoken of by those who have read it before publication; and the New York Herald, on Sunday, July 27, devoted five columns to a laudatory review of it while yet in manuscript—an almost unprecedented compliment. The book is composed of a series of lectures delivered by Won Lung Li, the successor of Prof. Julian West (the supposed writer of "Looking Backward,") at Shawmut College, in 2030. A charming love episode adds to the romance of the story which is full of incident. The book is one which every person who has read "Looking Backward" should read; and is also well calculated to interest and instruct all who have not read Bellamy's fascinating tale.

Mrs. Burton Harrison, who has an enviable reputation as a writer of short stories and novelettes, has just finished the most important work that she has yet undertaken. It is a novel of Southern life before, during and after the civil war, and deals with scenes and incidents that no one is more familiar with than she. The name of this novel is "Flower de Hundred, the Story of a Virginia Plantation," and it will be published during the fall by the Cassell Publishing Company. The manuscript of this story has been read by one of the best judges in the country, who predicts for it not only an immediate, but a lasting popularity, for it treats the subject with all the charm of a trained and graceful writer, together with the facts of the historian. It is amusing, pathetic and thrilling, and gives a picture of Southern life such as has never been put on paper before.

Can't Choke Off the People.

From the Buffalo Courier.

Reed & Co. can choke off tariff discussion in the House, but they can't choke off tariff discussion all over the country—in every shop, store, tavern, clubroom or other place where men resort. The McKinley tariff is bound to be fully discussed by the American people, and when they have finished discussing it they will come down on it with a verdict of condemnation.

Who testify to the peculiar curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are found all over the country. The universal success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is one of the wonders of the day. No preparation ever achieved so great popularity in so short a time. This is due to the fact that it does exactly what we claim it will do. Its cures are never overdrawn; its accounts are not exaggerated. If you have never tried it, do so.

Hoped With Quinine

"I was cut down from close application to work, but was told I had malaria and was dosed with quinine, etc., which was useless. The Belief in Immortality.

Prof. J. P. Lesley to the October Forum.

The belief in immortality is prehistoric and is perpetual, and it will exist so long as men know with an Invisible and feel with a visible set of faculties—two sets perfectly distinguishable by young and old, wise and foolish, alike. The idea generates itself in each individual: it is reinforced by alien testimony: it is formulated and illustrated in various ways by traditions and instructions: but it is the plain outgrowth of personal experience, and is consequently a universal property of mankind. It needs no sanction from Scripture. It borrows nothing from logic. It is in no sense dependent for its origin on moral ideas of right and wrong, reward and punishment. It is vague and fruitless among the ignorant and debased, but can become and does become the most brilliant and fruitful of all ideas for the wise and good. It is capable of cultivation and it should be cultivated.

Quite a Different Matter.
