On National Food Council

President Truman has named Frank L. Weil, president of the National Jewish Welfare Board, to the National Famine Emergency Council, an American effort to prevent starvation in Europe by reduction of food consumption here. Herbert Hoover is honorary chairman of the council and Chester Davis is chairman.

FRANK L. WEIL

The council was set up early this month by President Truman appealing to all Americans to deny themselves a substantial part of their daily bread" so that millions may survive who are otherwise doomed to death by starvation." The Council, after a day-long conference in Washington, recently issued a call to the people of this country to eat 40 per cent less wheat and 20 per cent less fats.

Mr. Weil voiced his confidence that the "profoundly humanitarian objectives of the emergency food program will inspire Americans to cooperate wholeheartedly in the movement to stave off the death by starvation of untold millions in the hard-hit areas of Europe.
